The Elephant's Chains.
Nein, to Mr. Hitler.
Capitalism, Ever Changing.
Again, in 1936, Says Farley.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

JOHN W. DAVIS, distinguished American, back from Europe, says:

"No man should work less than eight hours. What are they going to do with all the extra hours? Honestly, how many men do you know who will use them for self-improvement, for reading a worth-while book, or for studying something they need?"

Some prosperous Americans are able to spend the whole of Saturday, Sunday, and sometimes other half days playing golf. Workmen might decide to try that or polo. In the long run, they probably could learn to use their hours of leisure, at least in a way satisfactory to THEMSELVES, which is the important thing.

THERE WAS a vicious elephant, and his legs were chained, so that he could move only twelve inches in any direction. When he grew old and mild, they took the chains off, but it was too late.

He moved back and forth twelve inches in each direction, as he had always done, and no more. Maybe part of the labor world, suddenly getting rid of what the Marxians call "its chains," will not be able to use the hours of freedom as well as it might. But the next generation will be able to use them.

MR. HITLER has a new slogan, addressed to the Allies:

To that the Allies may be trusted to reply with a short German word of four letters: NEIN.

NEWTON D. BAKER, representing the United States before the Institute of Pacific Relations at Banff, says the world's entire capitalistic system must be readjusted before ills now afflicting it can be cured, and before the problem of unemployment can be solved.

The capitalistic system is being readjusted at the moment, with a vengeance, our honorable dollar forsaking gold, our government handing out tens and hundreds of millions to any respectable cause that needs them and telling business how many days and hours men shall work, and how they shall be paid.

THE "CAPITALISTIC system of the world" has always been in a process of readjustment. Once, if a man owed money and didn't pay, he could be put in jail and left to rot there. Before that, apart from the story of Shylock and his pounds of flesh, the creditor took his pound or ten pounds, if he wanted it.

He could take the life of the man that failed to pay what he owed, or reduce him to slavery, with his family. Now, you can't even jail a man for not paying his debts, unless it be a husband who has offended the dignity of a judge by not paying alimony.

THERE WAS a time when all the power of the church thundered against any interest charge. Any kind of interest was called usury. The Bible denounces interest. That has been changed, fortunately for capitalism.

Everything is changing constantly in our so-called civilization, but the changes are slow. We rarely notice them.

MR. FARLEY, Postmaster General, who had a good deal to do with running President Roosevelt's election last time, says his re-election in 1936 is certain.

That seems certain today, it would hardly be worth while for the Republicans to nominate. But other years, other conditions. In 1936, Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the most popular, or the least popular man in America, depending how NRA works. Nobody knows it better than he.

A story going around, perhaps without foundation, but interesting, runs:

Some one said to a high personage:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt will either be the best loved or the worst hated President in history."

The high personage replied:

"He will either be the most successful President of the United States or he will be the LAST President of the United States, meaning that failure of the big experiment would result in fascism or some other "ism."

TROUBLE in India, as usual. Poor Gandhi continues to starve and weighs little more than ninety pounds, only a trifle above the weight of his skeleton.

There is an endurance limit even in a well-disciplined Hindu body. If Gandhi should die, it might mean trouble for the British, although he would have killed himself.

ANOTHER TROUBLE came with an eclipse of the sun. The Hindus had been told about it, information posted up everywhere, but when it came, there was agitation, only among the uneducated masses. Fortunately, cloudy weather minimized fear in many districts.

We need not sneer at the Hindus. Not so long ago Dean Swift, in Ireland, having told his parishioners Protestant—that there would be an eclipse of the moon at a certain hour, so many gathered around his study that it disturbed him. He sent out word: "The eclipse has

New Kensington Girl, Druggist, His Friend's Wife Die of Poison

A New Kensington druggist deliberately or mistakenly last night caused the death of one girl, then drove down the Sandy Creek road in Penn Township, with his best friend's wife, and quaffed poison with her. The two were found slumped in the seat of the druggist's coupe today.

The druggist is Edwin V. Kerr, of 1201 Taylor avenue, New Kensington. The girl to whom he gave poison fatally is Mrs. Dorothy Yunkers, 25, of 1220 Taylor way, New Kensington.

The woman who drove off to death with him is Mrs. Della Gradler, 24, of 526 Ridge avenue, New Kensington, the mother of two young children.

CAUSES GIRL'S DEATH

According to friends of Mrs. Yunkers, she went to Kerr's drug store early last night to find relief from a headache. Kerr, they say, gave the girl six tablets, which she took. An hour later she died.

Preliminary investigation indicated the same poison was used in all three deaths.

Kerr went to the home of J. L. Gradler, a friend of long standing and asked if Mrs. Gradler might go to a party in Wilkinsburg with him. The party was short a guest, Kerr ex-

RADIO PRIEST CENSURES BANKERS

Father Coughlin Says Inflation Will Come In Few Weeks

International News Service.

DETROIT, Aug. 23.—America will see revaluation of the gold ounce "within a few weeks," the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit "radio pastor" predicted today in testimony before the one-man grand jury hearing on Detroit's bank crash.

Discussing the closing of Detroit's two super-banks which plunged the nation into a financial crisis last February, Father Coughlin predicted depositors would get 80 per cent of their money. So far they have received only 40 per cent.

GOLD REVALUED

Prosecutor Harry S. Toy asked him how this could be done.

"It will be taken care of by revaluation of the gold ounce, within a few weeks. It will uatomatically revalue the assets of the closed banks."

He added, however, that "only God could re-open the First National Bank," declaring:

"The government is not a Christ. It cannot raise a Lazarus!"

Father Coughlin said he had been ordained a Roman Catholic priest in 1916 and began to take notice of Detroit's bank situation "about two and a half years ago."

His "first motive" for becoming

Browbeating Business

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S invaluable contribution to economic recovery consisted of relieving the business community of the fear of fear.

It is, therefore, doubly regrettable that overzealousness in the National Recovery Administration IS IMPARTING A NEW NERVOUSNESS AMONG OUR BUSINESS LEADERS.

Tall talk by NRA officials, and a flavor of ignorant and unbalanced radicalism on the part of subordinates, have tended to make corporate executives definitely apprehensive.

The new hysteria in the campaign to get business men to hit the trail and accept codes HAS GIVEN POSITIVE PAUSE TO THE PROCESS OF ECONOMIC REGENERATION.

The cause is doubtless a good one, but there is too much haste in effecting the transition.

There is over-emphasis on the importance of codes, and too little reliance on the natural factors in the economic situation making for recovery.

There appears also to be a lack of appreciation in Washington of the self-regulating factors in a balanced economic situation.

GREAT good was being accomplished by government through the distribution of wealth in wages by means of public works.

And as a result, the buying power of the community was gradually but steadily increasing.

A healthy equilibrium was in the making as a result of the rehabilitation of the buying power of the 8,500,000 hitherto impoverished workers on the farms.

Remarkable progress was made in a few months in raising the exchange value of farm products in accordance with the broad effort to restore the pre-war parity between buying power in the country and in the cities.

Perhaps a solider foundation for recovery

HURRICANE PERILING CAPITAL

Mid-Atlantic Coast Cities Battered as Storm Rages On

Associated Press.

Caught between a raging northeaster and a tropical hurricane blowing up from Bermuda, the Atlantic seaboard found no respite today from five days of storm and gale which already have wrought death and destruction over a wide area.

Two SOS signals from the Eastern steamship liner Madison with more than 87 persons aboard sent a Coast Guard cutter ploughing to her aid off Cape Charles, Va.

Reports from along the Eastern seaboard told of thousands of dollars worth of damage by the hurricane and the possible loss of life.

At Norfolk winds of 70 and 80 miles velocity, accompanied by heavy rain, marooned vacationists and flooded low-lying sections.

Washington reports said a storm of near hurricane velocity was sweeping inland and was expected to strike the Capitol City before nightfall.

The North Carolina coast also was being pounded by mountainous waves and an unknown four-masted schooner wallowed helplessly off the shoals near Meneto while Coast Guard craft stood by unable to give any assistance.

New Jersey, which received the brunt of the storms of the past four days, continued to be buffeted. The 300-foot municipal pier at Cape May was washed away and telephone and electric lines were torn away.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—A second SOS distress call was sent out by the coastal steamer Madison with 87 persons aboard, as it was buffeted about this afternoon in a storm-wracked sea.

The message, picked up by Mackay radio at 10:30 a. m., and by the United States Coast Guard at 10:58 a. m., gave the position at 20 miles northeast of Chesapeake Lightship, off the coast of Virginia, and said:

"Housing breaking."

The first distress signal at 6 o'clock this morning, which was followed by five hours of silence,

Bucs Idle as Rain Wrecks Sport Card

The Pirates-Giants doubleheader in New York, the Reds-Dodgers twin bill in Brooklyn and a single game between the Cubs and Phils in Philadelphia all were postponed bcause of rain today. The Cards-Braves game in Boston was the only fray remaining on the National League slate.

Semi-final round matches in the women's national tennis championship, at Forest Hills, N. Y., were rained out for the third straight day.

The Bucs and Giants are to meet in two games in New York tomorrow.

LANDLADY DIES FROM BEATING

Homicide detectives today were searching for Richard Callahan, of 5560 Avondale place, in connection with the death of Mrs. Marcella McCarthy, his landlady.

Mrs. McCarthy, found wandering in the street, was taken to Homeopathic Hospital, where she died this morning from a fractured skull and other injuries.

Detectives hurrying to the hospital to question her, arrived to late, but hospital attendants, they said, informed them Mrs. McCarthy had told them Callahan had beaten her.

At Mrs. McCarthy's apartment police answered three telephone calls from relatives, and ordered each caller to the apartment for questioning. They soon arrived.

Mrs. Loretta Myers, of 235 Millvale avenue, a sister, according to detectives, said there had been a quarrel between Mrs. McCarthy and Callahan 10 days ago.

Police said Mrs. Myers informed them her sister struck Callahan repeatedly, and he finally retaliated.

Asked why her sister had not

Roosevelt Spurs Coal Men to Reach Accord

Problems Regarded Most Serious of Recovery Plans

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—President Roosevelt today urged speeding up of the efforts to bring coal magnates and labor into an agreement on a fair code of competition for the bituminous coal industry.

The President was described in authoritative circles as taking unusual interest in breaking the long-standing deadlock over a coal code.

The President was consulted by National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson by long distance telephone to his Hyde Park estate this morning while conferences between NRA officials and representatives of the coal industry were continued.

Progress was reported in reconciling differences between the coal producing areas, but it appeared possible that negotiations might continue most of the week.

The coal problem is regarded by Johnson's aides as the most serious yet faced by the Recovery Administration. It was pointed out that bituminous coal is the only major industry which failed to show a profit as a whole during the boom days. Because of this, operators are reluctant to increase their costs materially by shortening hours of work and raising wages.

One of the largest operators said he had received information that his company had lost a 500,000-ton coal contract through the substitution of natural gas.

The operators have indicated that they would oppose to the last ditch the mine workers' proposal for a $5-a-day minimum and a 30-hour week.

Stolen Paintings Held for Ransom

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Sixteen oil paintings, stolen from the Watson Art Gallery and valued at $15,000, were held for $10,000 ransom today by thieves who threatened to cut them to bits and return them thus to the owners, the Art Association of Montreal. A note to association officials said:

"If you do not want to play cards our way, you can inform your police to go and find them for you."

Ball Player Dies Of Stab Wounds

Schnosky died late yesterday in McKeesport Hospital, of wounds inflicted in a brawl in Center way, Clairton, Sunday night, police said. He had been stabbed many times with an ice pick.

M'ARDLE FLAYS BOSS RULE

Councilman P. J. McArdle, candidate for Mayor, last night in opening his headquarters in the William Penn Hotel, detailed his platform and pledged an audience of more than a thousand that he would live up to every one of his pledges if elected.

For the most part McArdle concerned himself with economic problems and city planning, but he aroused the enthusiasm of his hearers when he struck at political domination of the police force and the influence exercised in city affairs by ward chairmen. McArdle did not mention either of his Republican opponents, Mayor John S. Herron or Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, or Senator James J. Coyne, chief target of the Citizens' League.

This function was well taken care of by four McArdle councilmanic candidates, Edward C. Tabor, Charles Wolff, Robert N. Waddell and Howard B. McNutt.

William P. Witherow, who had been a potential mayoralty candidate, backed by the League, but who withdrew for McArdle, said that his withdrawal had been designed to bring a harmonious attack on Coyne. Despite that failure, he said that independents should ignore Mackrell and center

Dr. McCready Fights Wife's $1,000,000 Will

A legal move to obtain half the $1,000,000 estate of the late Mrs. Mathilda Craig McCready, Sewickley society woman, was made today by her husband, Dr. R. J. McCready.

The physician today filed with the Register of Wills an "election to take against" his late wife's will, which, lawyers say, means that he will get half of the estate under provisions of intestate laws.

Under the original provisions, Mrs. McCready left $1,000 monthly for life to him, and the greatest part of the remainder for the erection of a hospital for neurotic women on Staunton Farms, Moon Township.

The site, which also is part of the estate, is a lofty hilltop overlooking the Ohio River. To the hospital, also, she ordered turned over antiques, books and other rich articles.

In the will, filed June 2, it was provided that after bequests totaling about $300,000 were deducted, the remainder of the $1,050,000 estate would go for such a home, to be directed, if the organization concurred, by the United Presbyterian Woman's Association. The Fidelity Title & Trust Company and E. B. Scull as executors.

She directed that the association should have two years to decide, and in the event it accepted, the right to operate and name five incorporators and directors. The others she named in the will.

Doctor Freed in Death Of Baby He Once Saved

Today Dr. Harry R. Goldstein, of 205 South Mathilda street, was exonerated by a Coroner's jury for fatally injuring this same little Charles Gaslevich, of 346 Forty-fifth street.

A sympathetic jury listened while the physician, grief-stricken, testified he had not seen the child run out from behind a parked car in front of the boy's home, to be struck by the Goldstein machine. The lad was taken to St. Francis Hospital, where he died August 14.

Chief Deputy Coroner John S. Aldisert presided at the inquest. It was he who, after the inquest, explained that Goldstein, as family physician, performed an operation on the boy, saving him from choking to death.

FATHER COUGHLIN PREDICTS INFLATION IN 'FEW WEEKS'

DETROIT BANK CLOSINGS DUE TO 'HIGH FINANCE,' PRIEST TELLS QUIZ

interested in the bank situation, he said, was "the perennial gossip that was current in Griswald street (Detroit's Wall street) concerning the conduct of the banks, the organization of the holding companies and especially some of the opinions expressed in Washington by Carter Glass and Representative Louis T. McFadden."

Impatient with Prosecutor Harry S. Toy's preliminary questions, Father Coughlin broke in:

"I believe I should first clarify the situation by gathering some of the threads of philosophy on which the entire structure has been built. Our situation was not born yesterday, or three years ago. It is the result of a remarkable philosophy, traceable back to Adam Smith, and Ricardo; to those men who have emphasized the fact that individualism was of paramount importance in our civilization.

"To take up those things that deal with banking as we know it in the United States, I propose to discuss the philosophy of the leaders in this country. If occasionally I mention names, I am not doing it with any disparagement, but as specific personalities who have adopted this philosophy and tried to put it into practice.

BRINGS DOCUMENTS

Father Coughlin said he suggested to Gov. William A. Comstock that a bank holiday be called two weeks before the crash, when a group of banks in the Michigan "Thumb" district closed.

He took occasion to deny "the rumor . . . that I am sitting in President Roosevelt's lap." He said:

"I am not sitting in anybody's lap in this situation."

URGED BY WOODIN

Father Coughlin explained how he happened to broadcast his first address on the Detroit bank situation in March. He declared that Marvin MacIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, called him and suggested he get in touch with Secretary of the Treasury Woodin.

"I did so, and Mr. Woodin said he would be 'very pleased' if I would go on the radio and support the plan for a new bank in Detroit (the present National Bank of Detroit). I took exception to those who referred to the plan for a new bank as an 'outside plan.'"

It was this address that stirred up the storm of controversy during which Father Coughlin referred to certain Detroit bankers as "whited sepulchres."

Father Coughlin then produced a copy of an article he said was written by Mr. Hoover for the Salisbury Press of London, England, in May, 1932. He said:

"I have a copy to be left with the court. I think it is relative to the closing of the banks. The article attempts to show the philosophy of why the bankers were protected against the common people. The article was written by Herbert Hoover then a voting resident of England, but not a citizen. It is entitled 'The Economics of a Boom.' It shows the attitude of the promoter toward the promoted.

MINE PROMOTIONS

"The article states there are three ways in which money is expended to float a mining project. This first is for equipment and for the property. That costs $500,000. The second lists salaries. This is $25,000. The third is for brokers, jobbers and others, and totals $75,000. That makes a total expenditure of $600,000. The mine is then capitalized at $5,000,000. Hoover was a mining engineer and a promoter. He must have known the facts. The last investment, the $5,000,000 was expended by the promoted.

"If the venture was a failure, I quote:

"'It is quite possible that the $4,400,000 is not a loss. If capitalized at $5,000,000 and the shares sold at $4,400,000 the wealth is transferred from one person to another. Insiders can invest it better than idiots, the outsiders who parted with it.'"

Prosecutor Toy then asked:

"Wasn't he speaking perhaps scientifically?"

"No, economically as the title states."

"Didn't he mean that the one group could make wiser investments with the money then the other group?"

DENIES CRITICISM

"He meant the outsiders exist for the benefit of the insiders."

"Was the article an expose of mining promotion?"

"No, this was a description of his own ideas."

"It is your construction of the article that these were his own ideas, his own philosophy?"

"Yes, it's what he believes. I am not criticizing this belief, as I said before, any more than I can criticize the beliefs of a man of another faith."

"With reference to the $600,000 was that a specific mine?"

"It was any mine. Capitalize it at $5,000,000, let it fail, and pocket the money."

Father Coughlin's voice rose as he said:

"I am not trying to damn Mr. Hoover. I am trying to exculpate the man. I am damning his philosophy. This depression was a man-made depression. It was just as though the people were a band of monkeys on an island of cocoanuts who didn't know how to eat them and were starving to death. That was the result of the philosophy of exploiting the poor, making them starve in a country that was ever flowing with plenty."

PLEADS FOR 'NEW DEAL'

Then raising his voice until it rang even in the jammed courtroom:

"Let's get together and put across the New Deal and see that there is no division of wealth on any Socialistic or Communistic plan, but in the Christ-like manner. Until we get a new philosophy instead of this paganism there is nothing but chaos ahead."

The spectators, wedged tightly against one another, sat forward or stood on tiptoe as the voice of the priest rose and baamed with indignation. Not a sound was heard in the room except his voice. He shouted:

"I will be accused of defending President Roosevelt. I am defending principle. I am defending the encyclicals of Pope Leo XIII and Pope Pious XI insists on fair treatment by employers of employes.

"I am defending a Protestant President of the United States who has more courage than 90 per cent of the Catholic priests in the country in fighting for the rights of the poor; a President who knows that human rights are more sacred than financial rights and that men come before bonds."

"My testimony would amount to nothing unless I can produce concrete facts to substantiate my statements. Thus, I have come here to present a whole portfolio of documentary evidence to back up all I state.

"I will deal with public utterances I have made over the radio because I assume that is why I was called here. I will amplify those statements."

Ex-President Hoover, challenged by Senator James Couzens to come here and testify, refused the invitation of Prosecutor Toy late yesterday.

The ex-President, in a telegram to Judge Keidan, stated that such information as he could give on the situation was "only general, mostly second-hand, and insufficient to warrant a journey to Detroit."

CHALLENGED BY COUZENS

Senator Couzens had challenged the former President to explain, among other things, what he meant when he allegedly told a Detroit bank director the Michigan Senator was a "very dangerous man."

The grizzled Couzens, accused by other witnesses of causing the bank collapse through his opposition to a huge proposed R. F. C. loan, spent four days on the witness stand.

Father Coughlin came into the banking situation last spring when his charges against Detroit and international bankers raised a bitter controversy. In a series of Sunday afternoon sermons Father Coughlin fired broadcast after broadcast against the managers of the wrecked banks. Displaying a surprising knowledge of the situation, he accused the Detroit bankers of "gambling with the people's money."

The tall gray church at Royal Oak, dedicated to the childlike St. Theresa of Liseaux—the obscure "little flower" of a French village, who became a great saint of the Catholic Church—immediately was the center of a verbal whirlwind. Father Coughlin stuck to his guns, declared his accusations were based on "inside" information and promised to back his charges when opportunity offered.

Hoover in Seclusion On Stanford Campus

PALO ALTO, Cal., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Having announced his knowledge of the Detroit banking situation last winter would not warrant his going there now to appear before investigators of the financial collapse in the Michigan city, former President Herbert Hoover retired today to the privacy of his Stanford University campus home.

Mr. Hoover had been requested by Prosecutor Harry S. Toy, of Detroit, to appear as a witness at the investigation there into the closing of the First National Bank-Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

The information sought by the Detroit investigator concerned the attitude of administrative agencies of the federal government toward the two closed Detroit banks previous to March 4, 1933, during the Hoover incumbency. Toy suggested the former President might have in his possession "certain facts" that might render his testimony as a witness "highly significant and essential to a thorough and true presentation of the reason underlying closing of Detroit's banks." Mr. Hoover replied:

"I have no objection to furnishing such information which I properly can, but such information as I can give is only general and is mostly second hand, and is insufficient to warrant a journey to Detroit."

U. S. WILL FIX MILK PRICE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The government is about to fix the price paid for the milk that is set on nearly every doorsill or porch in the country.

The plan so far is just tentative as to details and is being written by farm administration officials and dairymen. At most, the officials feel, the result should be an average increase in cost to the consumer of one cent a quart.

It would work this way: For the country as a whole, there would be a central blanket agreement, covering all fluid milk and outlining policies and fair trade practices. Codes then would be drawn for each milk shed, each area producing and consuming its own milk. These would fix the farm, wholesale and retail prices of milk.

Also included in the plan is the idea of limiting to 5 or 6 cents the difference between what the cow owner gets for his milk and what the drinker pays for it, thus restricting the middleman's profit, the "spread."

CARLISLE, Pa., Aug. 23.—(INS.)—A court battle loomed today to prevent United States Secretary of Agriculture Wallace from making the Philadelphia Milk Shed Marketing Agreement effective in the Harrisburg area.

The Capital City Milk Producers Association instructed its sales committee to take the necessary legal steps to prevent the agreement from being put into force.

Text of Hoover's Reply To Detroit Bank Probers

"I have received from the press a copy of a letter addressed to me by yourself requesting that I should come to Detroit as a witness in the inquiry you are conducting in respect to the closing of the Michigan banks last February.

"Detailed and competent information as to the relation of federal authorities to the events leading to the closing of these banks can be obtained only from the former officials of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Reserve Board, the then comptroller of the Currency, and from the record.

RUN ON BANK

"My recollection of my own connection is that on a Thursday evening in February, the officials informed me that the Guardian Trust Company of Detroit was in difficulties, was undergoing a run by its depositors and that should it close it would precipitate a panic run on other Detroit and Michigan banks. The impression I received from them was that the other leading banks of Detroit had not been subject to runs and were able to meet their deposit responsibilities if there was no general panic in the city, although they necessarily had a number of slow assets in Detroit real estate mortgages.

"I was informed the Guardian Trust situation was such that even with the utmost of government assistance possible under the law it would be insufficient without outside help and reorganization internally. The request of these gentlemen, and I understood, of leading men in Detroit was that I should endeavor to bring about co-operation of outside banks, private interests and leading depositors to reorganize the trust company and thus prevent a crisis in that city. We had successfully secured such action on similar occasions in other cities and prevented enormous losses.

UNCEASING EFFORT

"I and the other officials devoted ourselves unceasingly during the following 48 hours in many directions to building up the co-operation necessary to save the situation and it was continued until it was brought to a halt by the determination of the Governor that it was wise to close the whole of the Michigan banks.

"As I have said, the details of these plans and negotiations and those subsequently developed by officials of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Reserve and the Treasury for reopening of the Michigan banks can only be had from the then officials of those organizations.

"I have no objection to furnishing any information which I properly can, but such information as I can give is only general and is mostly second hand, and is insufficient to warrant a journey to Detroit, and can be more effectively given by the officials mentioned. I am sure it is fully available to you."

Stern Justice Rants At 'Beautiful Romance'

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—It was a beautiful story the young couple, both 18, told the police. A romance in Oklahoma City, parental objections, an elopement in the Bridegroom's costly sedan, marriage, the Chicago Fair, then New York.

Their car stalled in Times Square for lack of gasoline . . . The couple getting out to spend their last 30 cents for hot dogs and orangeade . . . A stern policeman waiting when they returned to the car . . . Young love laughing bravely as the honeymoon crashes on the reef of a vagrancy charge.

A beautiful story . . . but fictitious, the creation of a fugitive bandit and his light-of-love . . . police charged today in West Side Court.

The Bridegroom, "Lyman T. Mason," a sallow-faced youth in a bright yellow polo shirt, isn't Mason or a Bridegroom.

He's James Spivey, alias James Tierce, an auto mechanic, allegedly wanted by Oklahoma City police for holding up Lyman T. Mason, wealthy cattle man, and stealing Mason's car, the vehicle which stalled in Times Square.

And the girl, homely and frowsy-haired, who had airily called herself Jane R. Hopkins, college girl and daughter of an Oklahoma City social leader, is really Jane Russell, the court was informed.

Punishment on the vagrancy complaint was suspended and the pair were turned over to federal authorities, to be held on a charge of transporting a stolen car across state lines.

ANOTHER SOS SENT BY SHIP CARRYING 87

Hurricane Sweeping Toward Washington From Atlantic

said that the entire forward deck house had been washed away.

STEAMER TO RESCUE

The Coast Guard intercepted an answer to the second SOS from the steamer Emilia, which did not give its position. The Emilia reported itself on the way to give assistance.

Other vessels on the way with aid were the Coast Guard cutter Carabassett and the Coast Guard destroyer Upshur.

While the Madison did not give any details of its trouble, its position would indicate that it was at the converging point of two violent storms, one sweeping up the coast from the south, the other down from the northeast.

The vessel had 37 passengers and a crew of 50 to 60 aboard, Capt. William Heath is in command.

Officials of the Eastern Steamship Line, owners of the vessel, said the forward housing contained only apartments and nothing vital to the operation of the ship.

Communication was temporarily established with Virginia Beach, a resort near Norfolk, Va., from Baltimore today, the resort was reported almost wrecked.

The Pocohontas Hotel was flooded and furniture on the ground floor was afloat with the ocean driven in by a record high tide. Cottages along the seafront were battered all night and few have windows or roofs left. Several were said to have been lifted by the waves and floated away.

The resident, unable to make their way inland through the flood waters, assembled in the hotels.

At Baltimore the Coast Guard announced a patrol boat had been sent to rescue the crew of two barges at Cutoff Channel, after the barges sent distress signals.

Coast Guard Rescue Vessel in Distress

WILMINGTON, N. C., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The Coast Guard cutter Modoc, stationed here, intercepted a wireless today saying that the cutter Carabasset, which had been en route to the distressed steamer Madison off Cape Charles, was hove to off Number 5 Buoy, Thimble Shoals, near Old Point Comfort, Va., with minor damage to the boat deck and one pilot house window smashed in by the storm.

The Modoc reported that the wireless said the Carabasset was attempting to proceed and "will advise."

Hurricane Sweeping Toward Washington

WASHINGTON, Aug 23.—(AP.)—A violent storm, described variously by naval and Weather Bureau officials as of "hurricane" or near hurricane intensity, was reported by the bureau today to be sweeping inland from the Virginia Capes on a generally northwesterly course.

Bureau officials estimated that if the storm, which weaved a sinuous, shifting, snake-like course as it came up from the South, maintained its present direction it wouldwould pass over the National capital before nightfall.

Although it left a trail of distressed shipping in its wake, Weather Bureau officials were of the opinion that its force would be considerably dissipated when it moved inland.

Nevertheless, R. H. Weightman, Weather Bureau forecaster, said the storm had done the unusual for a disturbance originating in the tropics by striking north of Cape Hatteras with great intensity.

He said the disturbance was near "hurricane intensity" but that no winds had been reported to observers here as yet which would put it in that category.

'HURRICANE,' NAVY SAYS

However, at the Navy Department officials of the Bureau of Aeronautics asserted that a 9 a. m. (Pittsburgh time) the storm off the Virginia Capes had reached "force 10—the most severe recording of a storm." It was described as a "hurricane."

Lines of communication in Virginia and parts of Maryland were disrupted during the morning, and no reports were available of the damage done.

The cruiser Indianapolis, anchored in Hampton Roads, reported to the Navy Department today that the storm in that area had cut off all communication in the Norfolk, Va., district.

The cruiser was attempting to establish radio contact with the destroyer Twiggs, docked at Norfolk, to ascertain the amount of damage done by the storm in that vicinity.

The Indianapolis reported it had been unable to receive replies from the naval station at Norfolk or from any amateur stations when it sought information.

Naval officials expressed considerable apprehension that damage in the area may have been serious.

Advance warnings of the storm reached the capital early in the morning in a drenching rain and high wind.

A large elm opposite the White House on Pennsylvania avenue was blown across the street, its top branches brushing a taxicab.

Another barely missed crashing down on a moving street car in front of the public library. No one was hurt in either incident.

Weightman said that while he expected no winds of prolonged intensity in the national capital a gust reaching 51 miles an hour had been reported during the morning and that there might be a brief interval when the wind would go higher.

Atlantic City Flooded, Walk Ripped by Storm

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Many streets and basements were under two feet of water today and a high tide surf ripped out sections of the boardwalk decking and railing as the Weather Bureau broadcast further northeast storm warnings and continued heavy rains.

The ocean rolled through much of the inlet section carrying with it huge quantities of seaweed and driftwood. Rhode Island avenue sections were impassible.

Water flowed across Main avenue trapping 10 trolley cars. Scores of automobiles were stalled in uptown streets.

The section suffering most was along the beach front from Vermont to Seaside avenues. Here large sections of the boardwalk decking were carried away.

Spray was thrown 40 feet high over the boardwalk.

The total rainfall for four days was 8.89 inches.

The tide reached a new record at high this morning, and the boardwalk was deserted by those who had eagerly watched the breakers last night.

Large sections of the boardwalk at Ocean City were roped off and guards were placed around the Sandwich Building, a two-story frame structure in danger of being washed from its pilings.

CHINA IS borrowing ideas from Russia, or perhaps she had them before Mr. Stalin started.

A Shanghai train ran off the track, thirty to fifty killed. It was decided that some one had been careless, so three Chinese railroad men have had their heads cut off.

Russia inflicts capital punishment for carelessness in operating railroads and other government property, although murder itself is not punished with death unless a government official is the one murdered.

FLANIGAN QUITS, POLITICIANS UP IN AIR

1st Ward Aldermanic Race Forecasts 'Hot Battle'

The unexpected withdrawal yesterday of Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan from the downtown aldermanic fight, left political leaders wondering just what his next move would be. It was the outstanding development in the fast moving political picture of the day and appeared to have been dictated by the fight in the First Ward where Flanigan was not believed to have much chance of winning.

Immediately after the withdrawal, the name of Constable A. M. Maloney, opposing Flanigan with the support of Mayor John S. Herron and State Senator James J. Coyne, bobbed up. It was rumored that Flanigan, who a year ago tried to halt Maloney's appointment as constable, might swing his support to his former enemy.

HOT BATTLE FORECAST

Even with Flanigan out of the race, a hot battle is forecast in the reports that Alderman John J. Verona, of the Third Ward, is backing Frank Casili for alderman in the First, thus forecasting a ticklish situation between the Verona and Coyne factions, since Verona apparently is supporting Mayor Herron.

As things stood today Maloney, Casilli, James Finnell and Leonard A. Civill remain to battle for the post of alderman, Alfred J. Goldstein, another candidate, having dropped out of the fight yesterday.

Altogether there were 203 withdrawals at 5 p. m. yesterday, when the period for filing affidavits of withdrawal ended. Included in this number was James J. Kavanaugh, candidate for Mayor, who headed the Republican ticket.

OTHER WITHDRAWALS

Among the withdrawals were:

Council—John Murphy, Democrat; James P. Barr, Democrat; Frank J. Zak, Republican and Democrat; John J. Riley, Democrat; James P. Bailey, Republican and Democrat; A. D. Brandon, Republican and Democrat; Frank C. Bauer, Republican; James W. Shireman, Democrat; Joseph R. Lynch, Republican and Democrat; John L. Gadd, Democrat; Thomas F. Ashford III, Republican and Independent; H. A. Eigenrauch, Democrat.

Sheriff—Ira T. Williams, Republican; Alan D. Kerr, Democrat. Kerr is the student who joined with Kavanaugh, mayoralty candidate, in the proposed "youth" ticket. He announced his support of Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar.

July Commissioner—William M. Stuart, Republican; Herbert H. Davis, Democrat, and Milton H. McLaughlin, Republican.

In addition to these, Herbert T. Johnson, withdrew on Republican and Democratic tickets for Mayor of Clairton, and Edward M. Skapik withdrew as Democratic candidate for the same office.

been attended by a physician, police said Mrs. Myers replied:

"She always wanted to be babied. We didn't think it was serious."

Margaret Wurmb, daughter of the dead woman by an earlier marriage, confirmed Mrs. Myers' statements, police said.

An aunt, Mrs. Margaret Stanton, of 235 South Millvale avenue, told substantially the same story.

There had been drinking before the quarrel occurred, police said they learned.

Mrs. McCarthy was found wandering in Avondale place by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Weinberg, of 5532 Avondale place. They helped her to the steps of her home, then called police. Mrs. McCarthy resisted efforts of police to persuade her to go to a hospital and finally was taken by force.

Detectives were attempting to trace the phone call which informed them that Mrs. McCarthy was lying unconscious in the street. The man who made it refused to give his name.

Police Memories Good, Women Stay in Jail

Bessie Smith, 26, of 812 South Aiken avenue, and Eleanor Hansell, 26, of 814 Aiken avenue, are trying to explain their way out of the hands of police.

They got in Monday night, after their companion, Jack Flynn, who said he lived in Brookline boulevard, argued with a gasoline station attendant when the attendant demanded his gas back or the money.

Flyn paid for the gas— 94 cents —and was discharged.

But City Detective John Daschbach remembered a telephone call 10 days old. He said today that it was from Bessie Smith, whom he also has heard of as Bessie Kennedy and Florence Wilson. She complained to detectives that a girl named "Eleanor Hansell" had taken two dresses from the Smith apartment.

Miss Smith agreed that all was forgiven, but Daschbach said no — that Patrolman James McKnight remembered being dragged by her car one night three months ago, when he began questioning her on Federal street, North Side. She rolled the window and caught his hand in it, then started her car and dragged him, he told detectives.

FRIENDS TO TELL OF MARITAL CONFLICTS

Slain Wife Revealed Suspicions, Say Prosecutors

By ERNESTINE BALL
International News Service.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 23.—A faithless husband, a husband who might have been lifted bodily from one of the case records of Freud.

A well-balanced, loving, hard-working husband—as perfect a mate as any woman has a right to expect in this vale of matrimonial chance.

Conflicting portraits of David Lamson, youthful and handsome Stanford University press executive, painted by attorneys for the defense and the prosecution, ready for exhibition to the jury when the last talesman had been examined and accepted.

Today David Lamson comes into a courtroom still concerned with the business of finding 12 men and women who would be willing to inflict the death penalty even if certainty of his guilt is based upon circumstances, and not upon the direct testimony of eye-witnesses.

'SURPRISE' LACKING

The prosecution makes it clear by implication that it has no surprise witnesses to give direct evidence that they saw David Lamson kill his pretty wife in the bathroom of their Stanford campus home on the morning of May 30.

But the prosecution, it was reliably learned today, will present men and women connected with Stanford University who will tell on the witness stand that Allene Lamson herself had confided in them that she was worried about Dave, that she was keeping up the facade of a happy home, when back of that it was misgiving, and conflict.

Allene Lamson's brother, Frank Thorpe, says:

"Naturally the people connected with Stanford University don't like to get mixed up in a murder trial. Especially when it concerns their own—for Allene and David were both not only graduates, but employed right there on the campus. Since I came out this time from my home in Lamar, Missouri, to watch the trial I find a great change in opinion on the Stanford campus.

"They are not bloodthirsty, our Stanford friends—any more than I am—but they want to see justice done. Some of them now feel it their duty to tell a few of the things they know that might throw light on the motives for the murder of my sister."

ODDS FOR ACQUITTAL

The defense, on the other hand, comes into court today knowing that in those devious hangouts where men will gamble on life and death the odds are three to one in favor of acquittal for David Lamson. "He may be guilty but there isn't enough evidence against him," is the line of chatter that fixes the gambling odds.

If reverberations from the gossip of the street, undercurrents in the courtroom, make his heart beat alternately with hope and foreboding, David Lamson has yet to give outward evidence of it. He is tense, but seems to have himself sternly in hand.

A man from Mars who had never seen David Lamson's picture in a newspaper, would have some difficulty in selecting the man charged with murder in the group sitting at the table under the pleasant but firm eye of Presiding Judge Robert R. Syer. His own defense attorneys, the representatives from the District Attorney's office, are a little more relaxed. There is no air of quiet desperation about them, but otherwise David Lamson, accused of the murder of his lovely young wife, Allene, just might be another brilliant Stanford law graduate sitting at the counsel table.

SLEEP MALADY TOLL NOW 19

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Science rallied today to an intentified fight against sleeping sickness, mysterious malady which has killed 19 persons and attacked 182 others in St. Louis and vicinity.

A government expert rushed here from Washington and went to work in an attempt to determine if insects spread the disease. Meanwhile, as three deaths in the last 24 hours swelled the fatality list here to 19, the disease broke out in five other Mid-Western communities.

Deaths from this virus disease, which science knows so little about, have been reported at Wichita, Kan., Kansas City, Kan., and Warrensburg, Mo., while the illness of patients at Maryville, Mo., and Muskogee, Okla., have been diagnosed as encephalitis.

Army Officers Trade Wives for Love's Sake

Blonde and Brunette Divorce, Remarry In Friendly Style

Says Capt. William B. Bradford:

"It is natural for a man to fall in love with another man's wife and for a woman to fall in love with another woman's husband."

Thus he explained why Mrs. Stuart MacDonald, a brunette, became Mrs. Bradford, and his own wife, a blonde, became the wife of Maj. MacDonald.

All was accomplished in a friendly manner by the two couples well known at Fort Leavenworth. Together, Mrs. MacDonald and Mrs. Bradford went to Bentonville, Ark., where they established residence to take advantage of the 90-day divorce law. They lived in the same house. They were represented by the same attorney.

After Lee Seamster, judge in Chancery, granted the decrees, the two husbands appeared to complete the strange marital exchange. Together they went to the County Clerk's offices and secured marriage licenses. Then both couples were married by Frank Lloyd, justice of the peace.

Capt. Bradford and the former Mrs. MacDonald have returned to Fort Leavenworth. Maj. MacDonald and the former Mrs. Bradford have gone to a civilian camp in Pennsylvania where he is stationed.

HEIRESS ENDS 6-DAY MARRIAGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Dark-eyed Janet Snowden, heiress to oil millions, tearfully looked to the law today to undo her six-day marriage to an Italian prince—a marriage she calls "a mistake."

Less than a week after a whirlwind courtship culminated in the 19-year-old society girl's elopement and marriage to Prince Di Siriggnano Don Francesco Caravita, the romance came to a sudden end yesterday.

Lugging their baggage, she and her maid went to bachelor girls' quarters in a hotel. She said, weeping:

"I admit it was all a mistake. I have left the prince and I shall not go back."

She said she would seek an annulment or, failing that, a divorce from her young husband, a noted Italian sportsman.

Mussolini Pulls Cannon, Hero To Soldiers

GARESSIO, Italy, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini made himself a hero today by lending a sturdy hand to assist in pulling a cannon up a hill toward Bricchetto during the army meneuvers.

He arrived by automobile while artillerymen of the 3rd Regiment were struggling to drag the gun into position.

"Ill give you a hand, too," the Premier said. He tugged sturdily while a sergeant shouted, "Heave!" and the gun sped up the hill. Thereupon the artillerymen cheered him.

The Premier also led the 67th Infantry on a march of some distance, making them speed up to his rapid pace.

EDITOR SUICIDE, OFFICIALS HINT

COSHOCTON, O., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Investigators leaned to a theory of suicide today in the death of Fred S. Wallace, militant newspaper editor, whose weighted body was found in the Muskingum River last night.

Dr. F. W. Craig, county coroner, who, with Prosecutor Russell E. Lyons, began a study of circumstances surrounding the 61-year-old publisher's disappearance three days ago, said self-destruction was indicated.

They pointed to the fact that at the Coshocton Tribune office employes reported finding the editor-publisher's bill-fold and other valuable after he had disappeared.

Student Charged With Killing Girl

BRYAN, Tex., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Ervin Conway, 23, today had been charged with murder for the death of his fiancee, Miss Ladelle Hammond, 21, whom he had reported slain by robbers June 16. The charge was lodged after the body of Miss Hammond had been exhumed by Texas Rangers.

Conway and the girl both were students at Baylor University.

Findings of an autopsy made after the body was exhumed formed the basis for the murder complaint, officers said.

"It was a strange request, but I've known him so long that I trusted him implicitly."

2 FOUND IN AUTO

This morning a motorist saw Kerr's coupe parked on the wrong side of the Sandy Creek road. The couple in it seemed asleep at first glance, a bobbed-haired, blonde woman slumped against a well-dressed man.

The motorist, W. H. Johnston, of Allegheny River boulevard, investigated and was unable to rouse the couple. He called Police Chief Sam Bickerstaff, of Penn Township, who notified county detectives.

On the floor of the car was a capsule which still held some white powder. A box such as druggists use for pills lay there, with Kerr's name upon it. There was a thermos bottle with a teaspoonful of some clear liquid still in it, and an empty water bottle.

WIFE ON VACATION

Kerr's wife, Mrs. Margaret Kerr, is in Syracuse, N. Y., on a vacation. She was expected to return in a week.

His only other relative, his grandmother, Mrs. Ella Weidel, at the Taylor way address, said:

"He was always well-behaved; I don't know what could have made him do a thing like that."

Kerr was a graduate of the School of Pharmacy at Pitt. He formerly lived in the Homewood-Brushton district. In 1929 he pleaded guilty in Federal Court to violation of the liquor laws in connection with the operation of his drugstore, and was fined $200.

With the bodies of Mrs. Gradler and Kerr in the morgue, Coroner W. J. McGregor warned employes to keep a distance from the deadly fumes caused by the poisons.

RAGGED BOY'S LONG HUNT FOR MOTHER ENDS

Has Yet to Learn She Died Here; Million Given Kinfolk

A story challenging fiction's best came today from the trembling lips of a grime-covered, hungry boy whose 5,000-mile-long search for a mother he never knew came to an end in Pittsburgh.

The arrival of Clarence McCullough, 18-year-old Oregon lad, fatigued and near collapse from hunger, at the Missing Persons Bureau forged what the bureau believes to be the last link in a strange story of sorrow and fortune that broke upon the front pages of newspapers March 23, 1924. On that day Jane McCullough, silver-haired and veiled in mystery, died in a charity ward of the Allegheny General Hospital, leaving a valuable estate, according to Mrs. Ida Forsaith, of the Missing Persons Bureau.

SEES MOTHER ONCE

Clarence McCullough was only 9 years old when this happened, but he already was lying awake nights in his foster mother's home in Oregon drawing mental pictures of the kindly gray old lady who had flashed into his life only a few months before—the mother he never knew.

In 1923 Clarence was walking along a country road near his home when an automobile stopped beside him and a young woman called to him:

"She is your mother."

She was pointing to an elderly, richly dressed woman sitting beside her in the machine, according to Clarence's story to Mrs. Forsaith.

LENGTHY SEARCH

Puzzled and frightened, the boy ran home with the story and learned that his mother had brought him as a baby to the woman he then called "Mom." His mother was Jane McCullough, Clarence said today, just before he was put to bed in the downtown Y. M. C. A. His words before falling off to sleep were:

"I'll search for her to the end of the earth."

He hasn't been told that a Mrs. Jane McCullough, who gave her address as Watertown, Conn., died in a hospital ward here and that the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, administrator of her estate, has disposed of it to relatives in various parts of the country.

POLO PLAYER'S ACCUSER HIDES

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Miss Eugenia Rose, the pretty Evanston nurse who accused Cecil Smith, famous polo star, of dragging her from his car and attacking her, remained in hiding today in the face of a warning from Magistrate W. R. Brightmire, of Evanston, that there must be no delay in bringing the case to trial.

To intimations that the charges might be dropped, the magistrate replied that he would not permit the state to nolle prosse the charges.

The magistrate tried ineffectually to reach Miss Rose today. Assistant State's Attorney Eugene Wachowski also tried to get in touch with Miss Rose. She was said to be at a Chicago hotel with her parents who had come from Cooperstown, N. D., to advise her.

PARK FOUNDER TO BE BURIED ON HILLTOP

Mrs. McCaskey to Rest In Mountain Plot State Set Aside

So that she can be "nearer to her dear ones" on the perennial occasions of the religious pageant of Dawn, Mrs. Clara May McCaskey, invalid pioneer of the Hemlock Builders, who died at her home here today, will be buried Friday atop Round Top Mountain in State Hemlock Park, near Harrisburg.

Mrs. McCaskey and her husband, J. L. McCaskey, a deputy collector of internal revenue here, were founders of the Hemlock Builders. Mr. McCaskey is president of the State Hemlock Park Association.

Founded in 1927, the association was formed to develop state park land in 40,000 acres of wilderness comprising parts of Mifflin, Juniata, Perry, Franklin and Cumberland counties. Mrs. McCaskey originated the idea of the Pageant of Dawn, an all-night religious service held annually in which thousands of devout followers participate. Last year's service attracted 20,000 persons, from all parts of the state.

An invalid for the past six years, Mrs. McCaskey has never missed a single pageant. Last year she lay on an improvised couch during the all-night devotional exercises.

Her last wish was that she be buried atop old "Round Top." State authorities authorized the association to set aside a memorial plot, and on this ground, 900 square feet, the founder's body will be laid to rest with fitting ceremonies Friday morning. Services also will be held at the McCaskey home tomorrow night.

CHILD WHIPPED INTO EXILE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—A motherless 10-year-old's story of being whipped into exile from home resulted in the detention today of his father, E. W. Wiles, a junk dealer.

The boy, Calvin Bennie Wiles, found near here, told officers his father had taken him 15 miles from town two weeks ago and, after whipping him with a "blacksnake," warned him never to return home.

Jailed a few hours later, the father said he had "heard" that Calvin ran away from home, and added:

"A man can't help it if his kids run off, can he?"

Calvin said he lay by the side of the road "with my back so sore I couldn't sleep much," during the first night of his alleged exile and for a week slept in the woods, begging food at farmhouses. Later, he was sheltered by a farmer.

Authorities said the child, whose back was scarred, might be offered for adoption. No charges have been filed against the father.

TURNER SWORN AS POSTMASTER

William M. Turner, Burgess and leading Democrat of Wilkinsburg, today was sworn in as Postmaster of Pittsburgh, succeeding James B. Anderson.

In the office of his political friend, David L. Lawrence, Collector of Internal Revenue, Turner took the oath from J. Wood Clark, Clerk of Federal Courts.

The crowd that packed the office included Mrs. Turner and the three Turner children, Dr. William Turner, of Harrisburg; Mary Turner, 6, and Richard, 8. The two youngsters and their mother made a hurried trip from the Turner cottage at Ocean City, N. J., last night for the ceremony.

The new postmaster said he would not assume charge of the office until tomorrow, by which time the postal inspectors will have finished their check on the records. His appointment will come before the Senate next January for confirmation.

Among the friends of Turner present were Charles Sperling, Mrs. Etta Callender Hurtt, William G. Ewing and F. W. Weir.

HAZARDVILLE, Conn., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Miss Lois Covil Gordon, a member of the staff of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and Lieut. Commander William John Kossler, of Pittsburgh, were married last night at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Gordon.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marian J. Creeger, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Middletown.

M'ARDLE FLAYS POLITICAL RULE OF POLICE

on McArdle as a means of defeating the Herron organization.

McArdle and Tabor referred to the fact that state police had been compelled to come into the city to close the Monaca Club, across the street from a city police station. McArdle declared the majority of city policemen were earnest in their desire to do their duty, but that political dominance hampered the force. He promised an end to this practice if elected.

PLEDGES STREET PROGRAM

One of the important parts of his platform dealt with a system of street improvements which he said would stop the migration of citizens to sections in Allegheny County outside of Pittsburgh, and he promised the interest of the city administration in retaining present industries and interesting new enterprises in locating here.

He urged city-built incinerating plants for garbage reduction, to be operated on contracts, with the collection of garbage and rubbish also done on contract with "real" competitive bidding.

McArdle said he would insist upon an audit of city finances, and declared that he wanted no "yes men" elected with him to City Council. He asked support for the entire city ticket, William A. Magee being the fifth councilmanic candidate.

The meeting, which was transferred from the headquarter's room to another auditorium in the hotel because of the number which attended, listened attentively to the mayoralty candidate, and cheered and shouted approbation when Tabor and Waddell flayed corruption in government, election frauds and political interference with the police.

URGES CITY AUDIT

In his speech McArdle said:

"It is my belief that an administration beginning to function can succeed only to the extent that it has facts regarding past experience, practices and results upon which to formulate a basis for its action.

"It is further my belief that these facts can be obtained only by a thorough audit of the affairs of the city, which audit shall be of such a nature as to develop any and all facts that are pertinent to a clear and positive understanding of the city's condition and the facts responsible for that condition, and that to such an extent as may be necessary it should take on investigational and inquisitorial aspects.

"Looking forward to the cost of the city with respect to the public improvements, involving expenditures of monies raised either by taxation or in the form of assessment on each private property specially benefited, I believe a great need of the city, when financial conditions permit, is to engage in a more extensive improvement of streets in residential sections of the city, and the building of the necessary sewage systems, both sanitary and storm drainage, wherever such systems are needed. I recommend this program as distinguished from any large program of major improvements to which the city from time to time has committed itself in the past.

POPULATION LOST

"I believe that our failure to adequately improve our streets and sewer systems in the partially developed sections of the city has contributd largely to inviting development beyond the city limits, with the resultant loss of taxable property to the city and the loss of much potential business to the commercial interests of the city.

"In recent months the City of Pittsburgh, with a police department of approximately 1,000 men, maintained at an annual cost of approximately $2,000,000, has been subjected to the humiliation and embarrassment of having state police, at the behest of a judge of the Common Pleas Court, and of private citizens, come into the City of Pittsburgh and perform functions which were clearly duties of the Department of Safety of this city, in cases of law violations, existence of which it would not be possible for the Department of Public Safety to plead ignorance.

HITS AT RACKETS

"My purpose in referring to this condition is to lead to the statement which I now make, that when inaugurated as a Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh, I shall begin action which will divorce the Department of Public Safety, as well as every other department, from any relationship with any illicit activity, and restore it to its proper function of protecting the public in all its various interests.

"And in the enforcement of its laws the suppression and punishment of all forms of so-called racketeering.

"Mine will not be a government of ward chairman, and no responsible public officer under my control will be forced to surrender any prerogative of his office, nor to shirk any responsibility under the pretext of political expediency.

"It is as much the duty of the Department of Public Safety to bring to justice persons guilty of election fraud as it is any other form of crime. And the personnel of that department will be charged as to their fitness in the services in which they are engaged, as much as by their attitude toward that particular and treasonable brand of crime as toward any other."

FAVORS HOME RULE

McArdle said the city administration should interest itself in legislation proposed at Harrisburg, and should act to bring home rule for Pittsburgh. He approved the bill to permit the city to vote on the city manager plan, but did not say whether or not he favored the system.

It is also the duty of the city administration, he said, to act in its corporate capacity in representnig protesting consumers in their contests with utilities. He pledged himself to strengthen the civil service laws and to see that this protection is extended to faithful workers to free them from political interference.

Witherow insisted he would campaign actively for McArdle and the whole ticket, and paid high tribute to the capacity of the mayoralty candidate. He said the campaign would not be one of kid glove discussions. The campaign should not be looked at with dispair, he said, but with the conviction that the election of McArdle and the Council ticket could be brought about.

J. Garfield Houston, chairman of the McArdle campaign committee, presided, and scored the city administration, which he said was dominated by "Senator Coyne and his gang of political pirates whose purpose is to make political plunder of public office, by fair means or foul." He continued:

"Judging by the recent indictments returned it would seem we are justified in saying they are mostly foul."

U. S. MARSHAL WALTER W. MEYER — ATTORNEY J. HILARY KEENAN

MR. KEENAN LEARNING ABOUT HIS NEW JOB FROM THE MAN HE'S TO SUCCEED SEPT. 1

NEW MARSHAL VISITS POST

Attorney J. Hilary Keenan, of Greensburg, recently appointed United States Marshal for Western Pennsylvania, yesterday visited the Federal Building and met United States Marshal Walter M. Meyer, whom he will succeed on September 1. Meyer explained many of the duties of the Marshal's office.

Mr. Keenan said he does not contemplate immediate changes in the personnel of the office upon assuming charge, and said he invited Meyer to remain as his chief deputy. Mr. Meyer has been marshal since the death of Marshal J. C. McGregor six months ago, under whom he served as chief deputy.

Mr. Keenan is chairman of the Democratic Committee of Westmoreland County, and is a candidate on the Democratic ticket for nomination of judge of Common Pleas Court in that county.

2 Brothers Drown Trying to Save Sister

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Thirteen-year-old Beatrice Berger's attempt to swim in the swirling waters of Big Creek, near Lehighton, cost the lives of her brother, Ivan, 16, and Charles Hoffman, 17. All were from Palmerton.

The rain-swollen current swept the girl off her feet. In trying to save her, first Ivin and the Hoffman drowned. Jack Kressley, 17, of Walcksville, finally rescued the girl.

LAWYER TO TELL NEW COURT AIM

Stepping out of his role of candidate for the new juvenile court bench for an hour, Attorney Gustav L. Schramm will describe the inception and aims of the new court in a "non-campaign" speech before the Kiwanis Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel at noon tomorrow.

The men's section of the committee of 100 that will aid Schramm in his fight for the Juvenile Court seat was announced yesterday. On it are more than 40 business, professional and educational leaders including A. H. Burchfield, president of Joseph Horne Company; Dr. M. K. McKay, of the University of Pittsburgh, Sidney A. Teller, director of Irene Kaufmann Settlement; and Frank J. Lanahan, civic leader. Others on the committee are:

Pre-War Stepping Ousts Hot-Cha Dancing

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The hot cha is going out of the dance and the languorous steps of pre-war America are coming back.

Such was the prediction last night of President Leo Kehl, Madison, Wis., at the American Dancing Masters' convention. He said:

"The day of the lickety-split dance step is done. The jazz age is definitely over. We are returning to the essential quality of dancing—that of grace. The American people are beginning again to think in terms of gentle and decorus entertainment."

NIECE MAY HELP ACCUSED UNCLE

Denying that he and his niece, Dolores Broggi, 17, had disappeared, detectives say, Andrew Duncheck, 31, of Gallatin, today was slated for a hearing before Alderman Thomas Flanigan on charges brought by the girl's father, James Broggi, of Gallatin.

County Detective Michael McDermott said Dolores would testify for Duncheck.

The pair was reported missing last Friday and the girl was returned home Sunday night. Duncheck was arrested in Monessen yesterday on a warrant obtained by the girl's father.

PENSION FUND TO SUE COUNTY

Members of the Allegheny County Pension Fund, composed of the County Commissioners and four other persons, will enter mandamus proceedings within two weeks to force the Commissioners to appropriate $75,000 to the fund to meet this year's retirement payments.

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield is the only one of the three Commissioners willing to make the appropriation.

When the payment proposal was brought up yesterday, Barr and McGovern immediately refused it. Then Mansfield, as chairman of the pension fund, called a meeting of the retirement board, which consists of the Commissioners, Controller Robert G. Woodside, Treasurer Robert S. Cain and Edward H. Simon and William Frasher. It was decided to file suit against the Commissioners.

Evans to Speak At Three Rallies

Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans, candidate for Common Pleas Court, is scheduled to speak tonight on "A New Deal in Court Procedure" at rallies of the Scandanavian Political Society of McKeesport in Malta Temple, Locust street, and at East Park way, North Side.

Attorney Evans also will speak at a meeting of the Ex-Servicemen's League, McKeesport.

PLATFORM TOLD BY TABOR

Edward O. Tabor, Citizens League Council candidate, last night outlined a six-point platform on which he seeks election. It reads:

"I believe and shall insist upon a wise expenditure of public moneys as the surest means of economy.

"I shall work for decent elections.

"For freedom from bosses and machine rule with its padded payrolls, vicious patronage and its spoils.

"For a publicity which will make and keep every officer individually responsible for every official act, and

"For a searching audit of all of our city's business."

Tabor said that voters should retain supervision over men, once they have been elected, and said:

"I say to you, deliberately, that if Mayor Kline and Bertram Succop had been held to strict accountability from the beginning, if you and I had insisted on a rigid discipline from the start, Mayor Kline and Bertram Succop would be thanking us today. They would have been kept right."

TRADE GROUPS, UNIONS IN NRA DRIVE HERE

Policing of the NRA Blue Eagle's conquest of Pittsburgh is now in the hands of more than 70 trade associations and unions.

What virtually amounts to this developed from a meeting of the strategy board of the Chamber of Commerce recovery campaign committee today when the trade groups were asked to supply volunteers to bring approximately 12,000 non-code signers under the wings of the Blue Eagle.

This army of volunteer NRA salesmen—for it will have at least 500 recruits—will have a vanguard of Boy Scouts and a rear guard of more than 1,000 women.

SCOUT SURVEY

The Scouts will launch a two-day survey of all downtown employers Monday. The names of non-code signers, estimated at 12,000, will be turned over to the "salesmen" next Wednesday afternoon at a mass meeting in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

A concerted effort to pledge all employers to the NRA cause will be made the next day. And it will be up to the representatives of the several unions and associations to "put their houses in order," according to Frank C. Harper, secretary-manager of the chamber and secretary of the general campaign committee.

Coincident with the main drive, a county-wide campaign along similar lines will be carried out by the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce and the various boards of trades.

WOMEN ORGANIZE

The nucleus of a women's "buy NRA" campaign corps was organized today at a meeting called by Mrs. Oliver Haller, president of the Congress of Women's Clubs. It was agreed that 1,000 women can be assured for a house-to-house canvass to pledge the women of the city to patronize only merchants displaying the Blue Eagle. Their work will start within two or three weeks.

A meeting of the general recovery campaign committee will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock to make final arrangements for next week's drive.

A general meeting of the Ice Manufacturers of Pennsylvania will be held in the Chamber of Commerce Friday to consider a code of fair competition. Preliminary details of a code outlined at a meeting of the Ice Manufacturers of Allegheny County yesterday called for a 40-hour maximum work week and minimum wages of 32½ cents an hour after next October 15.

The Congress of Hungarian Churches and Societies in Pittsburgh today announced the Magyar-American people had adopted a resolution supporting President Roosevelt's undertaking.

AL SMITH NRA BOOSTER

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Alfred E. Smith, who two months ago was an outspoken critic of the proposed recovery legislation, today was in the front rank of those enlisting America under the Blue Eagle of the NRA.

Smith inaugurated a series of radio speeches by prominent men last night. He reassured those who regard the movement with foreboding by pointing out its limitations. He said:

"Do not forget that the President has only a limited congressional mandate, that the whole machinery of the National Industrial Recovery Act has less than two years to operate under the law, that the licensing power has less than a year of life before it and, as a matter of fact, up to this time has not been used at all.

"Threats, intimidation, compulsion, boycotts, black lists and suppression of opinion were never contemplated by the National Industrial Recovery Act and therefore have no rightful place in this picture."

Golf Body Draws Code for Caddies

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Golf caddies would come under a code drawn up by officers and directors of the Club Managers' Association of America for submission to the Recovery Administration today.

The code would forbid caddies under 16 years of age from working more than three hours a day, or during school hours, but would leave the older boys under the limitations of the blanket employmen agreement.

Blue Eagle Taboo As Trade Name

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The Blue Eagle, symbol of the National Recovery campaign, may not be used by a private firm as a trade name, the Oklahoma Attorney General's office ruled yesterday.

Miss Una Lee Roberts, Assistant Secretary of State, was advised to refuse a charter to a concern seeking to incorporate under the name, "Blue Eagle Oil and Refining Company, Inc."

Cleveland Railway Signs Code, Ups Pay

CLEVELAND, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—A horizontal wage increase of five per cent for all 4,000 employes of the Cleveland Railway Company was announced yesterday as the transportation company signed the transit code. An increase of three cents an hour for motormen and conductors on the Shaker Heights Rapid Transit Line also was announced.

Roosevelt Stole My Thunder, Says Huey

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(Universal.)—Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, interviewed in his suite at Hotel New Yorker, declared President Roosevelt had "stolen his thunder," but that he was "glad of it and more power to him." He continued:

"The trouble is Roosevelt hasn't taken all of my ideas; just part of them. I'm about 100 yards ahead of him."

FORM COUNCIL OF EMPLOYERS

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Industrialists claiming to represent 500 trade organizations of the nation yesterday organized a national council as a clearing house for information under the National Recovery Administration.

The council was defined by A. C. Rees, permanent chairman, as formed to present "the employers' side of the picture" to the recovery administration, to keep members informed of code developments and to assist both the government and industrialists to co-operate under the various codes.

Rees emphasized that the formation of the council was not for the purpose of attacking unionism but to better assist the various industries solve the problems peculiar to their groups.

Reports drifting from the parley room that the meeting was one of the American plan open shop conference were denied by John Lovett, manager of the Michigan Manufacturers' Association. Legal aspects of the recovery act were discussed, however.

LEISURE TIME FACES 'PROBE'

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Appointment of a committee to study and report on the proper use of the extra leisure time accruing to workers as a result of the NRA program, was announced yesterday by Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the New York City NRA Committee.

He said:

"With hundreds of thousands of workers all over the United States about to experience a sudden shortening of their working week, due to the NRA, giving them in many cases high as 35 additional hours of leisure, the work of this new committee assumes top rank in importance."

Adding that the committee would use greater New York as a vast laboratory, Whalen said "this is to be a scientific experiment from which we hope to derive formulae that can be employed in every city, town and village in the United States."

2,000 Virginia Coal Miners on Strike

NORTON, Va., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—A strike called as the result of differences growing out of the unionization movement in the St. Charles field kept more than 2,000 miners away from coal mines today in Lee County.

The walkout, reported to be the first in the history of the Southwest Virginia coal fields, affects practically the entire St. Charles field. Approximately 9,000 miners in the Virginia field, however, are at work.

800 Millinery Workers Strike

CLEVELAND, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—As 800 millinery workers walked out on strike yesterday, a spokesman hurled a charge that some manufacturers had instituted a "quota" system of production to nullify provisions of the NRA code he said they signed.

Fourteen shops are affected by the walkout of workers.

SOMETIMES storekeeping is fun—here's a little look behind scenes. Last Spring, you know, the Gimbel Stores went out and bought $2,800,000 worth of goods at the lowest prices in history. Each Department buyer was given a little black book in which he listed his "holdings." (He had not bought "on margin" so had no sleepless nights. Rather, his stock was in the "safe-deposit box"—Gimbels warehouse to us.) Beginning May 15th each man was instructed to check advancing prices of his holdings daily and make an entry in his little black book. Well, as days passed into weeks and weeks into months some of the boys got so proud of themselves that we had to get some patent-back slappers for them. That's that. We're all as happy as can be that we have the goods at the "old lows" for you.

MILLION JOBS SEEN IN RETAIL STAGGER PLAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Employment of approximately 1,000,000 persons in the next 30 days if retail stores were put on 40-44-48 hour weeks, according to hours of operation, was predicted today before Recovery Administration officials by Paul Nystrom, spokesman for the Limited Price Variety Stores Association.

Appearing for his association, in which are the 5-and-10-cent stores and the 1 cent to $1 commodity group, in the hearing on the proposed retail code calling for a 44-hour week, Nystrom urged staggering the maximum hours of work on the basis of the number of hours in which stores were open.

STAGGER SCHEDULE

If the staggered schedule he submitted were adopted, Nystrom said, stores would be forced to re-employ 1,000,000 persons to maintain the same service they have been giving.

He said a maximum 40-hour week for stores open less than 52 hours would reduce hours of work from 4 to 5 weekly, counting luncheon periods, and require an increase of up to 14 per cent in employment.

Nystrom appeared after other witnesses had assailed small storekeepers and family-operated establishments as creating bad competitive conditions in the retail industry.

A. Lincoln Wisler, representing a Chicago retail association, said merchants with investments of $500 or less were undermining business in every neighborhood. He said there were 425,000 of these.

Other testimony called for the same working hours for stores selling the same types of merchandise. Drug stores that handle a varied assortment of hardware or clothing were particularly assailed. They are seeking longer working hours than the 44 set in the retail code.

ASKS 30-HOUR WEEK

A 30-hour week was called for by I. Teetlebaum of the New York Retail Furniture Association. He said the business that would be gained through re-employment and greater purchasing power would meet the added costs of operation.

How to work out an arrangement that would be fair both to small and large retailers was one of the chief difficulties of the Recovery Administration in arriving at a final shaping of the retail code.

Among the phases of this many-sided problem were the completion of the large store with the small one; the competition of stores employing workers with those family operated; the competition of the chain store in the small town with the privately operated establishment.

There were also the individual problems of the small stores which could ill afford to increase employment with resulting cost increases, and the competition of one variety of stores, men's furnishings for instance, with, say, drug stores, that sell some article of wearing apparel.

SMALL STORE ATTACK

In attacking small storekeepers, Wisler said:

"These small storekeepers are some o fthe chiselers who are undermining business in every locality and neighborhood. The unfair competition that exists today in retailing comes from this type of merchant. He never joins his Chamber of Commerce, Trade Association or Business Men's Association.

"These merchants are a cancerous growth who have been gnawing at the vitals of good, honest and fair retailing, and while I do not know what can be done about them the return of employment and prosperity will greatly depend upon what our government plans to do about these unfair retail competitors.' '

Home Owners Denied Pauper Exonerations

HARRISBURG, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The Justice Department today ruled that school boards may not exonerate property owners or their property from payment of school taxes on the plea of pauperism.

The opinion, asked by the Department of Public Instruction, stated, however, that tax collectors may be exonerated from liability to collect such taxes.

Browbeating Business

would have been laid if this process were permitted to continue further WITHOUT AGAIN DISTURBING THE RELATIONSHIPS by lifting urban wage rates too quickly.

After new relationship HAD BEEN ESTABLISHED, the adoption of minimum wage and maximum hour schedules through the National Recovery Administration would have given stability to the restored economic situation.

But if private property is to endure, progress must be made through a real partnership between government and business, as President Roosevelt indicated, and not through a policy of bullying and browbeating business, which merely revives the doubt and fear which create business depression.

FURTHERMORE, theorists at Washington should bear in mind that business is motivated by profits.

If profits are to result, business must not be asked to adjust itself to radically new social conditions too rapidly.

Sufficient time should be allowed to work out higher technical standards of efficiency in order to absorb higher wage rates.

As for hours, business should not be expected to reach the millenium overnight.

Ultimately, the goal should be to shorten hours sufficiently to give all workers as much leisure as is consistent with a high average standard of living under the improved technology in the power age.

Codes should be carefully and deliberately worked out first for the fundamental industries, and then others should be gradually brought in line with them.

A RE-INTERPRETATION OF THE OBJECTIVE OF THE "NEW DEAL," which is to restore economic balance and to give all classes participation in the promise of American life, would be a constructive move.

CODE ADOPTED BY LANDLORDS

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—After two days of debate, a proposed code for operation under the NRA was adopted last night by the newly organized National Apartment House Owners' Association.

Before approval of the code, the association drew up a constitution and by-laws and elected Charles A. Mullenix, president. Lawrence J. Efferth was chosen secretary and S. Spira, assistant secretary. They are of Cleveland.

The code contains a clause of fair practices which the apartment owners believe will eliminate many injurious methods of doing business. These include the reduction of rents below the cost of operation and soliciting of tenants with lower rent "bait."

Employment of persons under 16 is forbidden under the code. Minimum wages are to be $15 a week.

Salvation Army Under Blue Eagle

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Paid employes of the Salvation Army have been placed under the provisions of the President's reemployment agreement.

Evangeline Booth, commander in chief for the United States, advised President Roosevelt in a letter made public yesterday that the Army had signed the agreement for its 2,000 religious and social institutions throughout the country.

Savant Sees Need Of 'Go-Getters' Under NRA

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Regardless of how the National Recovery Administration works out, Prof. Edmund D. McGarry, University of Buffalo savant, believes that the merchant who sits back waiting for business to roll in is due for serious disillusionment.

He sees intense competition for business on a higher level.

Regarding the depression, Prof. McGarry believes the nation is approaching the zero hour in its fight for economic recovery.

Speaking at the annual retail conference last night, he said:

"We face victory or possible chaos. This is no time for any one to indulge in rosy dreams of what NRA will do; it is time for every man to get set for a long, hard pull—and keep pulling."

NRA ASKS BANK CREDIT EASING FOR BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—In the National Recovery Administration mill today for development was an enterprise of Administrator Hugh S. Johnson to loosen, through the Federal Reserve and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the commercial bank credit necessary to finance higher overhead which factories, plants and stores are assuming under NRA compacts. Fresh credit has not yet become available, he said yesterday, but he was confident that a break would be made.

Overnight, the administration had acted to keep local Blue Eagle drive committees from assuming authority to remove Blue Eagle posters from windows of merchants violating terms of the voluntary agreement.

Thomas S. Hammond, director of the campaign, issued an official statement that local groups have not that power, but are invited to try to get the violator to mend his ways voluntarily.

If he refuses, the question must be referred to Washington.

Hammond also denounced persecution of merchants who operate their stores long hours, pointing out that local agreements to limit store hours are contrary to the NRA purpose, which is to make more employment by cutting workers' hours and hiring more people to round out the remaining time.

FORD WORKERS JOIN UNION

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—An attempt to unionize the Ford Motor Company plant at Edgewater was launched today with at least parial success indicated.

After some 300 of the 2,000 employes at the plant had listened to three American Federation of Labor organizers here last night, it was announced that about 75 per cent had signed union pledges.

One of the speakers, Charles Jennings, of Jersey City, an A. F. of L. organizer, said that a number of open shop auto plants in Detroit are being unionized and that unions are recognized in Ford plants in foreign countries.

The workers were reminded that under Section 7 of the NRA blanket code, the right of employes to organize without fear of losing their jobs, is recognized.

STRIKE CALLED AT PITTSBURGH COAL MINES

Strikes tied up the Pressed Steel Car plant and threatened to spread to all operations of the Pittsburgh Coal Company today.

Montour No. 10 mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company at Library was on strike again, the fourth time in four weeks.

Attempts were being made to strike every Pittsburgh Coal mine in the district in a sympathy movement which had its origin last night in Library where 1,100 men voted to walk out as the result of the firing of two men supplanted, according to company officials, by union checkweighmen. Indignation meetings were planned at nearly a score of other mines today and strike votes are to be taken.

COMPLAIN TO NRA

Additional complaints have been filed with the NRA coal mediation board against the Pittsburgh Coal Company. Discrimination is charged against 25 men allegedly discharged because of union activities.

John F. Dewey, federal labor conciliator, was due in Pittsburgh from Washington today to investigate the charges and seek a return of the men to work until the NRA labor board had time to act in accordance with the terms of the strike truce.

Approximately 1,000 pickets, half of them sympathizers, staged an orderly demonstration at the gates of the Pressed Steel Car Company, McKees Rocks, this morning. The strike, called by the Steel and Metal Workers Industrial Union, went into its second day with the men determined and company officials obdurate over recognition of the union.

DEPUTIES CALLED

Eight deputy sheriffs under Chief Deputy B. V. Coffey reinforced a handful of Stowe Township and McKees Rocks police, but the strikers permitted nobody to enter the plant except the boiler tenders.

The strike of Vang Construction Company employes on government contract jobs in the Allegheny River spread this morning from Lock No. 3, at Cheswick, to Lock No. 2, at Highland Park. The strikers claim more than 200 of the 400 normally employed on the job on each shift have joined the strike. The company claims that only a few men walked out.

The dispute centers around wages. Vang pays 30 cents an hour for labor and 50 cents an hour for carpenters. George Vang, president of the company, declared he is prevented from paying any more by his contract with the government.

STATE SCHOOLS FACE CRISIS IN FALL

HARRISBURG, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—With Pennsylvania's public schools confronting a record enrollment and serious financial difficulties, Gov. Pinchot today said "co-operation of everybody concerned will be necessary to keep them all open for full terms."

More than 2,100,000 boys and girls—last year's total—will go back to school September 5, the Governor said, with high schoo' enrollment in many districts increased by children forced from industry by the National Recovery Administration codes.

COURSES SLASHED

The returning pupils, the Governor continued, will find many courses discontinued through lack of funds. He said:

"Much worse than that, in some rural sections a number of boys and girls may be deprived of opportunity to attend high school at all. Certain school districts are unable to pay high school tuition to other districts; in fact, some have not paid last year's bills. The parents of these rural boys and girls cannot pay the tuition themselves. Certainly this is concrete evidence that every school district ought to be large enough to support a real high school."

The Governor said available information shows the schools in all of the 2,587 districts will start the coming term though "at present it appears that some of the financially distressed districts will be unable to go through the year unless special aid is provided."

BURDEN GROWS

He listed these factors which he said "combine to make the public education burden this year heavier than usual":

Children between the ages of 14 and 16 years—15,000 of them—forced into full-time schools by NRA codes prohibiting child labor.

"Thousands" of high school graduates, returning for post graduate courses because of lack of employment.

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The Roosevelt administration today had come to the rescue of the American educational system.

With thousands of schools closed and millions of children facing inadequate educational facilities, the administration announced a program of affording assistance to unemployed teachers by giving them work relief in closed or drastically curtailed schools.

Harry P. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, announced through Louis Howe, secretary to the President, that state relief agencies had been authorized to pay relief wages to unemployed teachers.

They will be assigned to regular school officials to teach in the hundreds of rural schools closed through lack of state educational funds, and in those schools where courses of study were cut because the teachers could not be paid.

Hopkins stressed the primary purpose of this action was to provide necessities of life to unemployed teachers.

PINCHOT'S WIFE WARNS ON NRA

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Employers who sign NRA pledges and then fail to shorten hours and increase pay are targets for Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor.

"I am forwarding all complaints to Washington, and we are going to get some action," she said in an address before the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers' convention.

Mrs. Pinchot asserted the President's national recovery plans will not be a success until all workers are well paid.

She denounced sweatshops and company unions and said "we must have 100 per cent workers' organizations."

The Governor's wife went from the hosiery workers' convention to the headquarters for a strike of pocketbook workers, who, she said, were "struggling with sweatshop conditions or worse." She declared:

"If more workers would organize and show this country they have the right on their side, the program of the NRA would be more successful."

'Honest' Dry Drive Urged by Leader

CINCINNATI, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—An educational campaign against alcohol that is "honest, scientific and with a decent regard for the opinions of others" was urged last night before the National Conference of Allied Youth by Dr. Daniel A. Poling, of New York, its founder. He said:

"We can win with the facts, and on any other basis we would have no business to win anyhow."

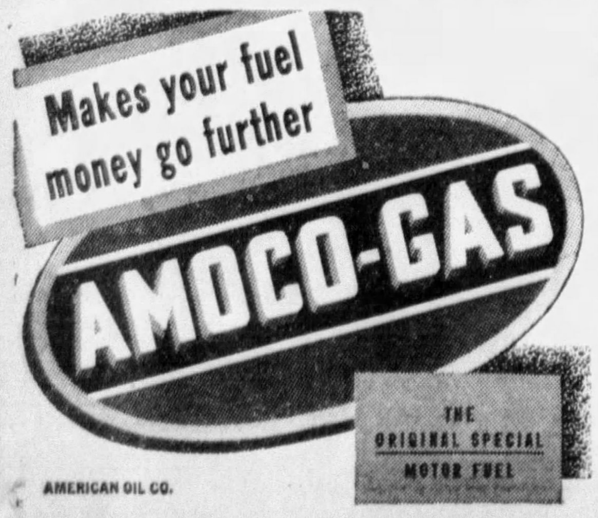
Thrice-Wed Girl In Air Drama

"Multi - Married - Maiden," startling story of a young girl still in her teens who has had three husbands and lost them all—two by murder and the third by suicide—is dramatized over WFBG, Altoona, Thursday afternoon at 3.

The real life drama is adapted from an article in next Sunday's American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph.



Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, everybody:

First, let me give the sneezers some brand new advice. It might not do any good, but it can't hurt you. One "globey" writes in, between ker-choos, that he gets relief by sticking his nose in the refrigerator.

I've turned over the remedies of Mrs. Jennings and Mrs. B. E. to Chilly Doyle. We'll use him for hay fever experiments. He's so handy. He won't mind.

* * *

T. C. O'Sullivan—The county will not run buses to South Park during the County Fair. This service will be perfomed, as it is now, by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company. Buses leave daily at 1 p. m. from the Brentwood loop and each hour thereafter. So far no new schedule for Fair visitors has been proposed. The rate is 30 cents a round trip.

* * *

Don't let your nerves get the best of you, don't let the sight of the grim visaged motorcycle officer in your rearview mirror cause your heart to flutter as you are speeding out the boulevard. When he pulls up and motions you over, be nonchalant. Smile. Tell him that you heard he is a proud daddy and congratulate him. He may give you a cigar. Of course if it doesn't happen to be Arthur Baker you better think faster than you ever did before.

* * *

Elizabeth Wright—Nice poems. A little too long to use. If you write some two-line rhymes will you send them in?

* * *

Mae Ponton—Will you send me more particulars, name, address, etc.

Licensed Breweries In State Total 84

HARRISBURG, Aug. 23.—(INS.)—The number of breweries authorized to manufacture 3.2 beer in Pennsylvania reached 84 today with the issuance of three additional permits by the State Alcoholic Permit Board. This total is only half the number that operated prior to national prohibition.

Millionaires Enter Radio As Uplifters

By AIRCASTER

The Beverly Hill Billies were humming an ancient rural ditty and seemed strangely out of place in the splendors of the Ambassador's swank dining room, while a group of millionaires, with naive vandalism, wrote radio history on the otherwise spotless damask linen. Or, one hopes, it will be history, because those milionairres are young and have ideals which they expect to inject into the radio business once they get going as operators of WMCA, New York.

The most enthusiastic of the group, Jack Hay Whitney, who plays polo and operates motion picture interests, confided:

"We hope, first of all, to work out an entirely different version of the broadcasting day than that which exists currently. If we hadn't anything different to offer the listener, it would seem rather foolish to go into this thing, don't you think?"

* * *

Millionaire Game

"Months ago, when the depression was at its worst, with contract cancellations piling up in the radio studios, somebody told me that radio broadcasting was a millionaire's game, like fast horses, yachts and movies. But even more so. And that's really what gave us fellows the idea of getting into it. If we could improve it, while at the same time having a bit of fun and experience, why shouldn't we all get together and do something about it?"

So that's how all this wealth happened to be centered on WMCA, in the leasing of the entire works by the Federal Broadcasting Corporation, of which John T. Adams is chief; Clendenin J. Ryan, Jr., vice president; Maj. Talbot O. Freeman, another V. P., and James K. Norris, treasurer.

An interesting slant on the new organization is that every millionaire family—the Ryans, the Macks, the Cushings, the Whitneys and the Thayers—represented among the directors, happen to be ardent and regular radio listeners, and can give you, off-hand the details and the technique of any program you happen to mention.

* * *

NBC will bring celebrated artists, including Peter Arno and Russell Patterson to the mike, to predict what the new deal in feminine form will be.

But you don't have to wait for that. Both Arno and Patterson and many other experts on the form divine are saying that the winter lady will sport a chassis like Mae West, the slender silhouette model is out, and the well-rounded and buxom lass will be the rage. Warning: "Curves ahead!"

Globe-Trotter Schedule

For up-to-the-minute news flashes, tune in on WCAE or WJAS at 9:05 a. m. and 12:15, 2:15 and 6:30 p. m., and hear Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News.

Curb-parking, rounding sharp turns, braking at sudden stops, constant gearshifting on hills and in traffic—these are hard, exhausting work for anyone with cars built in the old fashioned way.

But never with a Terraplane.

Watch a woman the first time she drives a Terraplane. Watch her face light up with pleasure at the ease with which she steers it, the slight pressure she needs to stop it, the small amount of effort required for smooth safe turns around street corners, the complete freedom from gearshifting on hills.

"Why, I'm absolutely spoiled for any other car," said a slim girl the other day after her first Terraplane ride. "I've never driven anything like this Terraplane. I feel so completely in charge of it, so safe and confident. This is the kind of car I've been looking for all my life."

MOB OUTRAGES ON DECREASE IN CHICAGO

Editor's note—This is the second of a series of articles on the gangster-racketeer situation in Chicago.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Gangster guns bark less frequently these days in Chicago where a winning fight is being staged against the gunman and the racketeer.

Mob violence is on the decrease. The murder rate is declining. The "muscle man," a familiar figure during the prohibition era, is disappearing.

Some of the factors which have brought this about are:

1—Legalization of 3.2 beer.

3—Federal income tax activity.

5—Speedier handling of gangster cases in the courts.

MURDER RATE DROPS

Chicago's murder rate in 1932 showed a decline for the third consecutive year, according to figures made public this week by Frederick Rex, municipal reference librarian. The number of murders in each of these three years are as follows: 1930, 350; 1931, 344; 1932, 328.

Many of the former gun toters, beer runners and muscle men have gone "partly legitimate" since the legalization of beer. That is, they have gone into the beer business and at the same time sell booze to the speakeasies on the side.

Instead of operating in the dead of the night, from midnight to 5 a. m., as they did during prohibition days, they are now working in the day time. No longer do truck drivers need muscle men or "strong arm guys" to "tail" them.

DELIVERIES EASY

No longer is the once-powerful Capone organization sending squads cruising through the downtown area in the early morning hours to see if the cost is clear of police and prohibition agents before making deliveries.

Gangsters still left in the booze racket have experienced comparatively little trouble with prohibition agents in recent months. It is now fairly easy to deliver liquor in broad daylight, while they are making their beer deliveries.

The beer and booze sellers are too busy with their semi-legitimate trade to fight each other as they used to. There seems to be room for all, in view of the heavy demand for beer. Their profits from their liquor sidelines adds greatly to their beer revenue and the old dangerous days of the gun and the pineapple seem to be gone for good.

Trailed Man Finds Wife, Detective In Embrace

Burke said he decided to do a little sleuthing himself when his wife, Elizabeth, hired Harry P. McKee, a private detective, in her plan to obtain evidence for a divorce.

He told the court:

"I followed McKee and my wife to a prairie and jumped up and socked him when I saw them embrace."

·RELIEF·

FROM HAY FEVER AND ASTHMA

By the Installation of "Pittsburg"-Frigidaire Air-Conditioning

Experiments by a famous hospital prove that proper "air-conditioning" gives quick relief to sufferers from Hay Fever and Pollen Asthma. Now, through the combined efforts of "Pittsburg" and Frigidaire, this same atmosphere, used in the hospital, is made available for your home. The air can be cleansed of all dirt, dust and flower pollen by filtration—freshened and enlivened by washing—cooled or heated.

Read About the Experiment at Johns Hopkins Hospital!

Dr. Gay, who conducted this experiment in a special air-conditioned room in Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: "...for individuals who can make provision for such atmosphere, whether in their homes or offices, great relief can be offered." If you suffer from these ailments, come to our office and see a complete, practical demonstration of the air-conditioning we can put in your home.

Leaders From 6 States Visiting at 'Redwing,' Girl Scouts' Camp

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

"Redwing." Allegheny County Girl Scout Camp, is full to more than overflowing this, its closing week, for in addition to the full quota of 185 scouts, 32 leaders from six different states are camping up at "Greenwood," the hill top headquarters, for the two-week regional leaders' training course. Miss Adelaide Warner, of Washington, regional director, and Mrs. George Legge, of Cumberland, Md., a member of the regional camp committee, visited the camp this week, too. Yesterday they were in town inspecting the day camps.

The regular camp season has been extended four days for the accommodation of scouts from the 11 Negro troops of the county, who will be making their very first visit to "Redwing." They will go out Sunday, remaining until Thursday.

Not until this week has the "orchestra" been completed at "Redwing," for with the multiplicity of interests that the camp affords, time could not be found for finishing all the instruments, which have been started since Miss Margaret Towns, English Girl Guide leader, "came to visit." There's a harp that really chords, although it is nothing more than rubber bands stretched to musical tautness over a cardboard box lid.

Tambourines are evolved from the top of a tin can with discs of tin attached. A set of cream bottles, filled to just the right height with water, make a sweet sounding xylophone. Knives and forks strung up on wood and played with other table silver prove to be satisfactory tympani and there are drums of various kinds, some of water-filled circular tin boxes and others of hollowed out logs with buckskin stretched across their tops. Saucepan lids are cymbals, and rattles are made from paper bags or tins filled with small stones.

THE LILY CZEPANEK FASHIONS MERGE NOW FROM A NEW MOVIE

TODAY WE live in an alert fashion world. It takes little to inspire a good designer. What's in the news today often decides the fashions of tomorrow. A wave of great air feats brings forth a whole collection of wing-like or bird-like applications to dress. Mussolini's Black Shirts originate the idea of black blouses for women. Exhibitions of paintings—old works of art—things like these influence designers. Recently a Central Asia exhibition brought on a whole series of hats with definite Asiatic tendency. And movies help promote all these things.

* * *

MARLENE DIETRICH, of the much-publicized preference for trousers, astounded a New York audience recently. Her "Song of Songs" descended upon this city with as much furore as Mae West's "Lady Lou" (She Done Him Wrong) did in Paris. On it the attention of a great part of our designing world focuses. No doubt we'll see a wave of "Lily Czepanek" fashions, all very feminine and alluring. It would be charming. If only we could all look as enchantingly lovely as Dietrich does in her 1890 clothes!

* * *

AS YOU SIT through the picture, it is easy enough to trace the strong relation between the clothes of that carriage era and those we are approaching today. The Princess silhouette (even the hour-glass silhouette a bit modified, of course), wide shoulders, large sleeves and general elegance are familiar. Any one of Lily Czepanek's costumes might be worn now, some with slight modification, one or two without any.

* * *

AS A YOUNG country girl in the opening scenes, she wears gathered skirts and voluminously ruffled petticoats. About her head golden braids are wound. Even as the locale changes and the picture grows considerably sophisticated, the braids remain. We wager women will take to this exquisitely flattering coiffure immediately.

* * *

LOOK AT the black evening gown sketched. If our memory serves us well, it's the "Merry Widow" dress—and yet isn't it quite like our present day fashions? A bit too long, perhaps, but otherwise quite wearable. Not so easy to wear, but equally in the limelight because of the feather decorations, is a black paradise-laden capelet she wears over the dress later in the picture.

* * *

IF IT WAS summer and not the fall we are approaching now, one net dress, with very full double puffed sleeves, tucked bib and gathered tiered skirt would be a dream to wear on moonlight nights. Part of the costume is sketched at the top left.

* * *

ONE PARTICULARLY dramatic costume you're very apt to discover soon in real life is also illustrated. In cloth, with huge gigot sleeves, tiny standing collar, ermine revers fastened with frogs and slight train, it needs only to be made of velvet to become a sumptuous evening wrap. It is entirely in keeping with the newer, longer evening silhouette.

* * *

IT'S PLEASANT to speculate on the effect of this impending return to the Romantique on women who live hurried existences. They will welcome this metamorphosis in the evening. It allows them opportunity to become the languorous ladies they have little time to be in the day!

CAKE STARTED FOR POPEYE'S BIRTHDAY

EXTRA! EXTRA!

Here's some mighty good news for the boys and girls who missed the Popeye coupons last week. There are about 2500 strips of Kennywood tickets left for Popeye's Birthday Party next Friday. So that no youngsters will be disappointed two additional coupons will be printed in the Sun-Telegraph. No. 1 appears today and No. 2 will be printed tomorrow. These two special coupons will be good for strip of 8 tickets. You can get the tickets at your neighborhood exchange station after you have clipped the second coupon tomorrow. Remember, you only need two of these coupons and still there will be no overcrowding.

Hundreds of boys and girls are looking forward with eager expectation to the big day of fun they are going to have with Popeye at Kennywood Park Friday. This will be Popeye's birthday celebration and from all indications it is going to be a gala day for the kiddies.

Today, Rhea's is baking Popeye's birthday cake and what a cake! It is estimated that it will weigh something over 200 pounds and probably will be the largest cake ever made in Pittsburgh. A 200-pound cake means nearly 70 dozen eggs, 100 pounds of sugar, 10 quarts of milk, 15 pounds of butter and 40 pounds of flour. This cake is going to be "d-e-e-l-i-c-i-o-u-s!" Popeye is going to cut it and distribute pieces wrapped in cellophane to the kiddies—as far as 200 pounds or more will go.

Then there is a contest for the best young Popeyes and Olive Oyls, with attractive prizes donated by the Sun-Telegraph for the winners. Popeye, in person, will be one of the judges.

There are still many strips of free tickets left at the exchange stations for the rides and attractions. If you have not already exchanged your Sun-Telegraph coupons for tickets, don't delay. Do it today. There is a list of exchange stations elsewhere in the Sun-Telegraph. Fifteen-cent street car passes good for Friday are also on sale at these stations.

WIFE DIVORCES RICH PLAYBOY

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—His convent-bred wife, who married him after he went on the water wagon, yesterday got a divorce from Conkey Pate Whitehead, millionaire playboy of the South.

Mrs. Marion Hughes Whitehead was given her freedom by Circuit Judge Walter J. La Buy because Whitehead deserted her here at the Blackstone Hotel just 12 months and seven days after their marriage.

This ended Whitehead's second venture into matrimony. The first was finished when Mrs. Julia Murphy, in 1929, charged him with habitual intoxication and was granted a divorce.

Mrs. Whitehead, second, testified that she married Whitehead on November 14, 1929, in New York. On November 21, 1930, she charged, he deserted her.

She informed the court that a cash settlement had been made.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Huge stores of whisky, estimated at close to 40,000,000 gallons, are awaiting in Canada to be rushed into the American market as soon as the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, advices received by Treasury officials here revealed.

It is of varieties Americans have found to their liking and needs no introduction to them.

With this country facing a shortage of whisky after repeal, a deluge from the North, East, South and West, was expected, unless Congress jacks up the tariff to an embargo on an argument the market should be preserved for the products of the American farm, distilleries and allied industries.

The pre-prohibition tariff of $5 a proof gallon still stands in the law. In addition, there is the $1.10 a gallon domestic tax, which is expected to be boosted when the amendment is repealed.

Close observers of the tidal wave for prohibition repeal were of the opinion it would be accomplished by Christmas and before Congress, which reconvenes in January, can head off the inundation from Canada, Ireland, Scotland and other places that have not felt prohibition.

Dr. James H. Doran, Federal Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol, said:

"As our supply of bonded whisky will be far below the demand for liquor after the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, it is apparent there will have to be substantial importations for several years.

"That is true of Canadian stocks where there are on hand good quantities of American types of whisky."

Unlike beer, which requires only a few months of aging, good whisky should be aged at least four years. The prohibition law has made it impossible to store vast quantities of whisky in bond. Authority for distilling can be given only to meet current medicinal needs. Hence the certain shortage of American distillations after prohibition.

Man Expects a Dark Future For Gay Youngsters

Can folks giggle and wisecrack—and still be regular, dependable humans?

Yes. You've guessed it. This is another attack on that Younger Generation that we hear so much about. And, believe it or not, it isn't made by some crabbed grandfather . . . but by one of themselves.

"Life is serious—life is earnest!" That's Morton's Theme Song, and he's sure the world is going haywire, because the other boys n' girls—particularly girls—that he knows, don't go around with solemn faces and take things hard, like he does.

According to him, he'd like to pick out some nice girl, and settle down—with the accent heavy on the settle.

But so far, he hasn't found any lass willing to "co-operate" with him . . . and so he's sure we're staring Destruction in the face.

"Why is it," he wails, "that the girls of today can't take anything seriously? Or the boys either, for that matter? I have spent a good deal of time wondering about it. I am earnest and serious myself, and I would like, just once, to find someone among the young people I know, who would talk intelligently, or do anything but wise-crack and laugh.

"I myself am very quiet. I don't see anything funny about life in these times, and it grates on me that the other young people I know seem to never have a serious thought in their heads. Or at least if they do, they keep it well hidden.

CALLED OLD FOGEY

"I try to talk sensibly, and all I get is a cold shoulder. And the girls are the worst. I would like to find one worth taking out, and maybe marrying, but so far I have found not even one has any idea of co-operating with me in building a sober, sensible life together.

"Some months ago, I met a young lady whom I thought for a while, had a real, solid character, but when I took her out and got fairly well acquainted with her, I found that she was just as light-minded as the rest of them. All they care about is giggling, making a joke of things. And when I saw that trait in her, and spoke of it, and of how important is it to think about things, and be a solid citizen, she laughed at me, and called me an Old Fogey.

"How in heaven's name can this world come to anything but disaster, when all the young folks are such rattle-brains?"

BORES FRIENDS

Is Morton's squawk justified?

Of course young folks like fun . . . but aren't they better citizens because they can toss off a gallant laugh, in spite of dark days?

Of course they are . . . for whether Morton knows it or not—they do have plenty of serious thoughts. And they can, and do, perform plenty of serious labor.

Long ago, someone said "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" . . . and I suspect that that's the secret of why Morton fails to register. The other youngsters don't cold-shoulder him because he's trying to be an earnest, solid citizen. They cold-shoulder him because he's a bore, and doesn't know he's alive. And they throw in a few extra wise-cracks in the hopes of jarring him into getting human!

That's my idea. What's yours? Do you believe we should wear a long face, and pass up all jokes, to be Regular?

Or is fun food for 'em . . . and for this world we live in . . . and are Modern Youngsters on their way to Big Things?

Fay King Writes of Women Laughing in the Midst of Sorrow

By FAY KING.

It is startling to see a woman laugh in the midst of sorrow and trouble.

To lose the husband one has loved, and who was the security of one's home and children is great sorrow. To stand suspected of deceiving and poisoning him, is great trouble.

Women are inclined to seriousness when transacting even the least important business.

I have yet to see a woman laughing heartily at the exchange booth of a department store. They are always in deadly earnest as they plead their just causes for returning an inexpensive purchase.

Then how much less inclined to laughter when defending herself from accusations that threaten her life, burdened besides by grief?

Mary Disappointed Over Loss of Trip to Paris

Philip Veritzen waited for no answer to his perfunctory query "May I bid you good day?" but hurried out of the room, almost sacrificing his dignity in the process. Lillian flung her own to the winds, once the door had closed safely behind him. With her arms held high above her head, she pirouetted around the room.

"Hear me! I gloat!" she quoted, coming to rest at last in a chair opposite mine.

"You have reason to gloat," I told her, smiling, for my relief was as great as hers. Do you realize that you out-maneuvered and out-generaled him, and that he has surrendered unconditionally."

"I realize that he made no movement of surrender until he found out that you were 'holding up the hands of Moses'," she said dryly, and I hurried into floundering speech to conceal the embarrassment her gibe caused me.

"'Unconditionally' is hardly the word, I suppose, when you consider that he has put the question of Mary's trip 'on the table' as he says. I doubt if he'll ever send her, now."

"Why should he?" Lillian countered. He wasn't giving her that trip from any altruistic purpose, and he's too good a showman to believe that she can get anything abroad, in the present state of her training."

"I wonder how Mary will like that," I said, and looked over at Lillian.

TELL YOUNGSTERS

"It's on the lap of the well-known gods, isnt it? she queried. "But don't you think we'd better call them over and tell them the news?

"Oh! I'm so sorry!" I said contritely. "Call them over quickly."

She went to the telephone, picked it up and put in a call for her own apartment. Then, with smiling eyes fixed on me, she spoke to the eager young things at the other end of the wire.

"Come right over. No, he's gone. No, I can't tell you anything until you get here, so hurry!"

"That was Mary, of course," she said as she put up the receiver. "Noel would have been equally anxious, but he wouldn't have been so insistent. When that young woman wants anything she's going to get it. I only hope she's certain sure of what she wants."

I echoed her wish, as we heard hurried steps and slightly raised voices in the hall. Lillian opened the door, and the next minute they were in the room. Noel pallid, with strained anxious eyes, Mary with eyes equally uneasy, but with high color and militant face.

"It's good news, Noel," she said with a catch in her breath. "They're both smiling."

But it was to Noel's suffering eyes that I spoke.

"Your father has yielded everything, Noel," I told him. "He will make no objection to your marriage upon any day you name. He will attend your wedding—if you ask him—although he doesn't wish to see either of you before that day, nor to discuss your affairs in any way. And he will not insist upon your going to Paris now—or at any future time. He said he would 'lay it upon the table'—indefinitely."

A DISAPPOINTMENT

"Oh! Noel!" Mary was saying. "Isn't it marvelous? He's given in! There's nothing more for us to worry about! We won't have to be separated! Oh, you darlings!" She turned ecstatically to Lillian and me. "You clever, clever people! How did you ever manage it?"

"Aha!" Lillian said. "That's our secret! We may want to use the same methods upon other refractory guardians some day, and it never would do to give away our hand. Now the next thing on the tapis is when you two want to be married."

There was a curious hesitancy in the faces of both of them. Then Noel spoke quickly, passionately.

"It cannot be too soon for me, but—Mary, are you sure you wish it, now?"

I wondered if Lillian felt her breath suspended as mine was at this unexpected appeal. We knew why he was thus giving Mary the chance to postpone the marriage, if she wished. He, too, had heard the disappointment in that first uttered "Oh!" and realized that, real as was her joy in not being separated from Noel, she was experiencing distinct disappointment at having the Paris sojourn withdrawn.

Household Hints

Cracked eggs can be boiled without losing any of their contents by wrapping them in a twist of tissue paper.

When chopping mint sprinkle well with castor sugar. Put plenty of mint and just warm the vinegar and pour over the mint.

To clean a wire spring mattress, remove dust with a bicycle pump or a pair of bellows. Damp a stiff brush with paraffine paint the springs, expose to air till the oil evaporates. Finish off with a coarse cloth. This will keep it free from rust and germs.

There is a right and a wrong way to sweep carpets, whether by hand or machine. The correct treatment of a new carpet involves little or no sweeping at first. Pile carpets, more especially axminsters, have a natural tendency to settle down and to "felt;" this should be encouraged and not discouraged by hard sweeping. A hard broom should never be used. Carpets should be swept downwards, that is in the direction of the natural inclination of the pile, and not across or up and down. This reduces "fluffing" to a minimum.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Calling Card

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Is it good form to have one's telephone number on calling cards?

2—Should a lady always sit on the right of a gentleman in a theater?

3—I am expecting men friends from a different city. Should I pay for entertainments . . . such as beer garden, restaurants and so forth? K.

1—No. It is not good form to have one's telephone number engraved on one's visiting card. It is excellent form to have the address on our cards, but not the telephone number.

2—Strictly speaking, this is correct, but often convenience takes precedence over this rule. Some men are very punctilious about this rule of "the lady on the right of the gentleman."

3—You don't tell me enough about your plans for me to be able to answer this question. If they are visiting in your home, and if, for instance, men members of your family were going with you to these various places of entertainment, then naturally the men of your family would pay for the entertainment. Buy if these guests in your city are staying at a hotel and invite you to go with them to restaurants and so forth, they would be the hosts.

In the Best of Taste

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My employer is going to be married in the very near future. I have met his fiancee and we have become quite friendly. Whenever she comes to the office we chat together.

Would it be necessary to give some little gift or card, or would just extending my best wishes be sufficient?

I am the stenographer and the only girl in the office. Z.

Walking Etiquet

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If husband and wife are walking on highway or sidewalk or anywhere, is it all right for the husband to hold his wife's arm, or should he do this only when helping her off or on street cars, or steps, or any difficult place?

Does it really look out-of-place for the husband to take his wife's arm when walking anywhere in public? R.

Its best form for the husband not take his wife's arm. As he is helping her across streets, in crowds, and so forth, he puts his hand lightly under her elbow, or he may offer her his arm.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Grand Slam Bidding

One of the greatest dangers in contracting for Grand Slams lies in the duplication of values. Sometimes players who are aware of the above fact stop short of even a Small Slam when they could easily take all the tricks. There are hands, however, in which one member of the partnership or the other, by the exercise of a little imagination, can visualize with considerable accuracy the holding of a partner, and venture upon a Grand Slam bid on a hand with which otherwise such a contract could not be reached due to the difficulty of making sure by the usual methods that there is no duplication. Take as an example the following:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ — ♡ Q 3 ◇ K J 9 8 7 ♣ A K Q 9 8 7
♠ K 9 7 4 3 ♡ J 10 6 4 ◇ 2 ♣ J 6 5	North West East South	♠ A J 10 8 6 5 ♡ 8 7 5 ◇ 6 5 ♣ 10 2
	♠ Q 2 ♡ A K 9 2 ◇ A Q 10 4 3 ♣ 4 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇ (1)	Pass	3 ♣ (2)	Pass
3 ♡ (3)	Pass	7 ◇ (4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—The hand contains more than 3½ honor-tricks and is a semi-two-suiter, far above a minimum Opening bid.

2—Although the hand contains only 3-plus honor-tricks, the shading of the requirements for a Forcing Takeout is justified due to the magnificent fit with partner's diamond suit.

4—North has no other Forcing bid available. He cannot bid four notrump because he does not hold two Aces. He reasons that his partner does not hold more than four hearts. If his heart holding is as good as Ace-King, there must be 13 tricks laid down in the hand. If, on the contrary, it is no stronger than A J 10, then it is extremely probable that any heart losers in the Declarer's hand may be discarded on the long and apparently established club suit. The Grand Slam is so nearly a certainty that North is fully justified in bidding for it.

It is, of course, apparent that the contract cannot be defeated regardless of the Opening lead chosen by West. As a matter of fact, South has a surplus of tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner has opened the bidding with one heart and the next hand has passed. You hold:

♠ K 5 ♡ 10 8 7 5 ◇ 6 5 ♣ A J 9 4 2

What do you bid?

Answer: Two clubs. This hand contains very good support for partner's hearts. However, it is a little short of being strong enough for a double Raise and slightly too good to merely give a single Raise. The club suit is biddable, and over a bid of two clubs partner will probably speak again. At this point the heart suit can be raised.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Infections Traceable to Diet

Dr. Copeland

The exact cause of this affliction is not known, but if not due to an injury, it is believed to come from a sensitivity to certain foods. Though never a really dangerous disease, I have seen sufferers from this malady extremely ill.

As a rule, the trouble comes on suddenly. A small reddened spot appears at the base of the teeth, under the tongue, or on the inner surface of the lips or cheeks. This is followed by a small blister which breaks and forms a whitish patch, which is really a painful ulcer.

There may be many such spots or canker sores in the mouth. It is an uncomfortable affliction and even the chewing of food and drinking of fluids prove difficult and painful. The tongue is coated and the breath has an offensive odor.

Some persons rarely, if ever, have this affliction while others are constant victims of it. It can be prevented by careful study of the diet and the detection of the offending food. Every effort should be made to avoid the particular article that is suspected of causing the disorder.

In addition to care in the diet, it is important to remove all diseased and infected teeth, as well as enlarged and infected tonsils. Infection of the mouth is believed to play an important part in the production of canker sores.

If you are susceptible to this disorder, I would advise that you regularly rinse or gargle the mouth with a mild antiseptic. Do this three times a day, preferably after meals.

During the acute attacks, the sores can be touched up with a piece of alum or a silver stick. This application is made to the bottom and sides of each of the ulcers. If silver nitrate is used it is best applied by the physician as it is a strong drug and when improperly applied may burn the delicate lining of the mouth. To remove the objectionable taste of the silver, rinse the mouth with warm water after each application.

Canker sores are frequently encountered in persons who fail to include sufficient "anti-scorbutic" foods in their diet. These foods contain liberal amounts of vitamin C, which protect against a disease called scurvy, as well as ailments of the mouth and digestive organs associated with undernourishment.

HAY FEVER sufferers—don't try to get through another season without Kleenex. Kleenex puts an end to discomfort caused by damp, irritating handkerchiefs. Puts an end to big laundry bills, too—and to disagreeable handkerchief washing.

Kleenex is a soft tissue, handkerchief size, gentle, absorbent, snowy white (or tinted, if you prefer).

Costs less than laundering

It costs less to use Kleenex than to have handkerchiefs laundered! So it is a saving of money as well as an aid to health and comfort.

Both economy and cleanliness are assured with Kleenex by the patented, self-dispensing pull-out box. Only the next tissues to be used are exposed at any one time. Hands never enter the box to contaminate or mess up the other sheets, or to pull out more Kleenex than is needed.

Kleenex should always be used to remove face creams, because it is so sanitary and so absorbent.

Try the larger Kleenex, too—sheets three times usual size! It's splendid for cosmetic use; also for guest towels and dusting.

U. S. SCIENTIST SLASH SCORED

Dr. H. H. Lowry, director of the coal research laboratory of Carnegie Institute of Technology, yesterday criticized the government for wholesale dismissals of scientists in federal bureaus. He urged a survey "to prevent an irreparable loss to the entire nation."

Halting of scientific investigations in the Pittsburgh station of the Bureau of Mines moved Dr. Lowry to comment on the danger of the dismissals. He said more than 50 men here had been affected by the government's action.

Within the last few weeks more than 700 scientists in government departments have been dismissed, Dr. Lowry revealed. Many had been working for years on projects, the entire experience of which is said to have been lost.

COUNTY TO PAY REDUCED FEE

Due to protests from the County Commissioners, and through an agreement with the county solicitors, Attorney Arnold M. Repogle will receive a fee of only $250 instead of $400 for preparing the necessary papers for the creation of a new election district in Wilkinsburg.

A few weeks ago the Commissioners were notified the court had approved a $400 fee for Repogle in addition to $16 expenses, and a $100 fee for E. L. Piper in the new district preparation.

Sheila Barrett, who certainly won't live to be 100, vigorously labors at the Ha-Ha Club every a. m. until 4:10 and then is hastened to the Meredith House, a hospital! . . . The Bert Fromans settled it with coin out of court—rather than humiliate a popular screen blonde, whose letters he forgot to burn . . . Ralph Morgan Signed To Help Will

Ralph Morgan, who is appearing in "The Power and the Glory," has been signed for an important role in the "There's Always Tomorrow," which will star Will Rogers. The picture, based on a magazine story, "Green Dice," will go into production in a few weeks. June Vlasek and Harry Green also have been added to the cast.

Sally's Experience in Her Picture

Director Kenneth MacKenna added a slice of Sally Eilers' biography to the script of her coming picture, "Walls of Gold," from Kathleen Norris' novel. The scenes added deal with Miss Eilers' recent experiences in England where she was well received by English admirers.

Eat and Be Happy In Mae West Way

The other screen stars of Hollywood can diet if they wish, but Mae West will eat whatever she wants. Thes tar of Paramount's "I'm No Angel" keeps her own celebrated figure by sleeping nine or ten hours every night, exercising, getting fresh air and sunshine as often as possible, drinking a quart of milk a day, eating creamed foods and potatoes and plenty of butter.

Polly Moran Gets New Partner

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 22.—A long search has ended. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will team May Robson with Polly Moran in the comedy series that was interrupted when an overtaxed Marie Dressler had to limit her camera-work to three hours a day.

Miss Robson

The first picture of the new team will be "Hill Billies," the story of a farcical feud between two mountaineer women in Kentucky. Conceived originally as a Dressler-Moran vehicle, "Hill Billies" appeared to be headed for the shelf when doctors advised Marie to take a three month's vacation from studio life.

Then Harry Rapf had the bright idea of using May Robson as a teammate for Polly. The plan has been enthusiastically received at M. G. M. and authors Robert Hopkins and Laurence Johnson are whipping the script into shape for early filming.

Two ministers, visiting the Fox Studio, met Will Rogers and offered to save him a box seat if he'd visit their churches. The comedian accompanied them to their car, grinned and said:

"Say, can't you make that a box seat in Heaven."

Both the Reverend pair smiled but made no reply. Rogers watched the car start to roll away. Suddenly, he shouted:

"Hey, how about a gallery seat, then?"

Holleywood parade: Margaret Sullavan brought out here from Broadway to play the lead in "Only Yesterday," suffered a split eardrum when she struck her head against a stand-lamp in the dark. Three specialists, summoned by Universal, admit she may have impaired hearing in the one ear. Oddly enough, this is the actress' second accident since she began her film. A few days into the picture, she stepped on a rusty nail which pierced her foot.

Mr. Baer

Failing to pull a punch in a motion picture scene, Max Baer knocked out an extra-man. A professional fighter was engaged to take the blow for the next shot.

RKO has hired Dr. Josef Ginsberg, plastic surgeon who has reshaped many stellar faces, to act as technical adviser on the Ann Harding picture, "Beautiful." Incidentally, Maria Lombard, Ann's secretary for several years, has quit, and Lillian Templeton replaces her . . . Frank Lloyd, his broken leg mended, is asking the Film Colony cripples to his house for a crutch-burning party. Two guests will be Howard Dally, Fox actor, who sprained his ankle in stepping out of his car, and Mimi Jordan, who received a broken toe when a hit-and-run driver ran over her foot.

Joan Bennett vows she'll take a six weeks' vacation in New York regardless of picture offers. Sally Eilers, scarcely back from London, is another vacation planner. She'll visit Yosemite for two weeks after "Walls of Gold" is finished . . . Helen Hayes and Charles McArthur had their fifth wedding anniversary on the seventeenth. They celebrated it apart, but Charlie called her long distance from Hollywood.

Miss Bennett

Tests Planned For 'Alice'

Paramount will conduct screen tests on a wide scale through which the Hollywood studio hopes to find the ideal Alice for "Alice in Wonderland."

During the seven weeks that the active search for Alice was in progress, applications were received from more than 2,500 girls and young women. Director Norman McLeod, in charge of the search, has selected less than 25 potential Alices from this horde of them, and these select few will be given actual camera and sound tests in their home cities and towns, scattered all over the United States and Canada.

The studio has officially denied a rumor, originating in England, that Ida Lupino has been decided on to play Alice.

Forty-three definite Alice possibilities have been found among "unknown" girls right in Hollywood, it is announced, and tests of these will be made at the studio by Director McLeod himself.

Will Rogers in New Role

After being separated for 11 years, during which time both became distinguished, Will Rogers and James Cruze will be together again as star and director of "There's Always Tomorrow," based on the Saturday Evening Post story, "Green Dice," by Anne Cameron.

In 1922 Cruze directed Rogers in a picture called "One Glorious Day." He has since made "The Covered Wagon," "Old Ironsides," "Beggar on Horseback" and others.

Creatore Will Conduct Pittsburgh Opera at Syria Mosque

Guiseppe Creatore, noted band leader and conductor, has been engaged as guest conductor for the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, Inc., it was announced by Antonio Certo, general manager. The local opera companys' season will open at Syria Mosque, Friday, October 20, with "La Giaconda." October 21, two different operas will be presented at matinee and evening performances.

Creatore returns to Pittsburgh after an absence of 12 years. He will be remembered for his annual visits here with his band at the old Exposition Building at the Point. Other noted conductors will appear as guests during the season.

Certo plans to have the people of Pittsburgh select the operas they wish to have presented in November, after the initial opening group of three. He said:

"Since the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Opera Company is a strictly Pittsburgh organization, we feel the people should be consulted as to what operas they enjoy best. All selections will be considered. They should be addressed to the office of the company, Suite 965-967 Union Arcade Building."

NEW BANK ASKS U. S. CHARTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. — Favorable action is anticipated today by the Comptroller of the Currency on the application for a charter for the new First National Bank of Wilkinsburg and it is expected that the community institution will be opened within a few weeks, following the approval of the board of directors by United States Treasury authorities.

A committee active in the reorganization of the bank after lengthy conferences with deputy comptrollers reported that the reopening plans had been proved. The sale of stock in the new bank was oversubscribed to the extent of 186 shares, it was stated, and certain agreements with depositors were fully sanctioned. Capital stock in the amount of $209,300 was subscribed.

Members of the committee who returned to Pittsburgh today were J. I. Miller, S. C. McConaghey, George Rankin, J. T. King, Edwards Jenkins, Thomas Hallen and George Craig.

Representative Clyde Kelly attended the conferences with the comptroller and reported that satisfactory progress is being made also in the reorganization procedure for the Union National Bank of McKeesport and the First National Bank of Braddock.

PINCHOT TO AID MINE JOBLESS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today pledged his aid in bringing to the attention of NRA officials at Washington the demands of anthracite miners in the Carbon-Schuylkill district for an equalization of work.

The Governor told a delegation of miners that he was very greatly impressed with their demands and that he would not only make an immediate effort to obtain an appointment for them in Washington, but that he would accompany their leaders to the National Capitol if at all possible.

Various operating mines of the district were picketed last week by miners of collieries which have been idle for a long time. Picketing was discontinued at the request of Pinchot. The operators maintain that work can not be distributed more widely because orders on hand require coal from certain collieries.

KIDNAP PROBERS UNDER GUARD

International News Service.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 23.—(INS.) — Reported threats, made by telephone and letter, against witnesses summoned to testify in the grand jury investigation of the kidnaping of Charles F. Uuschel, millionaire Oklahoma City oil man, today caused the federal government to double its guard around the grand jury rooms.

By early tonight, federal authorities hope to have an indictment against Harvey Bailey, now held in Dallas, and Albert Bates, held in Denver. Several others also are expected to be indicted.

Urschel appeared on the scene today, accompanied by his wife and two machine gun-armed guards.

Bruised Man Dies, Pneumonia Blamed

John Z. Ebel, 83, who was found stricken in his home last week with marks and bruises indicating he might have been beaten, died from pneumonia, the Coroner reported today.

Ebel died last night in the South Side Hospital.

NRA MEDIATES IN STRIKES

HAZLETON, Pa., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—One factory reopened and another closed in the Hazleton area today through the influence of the National Recovery Administration.

Operations were resumed at the Lansford plant of Roseman Brothers, manufacturers of children's clothes, where Howard Colvin, representative of the NRA, arranged with 500 strikers and the management for adjustment of grievances by the federal agency.

The Freeland Fabrics Company ordered suspension of activities in its silk mill at Freeland on the advice of the Hazleton Recovery Board. John H. Bigelow, head of the board, proposed the closing pending a conference of the owners and representatives of employes. The action was taken after 150 silk mill strikers from McAdoo joined 35 pickets at the Freeland mill.

POWELL TO ACT IN NRA FILM

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 23. — Sixteen prominent motion picture players have enlisted under the Blue Eagle banner to campaign through the medium of 8,000 films, printed from eight "NRA featurettes," now in production, throughout the nation's 13,000 theaters in the cause of reemployment and more buyers.

The films will be ready for distribution about September 1.

Contributors of the films include Columbia Pictures, Fox Films, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount, RKO-Radio, United Artists, Universal and Warner Brothers-First National.

BLOW TORCH BURNS BOY

Burned about the face, hands and body when a blow torch he was filling with gasoline exploded last night, Louis Perrotti, 15, of 546 Morgan street, was in a serious condition in Passavant Hospital today.

Louis, with Samuel Jones, 15, was filling the torch in the rear of the latter's home, 555 Morgan street, to remove paint from a bicycle. The gasoline exploded when one of the boys struck a match. The blazing fluid showered Perrotti's clothes and burned Jones on the left leg. Jones was treated at the hospital and then taken to his home.

TYPHOID WAVE PERILS NUNS

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Fears for the nuns in the mother house of the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame increased today as four new suspected cases of typhoid were placed in isolation.

In recent weeks the disease has caused the death of four. The total now under treatment or observation is 23.

While the 400 cloistered nuns were believed to have escaped the disease, there were fears that many of the 200 novices might have been exposed.

How the disease got inside the walls of the institution has not been explained. There has been only one other case of typhoid in Montreal in months, according to Dr. S. Boucher, director of the City Health Department. He was confident the disease would not spread.

COUNTY HIRES BANDS FOR FAIR

County Commissioners have authorized the employment of four bands to furnish music at the county parks on Labor Day.

HERRON TO NAME FLOOD CONTROL ENVOYS

POLITICS

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Th position of Representative Edward M. Hough, candidate for a Republican councilmanic nomination, is reminiscent of the situation four years ago. Then, as now, Mr. Hough filed as a candidate for City Council. He failed to receive the support he expected from the organization headed by the late Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Mr. Shields.

He did not, however, withdraw his name, but as the campaign wore on and he became convinced he would not receive the organization assistance upon which he had counted, he announced he would abandon his campaign, though he remained on the ballot.

It is a certainty that his name will be on the ballot again this year, though it is practically beyond question that he will not receive the aid he had expected from the faction headed by Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, seeking the Republican mayoralty nomination. There was speculation yesterday that Mr. Hough would withdraw his name, as did Thomas F. Ashford III, who had a tentative agreement of assistance from the Mackrell forces.

* * *

Never An Official Mackrell Council Slate

At the Mackrell headquarters in the Roosevelt Hotel, Mr. Hough was pressed to retire from the race, to officially erase his name from the ballot. A notary was in readiness to assist with the signature of the necessary papers. But Mr. Hough, after a conference with Mr. Mackrell and his associates, left with word that he would not withdraw.

Officially there has never been a Mackrell Council slate named. It had been assumed, however, that Hough and Ashford would be among those backed. In the past few days, however, the Mackrell strategy board determined that it would be a wise move to replace these two with William A. Magee, already on the McArdle slate, and James F. Malone.

Ashford cleared the way for one with his withdrawal. Hough temporarily blocked the second, but there is a fairly definite conviction that it will only be a question of a day or two until there is an official announcement that both men are on the ticket.

What Mr. Hough will do if that happens remains to be seen. He may follow the same course he did four years ago or he may remain actively in the fight, though his chances would be seriously diminished. Mr. Hough is understood to have told the Mackrell leaders that he believed himself a strong candidate who would add weight to the ticket, especially on the North Side, but he did not succeed in convincing them.

* * *

Malone's Course Is in Doubt

What Mr. Malone will do if siated by the Mackrell forces is in the realm of doubt. He has said he would campaign only for Council, and would not take political part in the mayoralty fight. But last night Councilman P. J. McArdle, Citizens' League candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, urged the nomination of the full slate of five running on his ticket, and Mr. Malone is not one of them.

It may be that a repetition of this speech, and Mr. McArdle served notice that he will repeat it, will draw Mr. Malone into the battle if he is on the Mackrell slate.

Mr. Magee, of course, will be in an advantageous position. He will have two indorsements, and can validly maintain his policy of not backing any mayoralty candidate, and confining his campaign to the radio. He was desired on the Mackrell ticket because the leaders of that group believed they could argue that they had attempted to clear the way for the strongest anti-administration Council entry.

* * *

Situation May Aid Connelley

The elimination of Mr. Hough, if that occurs, would leave both the McArdle and Mackrell slates with only one North Side candidate, the McArdle man being Charles Wolff, grocer, and the Mackrell adherent Hugh McKnight, hardware merchant. Mr. Hough lives in the Twenty-sixth Ward and was chairman of the Republican organization until he broke with Mayor Herron.

The Herron administration has two North Siders entered, Councilman Harry A. Little and C. B. Connelley.

General opinion is that such a situation would be more to the advantage of Connelley than to Little. The North Side likes its representation in city affairs, and followers of the McArdle or Mackrell slate, after voting for the single North Sider offered, then may turn to another neighbor rather than to all the remaining four approved by their mayoralty candidate

Today there are predictions that no Council slate will be elected in its entirety, but flat forecasts on this score must wait until the final day's registration is tabulated, which will not be until a day before the primary election. The size of the Republican and Democratic registrations will be a determining factor in this decision.

DRIVER ROBBED, HUNT BLONDE

A blonde, a "red-head" and three male companions were sought today by detectives after one of the members of their party slugged Charles Neiberg, of 414 Atwood street, robbed him of $2 and then drove off in his automobile.

Neiberg said he was engaged by the quintet to drive them to Bert's Inn, on Waymann road, Baldwin Township, early today. The arrangements, Neiberg told police, were made at his home in Atwood street.

On arriving at the inn, one of the party left the machine to telephone. When he returned, Neiberg said, he was slugged and forced to alight from his machine.

Neiberg made his way to the South Side Police Station, where he reported the robbery and gave a description of his assailants. He was not hurt seriously.

OLIVER, HERRON CITE TAX CUT

Councilman George S. Oliver, a candidate for election on the regular Republican ticket along with Mayor John S. Herron, last night reviewed the accomplishments of the administration, including a reduction in the tax rate.

Oliver spoke to women of the Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sevnth wards at a meeting in Henry Hotel headquarters. Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier, vice chairman of the regular committee, presided, and the Mayor, Councilmen W. Y. English, Clifford B. Connelley and Frank L. Duggan and William H. Coleman, candidate for Common Pleas Court, also spoke.

Mayor Herron denied charges that the city payroll was being assessed for political purposes with his knowledge. He said some over-zealous supporters might be putting on assessments, rumored for more than a week about City Hall, but that the principle did not have his approval, and would be stopped by him where it was being shown the policy was being pursued.

Mrs. McCaskey First To Be Buried in Park

Mrs. Clara May McCaskey, of 6811 Kelly street, who died today, will be buried in the State Hemlock Park, Perry County, near Harrisburg. This, the first burial in the park, has been authorized by State authorities at request of Mrs. McCaskey's husband, J. L. McCaskey, president of the Hemlock Parks Association. The McCaskey's founded the association. Mr. McCaskey is a deputy collector of internal revenue in Pittsburgh.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 23.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Going to drop off here at Hoover Dam. Hope they don't irrigate more land so that they can raise more things that they can't sell and will have to plow up. More rows. Kill more pigs to keep 'em from becoming hogs.

Will Rogers

Looks like this whole hog destroying scheme of Mr. Wallace's is a direct slap against my old friend and companion, "Blue Boy." What Wallace is trying to do is to teach the farmers corn acreage control and the hog birth control, and one is just as hard to make understand it as the other.

Yours, WILL.

PITTSBURGHERS WIN VEREIN OFFICES

Catholic Session Ends, Speakers Condemn Birth Control

Balloting by delegates to the eighty-seventh annual national convention of the Central Catholic Verein, which closes today at the Fort Pitt Hotel, has resulted in the election of three Pittsburghers.

Other officers are: Henry J. Dielman, of San Antonio, Tex., first vice president; Fred Gilson, of Chicago, second vice president; Mrs. Sophia C. Wavering, of Quincy, Ill., fourth vice president; Frank J. Dockendorf, of Lacrosse, Wis., secretary; George Korte, of St. Louis, Mo., treasurer, and W. C. Weiskopf, of St. Paul, Minn., marshal.

NEW TRUSTEES

New trustees elected are Michael A. Dack, of St. Louis; John A. Sullentrup, of Collwick, Kan.; Dr. August G. Maron, of Brooklyn, and August Cassinger, of Maryland.

The Catholic Women's Union, in convention jointly with the Verein, also ending today, elects its officers biennially. Their election was held at St. Louis last year.

Resolutions adopted by the Verein last night included a demand for true temperance and a condemnation of the Eighteenth Amendment or any other type of legal enforcement; a report favorable to the general establishment of credit unions, and a report favorable to slum clearance. Opposition to the national amendment to abolish child labor was also voiced, with the qualification that the convention did not favor child labor, but believed that the question was a problem for the states.

Another resolution denounced the employment of married women in industry.

HIT BIRTH CONTROL

Resolutions adopted by the Catholic Women's Union convention, also ending jointly with the Verein meetings today, included the censure of birth control and a favorable report for the Maternity Guild plan.

Birth control, A. G. Maron, Brooklyn physician, told the delegates, is equivalent to murder. In another resolution, the Catholic women voted that Catholic action should provide occasion and means for specific preparation for marriage.

The convention's program for the balance of the closing day provides for a final joint meeting and installation of officers and an executive committee meeting following lunch.

This afternoon a sightseeing trip to the Knights of St. George Home for the Aged at Wellsburg, W. Va., is scheduled.

Memorial Exhibit Of Bredin Paintings

A memorial exhibition of portrait and landscape paintings by the late R. Sloan Bredin will be held at the Phillips Mill, New Hope, Pa., September 16 to 24, by directors of the Phillips Mill Association. Mr. Bredin was a member of the Phillips Mill Association, a life member of the National Arts Club, an associate National Academician in 1921, and a member of various art associations.

BOY, 3 OTHERS AUTO VICTIMS

Carl Jonas, 5, of 510 Pressley street, North Side, was in Allegheny General Hospital today suffering from a fractured left leg. He was struck by an automobile while playing near his home last night.

Howard Smith, a motorcyclist, of 5103 Second avenue, and Mrs. J. C. Shaw, of 1133 Arkansas avenue, Dormont, suffered lacerations when the cycle of Smith collided with an automobile driven by Mrs. Shaw's husband. Both were treated at Mercy Hospital.

Eleanor G. Day, of 2215 St. Luke square, was treated at Presbyterian Hospital for a cut on the forehead received when her automobile turned over at Arch street and West Montgomery avenue after it had collided with another machine.

KLEIN PUZZLED BY DISMISSAL

Isaac Klein, supervisor on city unemployment relief projects, is taking his "puzzling situation" to Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang today.

He was dismissed yesterday by Director Lang as a result of criticism that men on relief projects are loafing. In his home at 5877 Shady-Forbes terrace, he said:

"I wasn't loafing, and it's a puzzling situation. I can't tell you any more until I see Lang."

Klein was re-hired by the city a month ago. He had worked for the city seven years before being laid off 18 months ago.

Only Water Now Washed in By Atlantic Storm

—By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER—

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 23.—If the storm on the Atlantic Coast keeps up a little longer, Ohio and Indiana will be full of waterfront property.

Now we know how they feel on the Mississippi when Old Man River tips over the apple cart.

They're going to have a beauty pageant down here next month if they can get the water out of the judges' stand.

There ain't much profit in a storm at sea these days. A few years ago the natives would have been lined up on the shore waiting for the whisky and gin cargoes to float in.

See that the worst charge you can bring against a New York politician is that of being extravagant. That's no crime even if you prove it.

Since that NRA business started, the teachers are going to have a tough time convincing the school kids there are more than three letters in the alphabet and five days in a week.

Clerk Sells Suit But Loses Watch

Edward A. Cohn, clerk in a clothing store at 205 Fifth avenue, sold a suit yesterday but lost his watch. He told police he missed his timepiece after outfitting a customer.

WARNING FAILS, GIRL DROWNS

While taking a forbidden swim in the Ohio River late yesterday attired in homemade burlap trunks, Helen O'Day, 15, of 132 Mulberry way, got beyond her depth and drowned.

Her 7-year-old nephew, Jackie Schaffer, the only witness, said:

"I was watching her wade and holding her dress. Then she wasn't there anymore and I ran home and told her mother."

Albert, 21, her brother, ran to the place above the Sixteenth Street Bridge and dove in. He found her on the river bottom.

Mrs. Marie Schaffer, a sister, said Helen had been forbidden to swim in the river. The spot where she drowned is unusually deep due to dredging below the nearby locks.

MASON AND FOE FREED IN FIGHT

There was more than the usual number of spectators in night court, where the "Red" Mason-Gus Camp feud was aired before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones.

The two fight managers were arrested on disorderly conduct charges following a brief fight in front of the Seventh Avenue Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Mason told Jones:

"I was standing in front of the hotel when Camp beckoned to me from an automobile. As I approached he spat at me."

Camp denied spitting at Mason. Said Camp:

"He wrote me a letter not fit to read. I wanted to ask him why he wrote it. When I saw him standing in the street I shouted to him to come over."

When Camp spat at Mason the latter retaliated, police testified, by heaving two weights from a newsstand. Then police intervened.

It all started over a remark Camp was said to have made about Mason. It was to the effect that Mason was managing a string of bums who couldn't knock the eye out of a needle.

Both were discharged.

GROUP TO SEEK WASHINGTON SUPPORT

Tri-State Officials Hear Mayor's Plan At Parley

Mayor John S. Herron today announced to 200 officials of tri-state communities and civic organizations that he will name a committee of eight to go to Washington and there try to advance plans for flood control.

They will be prominent men, Herron said, who will argue that Pennsylvania pays an eighth of all federal income and should have consideration in the 10-reservoir flood control project. The plan, if put in effect, would cost $57,000,000, it is estimated. The reservoirs would be placed at the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers.

NEED STRESSED

Stressing the fact that Pennsylvania pays millions of dollars a year in damage due to floods, the need of such a plan will be placed before proper authorities, Herron said. He called the committee the Tri-State Authority.

The conference, at which mayors, burgesses, their representatives, and others interested in flood control attended, was begun at 2 o'clock

A program more extensive than the one locally urged, including as well the Muskingum valley, is being advocated by Dr. C. E. Holzer, president of the Ohio Valley Conservation and Flood Conference.

OHIO PLAN

Attending the Pittsburgh meeting, he said:

"It is estimated that the two improvements would cost approximately $100,000,000 and give employment to 100,000 men for one year. We want to take from 6 to 8 feet off the flood crest of the Ohio River. These floods have cost the people of the Ohio Valley $1,000,000,000 in the last 50 years."

Dr. Holzer says that the plan of his organization is to put through a flood and reforestation plan for the entire Ohio Valley. He is especially interested in such an improvement to be made east of Cincinnati. He declared:

"About 90 per cent of the damage is sustained between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh and the cost of our plan would be about 40 per cent of the whole. The 1913 flood alone cost the Ohio Valley population $168,000,000."

ROADHOUSE FIRE VICTIM DIES

Jacob Boles, 65, of Russellton, died early today in the Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum, from pneumonia contracted after he was overcome by smoke when fire destroyed a roadhouse known as Dad's place in the KDKA boulevard, near Dorseyville, early Sunday, according to a Coroner's report. He was employed as a watchman at the roadhouse.

Belief that the blaze was started by an incendiary on the outside of the building was expressed yesterday by Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr, who questioned a recent tenant.

JAMES M. (RED) MASON PATROLMAN THOMAS ELLISON GUS CAMP

Messrs. Mason and Camp, rival fight managers who threw, respectively, paper weights and epithets at each other in Liberty avenue, at the Night Court's bar of justice as they heard Patrolman Ellison, one of the officers who stepped in as referees, telling about their battle. There was a larger courtroom crowd than usual for this gala occasion. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Charging her husband had deserted her after saying he was going to leave for six months to determine if he loved another woman, Mrs. Margaret D. Austin, 320 Lafayette avenue, has filed an answer in Common Pleas Court to the divorce suit of Roy C. Austin, of 4313 Vodeli street.

The Austins, married in 1920, have three children. Mrs. Austin denies her husband's charge of desertion, saying he left her February 9, 1929, telling her of his infatuation for the other woman. Later, she said, she went to 4 East North avenue, and found him living with the woman.

Mrs. Austin's answer says her husband tried in 1929 to obtain a divorce on grounds of cruelty, but was refused. At that time he asked her not to contest the suit, so he could marry her rival, she declares.

COURT BALLOT RULE BLOW TO G. O. P.

Common Pleas Court today refused to make a blanket order which in effect would place the names of 10,000 city residents on the registry list for voting purposes.

Instead Judges Elder W. Marshall, John P. Egan and Sylvester J. Snee directed only that the name of Charles Langenbacher, 212 Boulevard of the Allies, be registered. This was a setback for the Republican organization.

DENY BLANKET RULE

Langenbacher asked for a writ of mandamus to compel the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes to place his name on the registry list, stating that he represented 10,000 others.

Judge Marshall said the court could not make a rule covering 10,000 persons. He overruled the motion to quash the mandamus and directed the board to make further answer within 24 hours.

BACKS RACKET CHARGE

The charge of Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator, that the Republican organization was making the assessment of voters a "racket" was further developed today when Riordan made public the following figures:

Of 2,559 who made affidavits to be assessed in the Fifth Ward, Riordan's investigators also have recommended 791 be stricken off as phantoms or illegal assessments. The total of false affidavits probably will reach 1,500, he said.

Of 549 assessed in the Fourth Ward, 24 already have been stricken off so far.

Of 396 in the Third Ward, 50 have been stricken off.

PROBES 'PHANTOMS'

Riordan reiterated today that many of the false assessments were made by floaters and repeaters, who were driven from one ward to another, admitting false affidavits. The affidavits were submitted while 30 special assessors sat in the various wards to stimulate interest in voting.

Additional affidavits being submitted in the courthouse also are being investigated and Riordan expects the total to be stricken off will increase, perhaps double.

STRESSES JURY BOARD'S DUTIES

Vincent C. Neeson, secretary-treasurer of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Reserve Officers' Association, carried his independent Republican candidacy for jury commissioner to Wilkinsburg voters last night in a meeting of the Wilkinsburg League of Republican Women at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel.

He stressed importance of the jury commissionership and urged against election of a candidate who might attempt to make the personnel part of a political machine. He pointed to his study of the courts and jury system as a newspaper reporter.

Neeson is on leave of absence, without pay, from his position as custodian of voting machines, to carry on his candidacy. He will address the independent Republicans of McKees Rocks Friday night.

BUILDER JOINS M'NAIR TICKET

George E. Evans, North Side builder and apartment house owner, has announced that he has filed for City Council on the McNair regular Democratic ticket.

If elected, he promises to introduce an ordinance immediately exempting entirely all new homes costing less than $10,000 for which permits are taken out before December 31, 1934, from city and school taxes for 10 years. This action, he points out, would not appreciably impair the income of the city and would immediately stimulate home building.

He also favors the district assessment plan to pay for many public improvements, and a reduction of 25 per cent in the city budget. He is a single taxer and president of the Henry George Foundation.

Pinchot Denounced Over Commissaries

Charles Wolff, North Side grocer, and a Council candidate on the McArdle ticket, last night attacked Gov. Pinchot as the one who attempted to force the commissary system for feeding the unemployed. The Retail Grocers' Association, he said, had blocked the move, and provided food through stores at a cost of not more than five cents a meal. The plan averted a direct dole, he contended.

Wolff asked for election of the entire Citizens' League ticket.

Charter Sought By Musician Group

A charter is asked for the String Ensemble Society of Pittsburgh in a petition filed in Common Pleas Court by Mather Eliot, Columbus avenue; Dr. Watson Marshall, Dunmoyle street, and others. The purpose is to sponsor musical activities. Headquarters are at 1522 Chateau street.

TELLING MAGISTRATE OF HOW THEY WERE HELD UP

MISS JEAN NOVAK, 19 MISS ALICE LUCAS, 19 CHARLES FENNER

Miss Lucas, 145 Dahlia street, and Miss Novak, 117 Marigold street, both of Munhall, and Mr. Fenner, one of their two escorts, in Night Court telling of how they were held up in Schenley Park. The loot was two empty wallets, but David Goldstein, 23, 1839 Locust street, who told police it was his first job, was held for further investigation. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

SUSPECT FACES TWO CHARGES

A holdup suspect captured yesterday after police said, he held up two young couples in Schenley Park, was held for further investigation when arraigned before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in night court.

Police testified the prisoner, who gave his name as David Goldstein, 23, of 1839 Locust street, had two empty wallets which he had taken from John Pallof, of 527 East Third avenue, and Charles Fenner, of East Eighth avenue, both of Homestead.

Pallof and Fenner and their companions, Jean Novak, 19, of 117 Marigold street, and Alice Lucas, 19, of 145 Dahlia street, both of Munhall, said they were seated in an automobile when an armed man, a handkerchief over his face, ordered them to hold up their hands. He took the men's empty wallets, but didn't molest the girls.

Goldstein did not testify.

WADDELL CITES COACH CAREER

Robert N. Waddell, Council candidate, told a Citizens' League headquarters audience that the proper type of men would bring improved government, and that he believed he possessed the necessary qualifications of courage, integrity and business experience to serve the public.

Waddell referred to his work as coach of the Carnegie Tech football team, and pointed out that Bill Roper, former Princeton coach, was a Philadelphia councilman, and that Judge Wally Steffen was also a product of the football field. Council, he said, is a powerful factor in city government, or should be.

In the past, he said, Senator James J. Coyne has passed orders to the Mayor and the latter has passed them to Council, which acted as a rubber stamp. Any man of average intelligence, he said, by intense study could become familiar with the affairs of government.

Polish-American Club Picks Slate

A complete slate of candidates was indorsed by the Polish-American Citizens' Club, when 350 members met in the club headquarters at 5513 Sunnyside street, E. Tythe, president, announced last night.

Those indorsed were John S. Herron for Mayor; Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay and Judges Harry H. Rowand and Ralph Smith for Common Pleas Court; Judges Frank A. Piekarski and Benjamin Lencher for County Court; Mrs. Lois McBride for Juvenile Court, and William A. Magee, James F. Malone and Louis Wechsler for City Council.

Dentist Outlines Council Platform

Dr. H. V. Walls, dentist, residing at 6410 Wilkins avenue, has outlined his platform as a Democratic Council candidate. He would try to do in Pittsburgh what President Roosevelt is doing for the country, eliminate waste, keep taxes low, establish more free medical clinics and foster a movement for municipal ownership of utilities.

He would interest himself in the election of legislators pledged to social legislation.

HENRY TO OPEN DRIVE FRIDAY

John M. Henry, candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination, will give his campaign a formal kickoff Friday night with a meeting in the auditorium of the Forbes street branch of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company. In addition to Henry, Maj. E. Lowry Humes and Adolph Edlis will speak. J. J. Kerr will preside.

John A. Dalzell has indorsed Henry with the statement that "if the people of Pittsburgh want the present political picture changed," they should vote for Henry.

VOTE MACHINES TO BE USED IN CITIES

Allegheny County's voting machines will be used in Pittsburgh, Duquesne, Clairton and McKeesport to determine the election in the more important general public offices, according to Maj. William T. Rees, director of the Bureau of Elections.

Local officials will be elected by the use of supplementary paper ballots, Rees said.

In Pittsburgh, the Mayor, Council, Judges and Sheriff will be selected on the machines, and ordinary ballots used for ward officials.

In the third class cities, a Mayor, Council, Sheriff, Judges and Directors of the Poor will be listed on the machines.

For a time, the use of the machines to elect Pittsburgh's City Council was threatened by the fact that one candidate, E. J. Wuerthele, filed papers on six tickets. Wuerthele last night said he agreed to withdraw on two of them, but his decision came after the withdrawal period had ended. So his name remains on all six ballots.

Rees said today he had not received the withdrawals, but, however, has arrived at a way of shifting local offices to the paper ballots and allow the Council fight to be waged on the machines in spite of the complication. He is removing the county surveyor from the machine to the ballots.

There are enough voting machines to permit two being placed in many precincts as a precaution against mechanical difficulties.

Piekarski to Talk Before Polish Club

Judge Frank A. Piekarski, candidate for County Court, will speak before the Polish Citizens' Club of Natrona and Harrison Township tomorrow night. He also is scheduled to address the West Deer Taxpayers' Association.

Haggerty Advocates Death for Kidnapers

Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty, candidate for Common Pleas Court, urged the death penalty for all kidnapers who fail to return their victim before trial, in a speech before the Republican Council of Women in Wilkinsburg. Mr. Haggerty is stressing his willingness, if elected, to serve his entire term in Criminal Court.

UNION BOARD FOR LENCHER

Judge Benjamin Lencher, candidate for election to County Court, has been given unanimous indorsement by the Central Labor Union. In notifying Judge Lencher of its support the labor body declared its full accord with "his wonderful activities in civic, communal and educational fields, particularly his humane attitude in administering the important work of the Juvenile Court since being appointed to the bench."

Judge Lencher has also been indorsed by the Federation of Political Clubs of McKeesport and the McKinley Club of Rankin.

Tonight Judge Lencher will address North Side welfare workers at 16 East Parkway. Other speakers will be W. G. Negley, candidate for Juvenile Court; Robert Cochrane, candidate for sheriff, and Raymond D. Evans, candidate for Common Pleas Court.

PARTY LOYALTY PLEA MADE BY MACKRELL

Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, backed by the Progressive Republican Committee for the mayoralty nomination, asked Republicans to register in their own party, when making a campaign speech last night in Belmar School, Thirteenth Ward.

Mackrell said he was opposed to Senator James J. Coyne, and was opposed by Coyne. Mackrell ignored Councilman P. J. McArdle, second anti-administration candidate, and said the job of the Republican voters was through the Mackrell candidacy to depose Coyne as Republican boss. He said:

"I am willing to take my chances in this Republican city with the Democratic candidate in November, and the question of the Democratic party can wait until then. I have no boss and no person cracks the whip over my head.

"I will oppose the forced assessment of city employes for political purposes, which is now being done."

Mackrell headquarters in the Twentieth Ward have been opened at 16 Wabash avenue. John L. Dougherty is chairman of the Twentieth Ward Progressive committee; Herman J. Hennessy, vice chairman; Joseph Henniger, treasurer and William G. Wilson, secretary. Robert K. Cochrane, Mackrell candidate for Sheriff, last night spoke in Wilkinsburg, Glassport and Clairton, and indorsed the Progressive Republican ticket.

MAGEE OPENS CAMPAIGN BY RADIO

Former Mayor William A. Magee, indorsed as a councilmanic candidate by Councilman P. J. McArdle and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, anti-organization mayoralty candidates, and probably to be indorsed by the John Henry wing of the Democratic party, last night opened a political campaign unique in Pittsburgh politics.

Mr. Magee made his initial radio address, and plans to attend no political meetings, making his vote appeal entirely over the air. He was interviewed by Attorney Harvey M. Aronson. Mr. Magee said that politics had come to connote "an evasive and subversive exercise of official power to control administration in behalf of local group and private greed."

He declared political organizations had come to dominate the parties rather than act as their agents, and became strong through the appeals of persons with special interests to serve. However, he asserted that people were giving a new attention to political issues, and were now aroused to see that political leaders really served the public as a whole.

Political Forum Set For Ex-service Men

The McKeesport Ex-Service Men's Voters' League will hold a political forum for all candidates for McKeesport city offices in the V. F. W. Hall, at 8:30 p. m., tomorrow. A similar meeting will be held in the same hall August 30 for county candidates.

McNair Speaking At South Side Meet

William N. McNair, Roosevelt Democratic candidate for Mayor, will speak at the Morse School, South Side, tonight. Thomas J. Gallagher and John M. Huston, Roosevelt candidates for City Council, and A. Marshall Thompson, candidate on the same slate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, are also listed to speak.

DEMOCRATS AID MUSMANNO

Democratic headquarters in Turtle Creek Valley have been opened in behalf of Judge M. A. Musmanno, who is also Republican candidate for the Court of Common Pleas, at 620 Penn avenue, Turtle Creek, under the chairmanship of Anthony Caruso.

Judge Musmanno, this evening, will address citizens of Penn Township, a meeting of Twenty-second Ward Voters, and one of Steel City Lodge No. 775 in the Seventh Avenue Hotel and appear at a meeting of First Ward Voters in Fifth Avenue High School.

BARGAINS

There are bargains aplenty advertised these days—clothes, amusements, furniture, foods. Something catches your fancy; you reach for a telephone. A few brief words and the purchase is made. • A bargain, yes. But the greater bargain is the telephone itself. For less than 10 cents a day it helps you shop, runs errands, brings news, keeps you in touch with friends near and far. • More than a bargain—when emergencies arise the telephone then is priceless. Without delay it summons aid, saves property—even life!

You cannot measure the value of a telephone in your home by its small cost. One call may be worth more to you than the telephone's cost for a lifetime.

CITES MELLON 'STRATEGY'

The refusal of any Republican candidates for Mayor to withdraw from the race has insured that a Mellon candidate will be nominated by the Republican party September 12, Assemblyman John J. Kane, candidate for Council, declared today. Kane, chairman of the committee of Roosevelt delegates, has issued a call in behalf of William N. McNair, the Democratic candidate for Mayor.

Kane said:

"The strategy of Mellon's minions has insured that a Mellon candidate will be nominated by the Republican party September 19, a result which should satisfy every sincere Democrat.

"To the uninitiated, it would appear that the determination of three Republican factionalists to seek the Pittsburgh mayoralty is due to uncontrollable personal ambitions."

"But this seeming competition in the Grand Old Public Utility party fools no one who is able to read between the lines. The only explanation of the presence of three Republican candidates in the mayoralty race is that it was predetermined and pre-arranged by the Mellon board of strategy."

"Now is the time for all good citizens to beware of Mellon's minions as well as Mellon's millions."

PRAISE SMITH'S ELECTION VIEWS

Messages of commendation for his stand on the evil of too many paid watchers at elections, have poured into Judge Ralph H. Smith's headquarters in the Law and Finance Building, Fourth avenue, and other candidates have indicated they will follow his leadership in banning the custom, regarded by many as an easy money system for political hangers-on, Smith headquarters said today.

Tonight Judge Smith will be the principal speaker at an outing of the Permas Club, near Mars.

McKeesport Hears Praise for Lindsay

K. William Schuchman, chairman of the campaign committee for Bernard L. Flynn for Poor Director, urged the election of Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay as Judge of Common Pleas Court at three meetings in McKeesvort last night. He said:

"It behooves the tax payers of Allegheny County, if they want law enforcement, to have men of Mr. Lindsay's type on the Common Pleas bench. He is a hard fighter and a straight shooter."

Injured By Coal Conveyor, Man Dies

WOMAN JUDGE URGED BY PARK

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, declaring a "good woman judge" would do more for child betterment than a "good man judge," threw his support to Mrs. Lois D. McBride, a candidate for Judge of Juvenile Court, in a statement issued yesterday. He said:

"Her method of handling this work, which has been identical with Juvenile Court practice, has certainly been effective. In close to 1,000 cases in which she has helped us only 14 or 15 have been in court again for a repeated offense.

"Naturally, as a result of her work with us, which has been voluntary and without compensation of any kind, I have the utmost confidence in her and her ability to handle the important work ahead of the Judge of Juvenile Court."

RALLIES SET BY DEMOCRATS

Walter H. Demmler, Roosevelt Democratic candidate for Council, and James L. O'Toole, Jr., Roosevelt Democratic candidate for Judge of County Court, will speak at a meeting of the Twenty-Sixth Ward Democratic Club in Perry High School tonight.

O'Toole and two Roosevelt Democratic candidates for Council, John M. Huston and Representative John J. Kane, are to speak in Peabody High auditorium tonight.

Kane and A. Marshall Thompson, Roosevelt Democratic candidate for Common Pleas Court, will speak at an outdoor meeting at Oakleaf and Seaside drives tonight.

Candidate Opposes Child Crime Stigma

The new Juvenile Court should have no legal or regal formality to subdue or intimidate the child, Attorney W. G. Negley, candidate for the new tribunal, told the Wilkinsburg Women's Republican Council last night in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel. He said:

"Every effort should be made to remove from the child's mind any thought of the stigma of crime. This is vitally necessary because unless you gain the confidence of the child, you build an almost insurmountable barrier between the court and the child."

Hoyt's Fine Pitching.
New York Wants Yarosz.

PITT SHOOTER GETS GOOD POST

Waite Hoyt's great hurling exhibition as a relief man for the Pirates yesterday, when he pitched 10 straight scoreless innings, retired 25 batsmen in order and allowed only two hits against the Boston Braves, although a home run beat him in the fourteenth inning, coming on top of his fine work against the New York Yankees, his former mates, in the exhibition game at Forbes Field last week, is heartening to the followers of the Pirates, who are grasping at every slight hope that remains with the season drawing to a close and eight games separating the locals from first place.

Waite Hoyt

So long as the Giants keep up their magnificent pace there is little hope for any of the closely bunched contenders, but until the flag is definitely clinched there always is a chance. Nothing can be taken for granted in baseball. The Pirates' main handicap so far has been unsteady pitching. With Hoyt back in form, that means more rest between games for the other members of the mound staff, which in turn means there still is a chance for a general recovery in this department.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN SEEKS YAROSZ

The story hardly had gone out over the wires of Teddy Yarosz' splendid victory over Vince Dundee at Forbes Field Monday night before there was a tinkling of the telephone in the hotel room of his manager, Ray Foutts. It was a long-distance call from New York and the caller was none other than Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of Madison Square Garden, and he was begging for Yarosz' services in a return bout with Dundee in the biggest temple of swat in these United States.

Dundee is one of the Garden's favorite cards. He has fought some of his best fights there and his last time in the Garden ring defeated Ben Jeby for the fourth time and would have been crowned the world middleweight champion but for the fact that the officials called the bout a draw, leading to a riotous scene on the part of the spectators.

Foutts said he'd think the matter over. A few hours later he received another call from Johnston pressing the subject and at noon yesterday came a telegram stating that Johnston was holding open September 7 and October 4 for the match. Meanwhile promoters in Newark, N. J., Dundee's home town, where Yarosz recently won two bouts, had communicated with Foutts, also seeking a return match.

BIG GATE MAKES PITTSBURGH FAVORED SPOT

Foutts has been thinking things over ever since and has come to the conclusion that he is no hurry to grab the Eastern offers. Yarosz and Dundee drew gross receipts of $21,281.70 for their Forbes Field battle and Teddy's end was $4,594.90, his biggest purse to date, and Foutts believes his boxer will do better remaining a big shot in his home town than he could do as a small frog in the big New York puddle.

There was a time when Foutts was on the other side of the fence. He had to beg for a chance in New York and had to enlist the aid of Jimmy Bronson in getting a hearing. He finally got it in the form of one of Teddy's four matches with Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, a 12-rounder, which was declared a draw. Teddy was overanxious to make good that night and didn't show at his best and that was the last he heard from the Garden and New York until the news reached there that he had beaten Dundee.

The match here drew more money than Ben Jeby attracted in two bouts as the recognized champion against Young Terry in Newark and against Lou Brouillard in Madison Square Garden.

With the word getting around that Pittsburgh again is one of America's best fight towns in a financial sense it will not be hard for local promoters to lure the best fighters here. Brouillard is available for a 15-round title match before the cold weather sets in, and Yarosz has his eye on that bout, and he would rather box Lou right here in Pittsburgh than meet him in New York.

14,446 PAID ADMISSIONS AT POPULAR PRICES

Paid attendance, 14,446: 11,189 tickets at $1.10; 1,613 at $2.20, and 1,644 at $3.30, for gross receipts of $21,281.70; minus 10 per cent federal tax, $19,347; minus state tax of 5 per cent, $18,379.65; main bout boxers' purses of 25 per cent of net, $4,594.90 each.

JAMES (RED) MASON OLD IRREPRESSIBLE SELF

James (Red) Mason, aged former dean of local boxing managers, simply must keep his hand in the sport. He came here to see the Yarosz-Dundee fight and wound up with a battle of his own, against Gus Camp, former local middleweight boxer. It was all over some disparaging remarks from both sides, and they wound up in police court.

Mason ever has been most colorful, if not vitriolic, and free-spoken in his likes and dislikes. His life has been one of strife, but not without its balancing sense of humor, and in his time he did much to keep the spark of life in the boxing game hereabouts.

A few years ago, James the Red had a memorable battle with one Abie Witz, a former flyweight boxer. As he grows older he becomes bolder, taking on bigger and heavier foes. When he reaches 90 he ought to make a good semi-final for a big local show.

PITT SHOOTER HEADED FOR JOB IN EGYPT

Spurgeon B. Wuertenberger, crack shot of the University of Pittsburgh rifle team for the seasons of 1930, 1931 and 1932, will sail from New York next week to take up duties as an instructor in chemistry and assistant physical director at the American University in Cairo, Egypt.

Wuertenberger, who lives at 46 Tretow street, North Side, was a ranking student in chemistry during his years at Pitt. For the past year he has been doing graduate work leading toward his master's and doctor's degrees.

He is a member of Alpha Chi Sigma, professional chemistry fraternity, and of Scabbard and Blade, honorary military society.

He will be in Egypt for three years, and will spend his summers in Europe, one season at the University of Munich and one at Cambridge.

SPORTS FIGURES SEEK PUBLIC OFFICE

The entrance of Bob Waddell, former Carnegie Tech football coach, into the race for a City Council seat calls attention to the fact that other well-known local sportsmen figure in the primaries. Johnny Freund, veteran basketball promoter and authority, is a candidate for the office of alderman in the Thirtieth Ward, where he has resided for a quarter of a century. Johnny Baker, former basketball star, is in the field for a county judgeship, and Al Kaufman, another former floor ace, is out for burgess of the Borough of Brentwood.

VEECK'S PLAN WINS SUPPORT OF PREXIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Strong support developed today for William L. Veeck's proposal that baseball interest be revised through a series of inter-league games in mid-season and assured the scheme of thorough discussion before the 1934 season begins. There seemed to be at least an outside chance it would be tried next year.

Unqualified indorsement of the Chicago Cubs' president's plan was voiced by Alva Bradley and Stephen W. McKeever, presidents, respectively, of the Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn Dodgers. Other club-owners almost unanimously agreed that some such radical departure from the regular order of things was needed if baseball was to climb out of the "red."

Sam Breadon, of the St. Louis Cardinals, thought the plan might increase attendance, and President William Benswanger, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said it was worth serious consideration. President Gerald Nugent, of the Phillies, was another who thought the plan at least should be thoroughly discussed.

The chief dissenter was Frank J. Navin, of Detroit, who declared the falling off in baseball attendance was no greater than in other branches of the amusement business and that better crowds could be expected with improvement in business conditions.

Mid season is the proper time for inter-league competition, in the opinion of John A. Heydler, president of the National League, who shares the view of Veeck that the "critical" condition of baseball's business this year calls for aggressive action. He said:

"Veeck is a progressive. His views certainly will carry much weight in any plans we make for next year. Certainly we cannot afford to stand pat, as he says, and rely on a return of the good old days."

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: FRANKLIN'S SLEEPING SWIM—In July, 1785, while returning from his political post in Paris, Benjamin Franklin landed at Southampton, England, where he went to bathe in Martin's salt water baths. He fell asleep in the water and slept nearly an hour, but continued floating without sinking or turning. This feat is recorded in Franklin's Diary, July, 1785, with the additional information "that he should have hardly thought this feat possible, water is the easiest bed that can be."

K. A. C. Swimmers Enter Park Meet

Bob Weber, Pete Hytowitz, William Regan and Albert Kleber will represent the Keystone Athletic Club in the Kennywood Park swimming meet Saturday. The meet is being held in honor of Mayor John S. Herron. Margaret Powell is the lone woman entrant from the K. A. C.

On August 31 the Keystone A. C. swimmers will participate in a meet to be held at Clairton.

Cagle and Kelly Buy Brooklyn Club

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Sale of the Brooklyn Dodgers, of the National Professional Football League, to Chris Cagle and John (Shipwreck) Kelly has been announced by Dr. Harry A. March, the league's eastern representative.

The purchase price, Dr. March said, was between $25,000 and $50,000. The club had been owned by William V. Dwyer.

DOUBLEHEADER CARDED FOR TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. — The crucial series of the Pirates and Giants, slated to open today with a doubleheader, was postponed at noon on account of rain. In making the announcement of the postponement, officials of the New York club stated that a bargain bill would be staged tomorrow.

George Gibson led his slumping Pittsburgh athletes into the big city about midnight last night after a hurried trip from Boston, where yesterday the Pirates were defeated in a gripping 14-inning fight. Walter Berger, the Braves' big outfielder and home-run king, unleashed a circuit drive into the left-field seats in the fourteenth round. The score of the Boston victory was 5 to 4, and the Pirate setback marked their fourth running defeat at the Hub.

BUCS IN FOURTH PLACE

The Pirates were in fourth place when they reached New York. Their series of reverses sustained in Boston had the effect of dropping them from the runneruu position to the fourth notch of the standings. The Braves, as a result of their consistent play, moved into second place. The Giants are eight full games in front of their traditional rival from Pittsburgh.

Members of the Pirate entourage were singing the praises of Pitcher Waite Hoyt when they reached New York. Hoyt was the big hero of yesterday's long fight in Boston despite the fact he had to taste of defeat in the fourth. Going into the battle in the fourth inning, Hoyt did not allow a hit through eight and one-third innings of pitching. He was solved for only two hits in 11 frames, the second of these being Berger's homer.

HOYT MAY BE STARTER

Hoyt startled 6,000 Boston fans by retiring 25 batters in succes-

Sam Gray Back With St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Sam Gray, veteran pitcher, who has been a player without a team for several days, was back with the Browns today.

Gray had been claimed by the Washington Senators via the waiver route, but the Senators refused to accept him when Gray told Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington club, that he had a sore arm.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

DETROIT, Aug. 23.—I said to Griff today, "What are the chances for a 10-buck loan?"

Nick Altrock

Griff said, "The chances are even."

I said, "That's fine."

I said, "Then could you slip me three bones?"

Griff said, "I wouldn't even give you three cheers."

I said, "Then I am Two-Buck Tim from Timbuctoo."

Griff said, "That's funny—I am No Sirree from North Surrey, England."

Griff said, "What do you want this money for?"

I said, "To make a first down payment on a steam yacht."

Griff said, "Well, you are now fourth down, with 10 to go."

I said, "In that case I will have to kick."

Griff said, "Go ahead and kick, but all you'll get out of me is a dime."

So I took the 10 cents.

WESTMONT NET EVENT CARDED

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The Allegheny Mountains championships, latest innovation in the district net line, will grace the Labor Day week-end sport program, according to announcement today from Ted Owen, leader of the Westmont Tennis Club, on the Johnstown rectangles, of which the event is slated to be staged. The tourney has been organized with idea of drawing to the Cambria metropolis for holiday hostilities the out-of-town performers who perforce missed out on attending the Southern Pennsylvania titular affair, customary Westmont classic, because of its unfortunate conflict in dates with the Allegheny County conclave at the Westinghouse Club here early last month.

Action in the Allegheny Mountains milling will get under way on Friday, September 1, and will be terminated the ensuing Monday. The Beaver County tourney, beginning at Ambridge on Saturday, September 2, and running for a week, undoubtedly will diminish the Pittsburgh group that would ordinarily trek to the Cambria competition.

Meanwhile, at Altoona today, Steel City racqueters begin quest of Central Pennsylvania honors. John Brown, Mt. Lebanon star, who already holds two legs on the Mid-Pennsylvania flagon, heads the local troupe, which is billed to be rounded out by Billy O'Loughlin and Paul Sullivan, of the P. A. A., and Eddie Alcorn, of the Edgewood Club.

Three straight-set frays were reeled off yesterday as the second annual Stanton Heights invitation singles gathering began on the North Aiken lot. Frank Broida, Western Maryland premier, defeated Carlton Hughes, rangy Stantonian, 6-3, 6-1. Billy O'Loughlin outdrove Russ Unger, home club ace, 6-4, 6-2, and Alcorn trimmed Sullivan, 6-0, 6-4.

Champ Primo Draws 1,000 In Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Scaling 261 pounds, mammoth Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion of the world, exhibited his skill before 1,000 fans last night, boxing two-round bouts with Frank Edgren, 201, and Harold Mays, 209, sparring partners.

Mays, of Bayonne, N. J., gave the big man from Italy a brisk workout, but the first bout was a languid affair.

SOCCER BODY MEETS

The West Penn Soccer Association met last night at the association headquarters, plans being formulated for the coming season, which will get under way September 16. Alex Doig presided. The Central District League is to meet at Spartan Hall, Wilkinsburg, at 7:30 tomorrow night.

ALL-STAR GRID TEAMS READY FOR BATTLE

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The 1933 football season will push off tomorrow night at Soldier field with a battle between a great collection of Far Western stars, and a squad of talent selected from the Middle West and East.

From the tentative lineups, the contest will be a struggle between Southern California greats of the past few seasons, and the best coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern, has been able to round up from Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota and as far as West Point and Tulane. Howard Jones, of Southern California, director of the Western squad, plans to use at least seven former Trojans in his battlefront.

The Trojans slated to lineup for the opening kickoff are Ray Sparling, end; Tay Brown and Ernie Smith, Jones' famous tackle combination; Johnny Baker, guard; Stan Williamson, center, and Morley Drury and Gaius Shaver in the backfield. His other probable starting end is Dave Nisbet, Washington. Peter Heiser, of Stanford, is listed as the other guard, with Hank Schaldach of California, and Max Krause, of Gonzaga, the remaining members of the backfield.

Hanley plans to concentrate on Big Ten and Notre Dame stars.

ROONEY SIGNS STAR CENTER

John Oehler, all-America center last year at Purdue, has come to terms with President Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh National Football League club. He lives in Lafayette, Ind. After graduation last June he accepted a position and decided to pass up football in spite of offers from various clubs in the league. But when teammates, Letsinger and Janecke, both guards, signed with Pittsburgh, he listened to the overtures of President Rooney. Today Rooney had a wire from him accepting terms and stating he would be on hand September 1 to start training at Newell's Grove.

CITY LEAGUE TITLE BATTLE ON TODAY

A half-game to the good, the Whitaker nine, of the City League, can sew up the second-half gonfalon and go into the titular playoff series with Dormont by defeating the Book nine this evening in the final contest of the campaign at Olympia Park.

Thanks to the fast play of the Gillespies last evening, who held the Books to a 4-4 deadlock, Whitaker broke the first place deadlock by beating Homewood, 10 to 3.

The Books, defending champions, lost out in a playoff game with Dormont for the first half title, and may be counted upon to battle hard to gain the edge this evening, and with it the second-half championship.

FRISCH TO BE HONORED

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Frankie Frisch will be honored at the Polo Grounds next Monday by the boys who succeeded him on the sandlots of New York. Teams in the New York City Baseball Federation are collecting small sums for a fund to provide a gift for the Cardinal manager. Frisch learned the game on the sandlots in the Bronx and graduated into the major leagues direct from Fordham University.

ANDY MATTIS OF JOHNNIES NEAR DEATH

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 23.—Andrew Mattis, 24, pitcher for the Johnstown club of the Middle-Atlantic League, is at the point of death in Memorial Hospital as the result of an attack of blood poisoning resulting from the infection of a tooth.

He underwent a blood transfusion yesterday after 44 persons, including the members of the Johnstown and Springfield clubs had undergone tests before the suitable type of blood was found, but did not rally after the operation.

Mattis' home is in Brownsville. He pitched for Beaver Falls in the Middle Atlantic League in 1931, and at the end of that season was bought by the Pittsburgh Pirates. Last year he was with Tulsa in the Western League, joining the Johnstown team at the beginning of the present season.

NRA WE DO OUR PART

NOT ALIKE!

THE importance of the 2¢ premium reduction on AMOCO-GAS begins with the sheer importance of AMOCO-GAS itself and the reputation of the company behind it.

The progress of The American Oil Company has been due to its leadership in originating products of unusual quality and in describing and selling them honestly. The motoring public believes our statements.

AMOCO-GAS is the original premium motor fuel! It is different! There is nothing else like it! Its formula is our own exclusive one, employing distinctive, expensive ingredients. It has often been imitated, never equalled.

AMOCO-GAS is the one complete motor fuel. No other fuel can do all the things AMOCO-GAS does--nor any of them so well.

AMOCO-GAS is not merely an "anti-knock" fuel. AMOCO-GAS adds . . . greater riding ease . . . greater driving ease . . . smoother, greater and more certain power flow . . . more dependable motor performance and longer motor life . . . reduced upkeep and repairs . . . more miles per gallon and lower costs per mile.

AMOCO-GAS is regarded as the finest motor fuel on earth--worth every cent of the 5¢ premium it has heretofore commanded over regular gasoline.

BUT . . . we wanted still more AMOCO-GAS users in addition to the many, many present devoted ones. Changed economic factors in industry, combined with advantages resulting from our recent big expansion program, have made it possible for us to . . .

. . . REDUCE the premium on AMOCO-GAS by 2¢ a gallon!

. . . without in any way changing its ingredients or famous quality! It's the same matchless AMOCO-GAS.

If you now use AMOCO-GAS we say: Here are new savings for you!

To all others we say: Here's your opportunity to use the finest motor fuel on earth at the lowest price in its history.

BRAVES, TIGERS CLICK

BENGALS CHECK WIN RAMPAGE OF NATS

Associated Press.

The Detroit Tigers and the Boston Braves hold the center of the baseball spotlight today, the Tigers mainly for an accomplishment of yesterday, when they stopped the Washington Senators' 13-game winning streak, and the Braves because of the determined and threatening bid they are making for the National League pennant.

Lightning seldom strikes twice in the same spot, but National League contenders, harking back to 1914, are casting an apprehensive eye on the exploits of the Braves.

There's still a long hard struggle ahead of Bill McKechnie's hopefuls before they can rival the feat of the Braves of 19 years ago who climbed from last place on July 4 to win the pennant and then the world series in successive games from the Philadelphia Athletics. But it's not impossible.

WIN LONG ONE

Their fourth straight triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates and their seventeenth victory in 21 games yesterday sent the Braves flying into second place, seven games behind the New York Giants.

Sharing the headlines with the Braves were the Tigers, who snapped the 13-game winning streak of the Washington Senators with a thrilling 10-8 triumph. Washington twice overcame Tiger leads, but Detroit finally won out in the ninth, when Hank Greenberg, big first baseman, clouted a homer with one on and two out. The Senators' defeat, coupled with the New York Yankees' victory over the Cleveland Indians, clipped Washington's American League lead to seven and a half games.

YANKS TAKE TRIBE

A triple by Bill Dickey in the ninth, followed by a single by Joe Sewell, enabled the Yankees to nose out the Indians, 4-3. Vernon Gomez allowed only four hits and fanned 10, and should have had an easy victory over Mel Harder except for his own wildness. He walked three men in the fifth, when Cleveland scored two runs, and uncorked a wild pitch in the eighth that put Earl Averill in position to score the tying run on Bad News Hale's double.

Home runs by McNair, Higgins and Finney helped the Athletics turn back the St. Louis Browns, 7-6, while the Chicago White Sox took two games from Boston, 8-1 and 4-0. Ted Lyons allowed seven hits in the opener, and Joe Heving six in the shutout.

QUEEN HELEN DEFIES DOCTOR

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—If Helen Wills had obeyed doctor's orders she wouldn't be seeking her eight national singles tennis championship now. She said yesterday:

"I was told to rest until January because of my back injury. I walk slightly crooked now. With a lot of that California sunshine on the beach, however, I expect to recover completely. This spinal strain is quite troublesome, but otherwise I feel as well as ever."

The Helen Jacobs-Dorothy Round semi-final-round match in singles and the doubles semi-final encounter involving Mrs. Moody and Elizabeth Ryan and Miss Round and Mary Heeley, scheduled today, were postponed for the third straight day because of rain.

LOCAL GOLFERS IN TOURNEYS

Local golfers are participating in two tourneys today. At Fox Chapel, the final Pennsylvania State, one-day handicap event is in progress. At Alcoma, the Syria Temple's third annual tourney finds a big crowd in attendance.

Starting times at Fox Chapel were exhausted last evening, according to James A. Downes, which meant that approximately 280 golfers would compete.

PIRATES-GIANTS RAINED OUT

sion after he had walked Al Spohrer at the start of the fourth. His performance was rightfully called one of the brightest of the season in the major leagues, and doubtless it has won for him a starting position in the slumping Pirate staff.

Hal Smith was off form as he worked four rounds against the Braves. Vaughan's error and his own wild pitch paved the way for two runs in the rst and they added two more in the fourth. The Pirates scored single tallies in the third and fourth and Gus Suhr came through with a timely single in the fifth to force a deadlock. The bases were loaded with two out when Gus cracked out his hit.

Fred Frankhouse's brilliant pitching through 14 gruelling rounds was eclipsed by the dazzling slab work offered by Hoyt. From the fifth to the fourteenth neither side was able to get a marker over the plate.

Al Quaill Scores Thirty-fourth Win

Mike Pretola, 138, Altoona, defeated Joe Brody, 136, Pittsburgh. Chester Wagner, 158, Altoona, defeated Jim Acuff, 163, Pittsburgh. George Martin, 156, Pittsburgh, defeated Warren Martellaci, 140, Altoona. Lew Glassbrouser, 157, Altoona, knocked out Moon Huggins, 160, Pittsburgh, third round. Dan Alampresa, 137, Altoona, defeated Leo Ewerene, 135, Pittsburgh. Bizzie Gioia, 136, Altoona, defeated Frank Rickards, 134, Pittsburgh. LOCAL GOLFER WINS

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Aug. 23.—Pier Dagnals, of Pittsburgh, opposes J. Y. Wilkins, of New York, in a quarter-final round match in the "Old White" golf tournament here today. All favorites escaped defeat yesterday.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

One of the things which would help the average golfer to understand is that there is very little pronation of the left wrist, or rotation of the left forearm, in the correct golf swing; and that the effort to introduce either is about as harmful as anything that could be done.

Bobby Jones

It is certainly sure that any position close to the half-way mark either going up or coming down exhibits the left hand presenting its back approximately square to the front, or very nearly at right angles to its position at address. It is not unnatural to assume that this is in great measure the result of pronation, and is itself alone responsible for "opening" and closing the face of the club.

So we commonly observe the average golfer beginning his backswing by a sudden pronation of the left wrist, turning the palm underneath, and directing the club in a very flat arc around his knees. In this manner he conceives himself to be opening the face of the club, when in actual fact, he is doing nothing more than removing all possibility of correct body movement. In a great majority of cases, this sort of action is accompanied by a left shoulder that comes around too high, and a movement of weight toward the left foot during the backswing.

In the downswing, too, this misconception leads to trouble, for conceiving that in order to reclose the face in the act of hitting the left hand must be turned back over, the player forces his left arm and side into such a tight place that it must collapse. There used to be a lot of talk about the "right hand climbing over the left," but it must be understood that this takes place only after impact when everything has relaxed after the hitting effort.

I think it is important in gripping the club to place the left hand to some extent on top of the shaft. How much, of course, can vary, but enough so that three knuckles of the hand can be seen by the player as he looks down would not be extreme. In this way the usefulness and strength of the left side arm are assured.

The thing we want most in the backswing is ample and correct body-turn. Too many players make the mistake of attempting to turn the shoulders horizontally, without permitting the natural dip of the left shoulder which would normally occur as the body turns on an inclined axis. This, of course, causes the head to move, and is a very bad mistake.

TWIST OF WRISTS

All this is only made worse by any amount of pronation of the left wrist at the beginning of the backswing. Indeed, a slight twist of the wrists in the opposite direction—supination of the left, can very well be used to start the swing off right.

But the opening and closing of the face of the club are amply cared for by the correct body movement. When the player addresses the ball, he squares his club to the hole, and in his grip he determines the relation of his left hand to the club face—the striking area. This relation, of course, remains the same throughout the swing, so that in order to bring the face back square to the ball the left hand must come back in its same position. And in the correct swing the body movement will see that it does so without a great deal of manipulation.

HOOSIER COPS SHOOT TITLE

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—An automobile salesman from Clinton, Ind., was crowned trapshooting's champion of champions in yesterday's feature event of the Grand American handicap tournament, the battle between holders of state titles.

H. L. Cheek, who has been shooting clay targets only three years, outclassed a field of 35 other state champions or runners-up, and when the final scores were posted it was found that Cheek had cracked 197 out of a possible 200 targets to nose out Paul Earle, of Starr, S. C., by a margin of one.

In another event, John R. Taylor, of Newark, O., competing with other professional shooters, won the North American clay target title in both singles and doubles. After trailing at the end of the first 100 targets in the doubles with 95, Taylor was back with 92 for a total of 187.

Immediately after he had won the doubles, he took to the traps again and crashed 197 out of 200 to take the singles crown.

Mrs. Walter P. Andrews, of Atlanta, Ga., retained her women's doubles title by breaking 87 out of a possible 100, and Miss Alice Crothers, of Chestnut Hills, Pa., winner of the North American singles title, was second with 76.

Mobile, Springfield Legion Nines Win

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Teams from Mobile, Ala., and Springfield, O., have battled their way through the first round of the Eastern Sectional American Legion Junior Baseball tournament. Before 3,000 fans here yesterday, Springfield defeated Reading, Pa., 8-4, and Mobile downed a plucky team from Sanford, Me., 5-2, in a 14-inning battle.

Springfield will meet Mobile, and Trenton, N. J., will take on Gastonia, N. C., in today's second round games. The latter two teams held first round byes.

Forbes

Rails Under A Rigid NRA For Decades.

By B. C. FORBES

RUMBLINGS come from Washington that NRA enthusiasts are eager to bring all the railroads under the blue eagle's wings.

Mr Forbes

Railway executives pooh-pooh the idea. Said one president to me:

"We have been operating under a code for more than a generation. We have had our prices—meaning our rates—strictly regulated since the latter part of the nineteenth century. We have had our wages regulated, also. The Interstate Commerce Commission has been our NRA. We have been constantly under its bidding.

"Why, we haven't been at liberty even to reduce rates, time and time again we have been refused permission to give up branch lines which have survived their usefulness and become a serious charge on our revenues. We have been told how many men we must employ on each train.

"Industry is only beginning to get a taste of what we have had all these years. As it is, the government, not content with regulating us to the n'th degree, recently appointed a railway 'dictator.'

"Having done all this, it is ridiculous to think of putting us under the NRA."

MOST PEOPLE must feel that Gen. Johnson and his NRA aides have already been assigned a big enough task. As this railway president emphasized, the railroads have long had their prices regulated, have long been curbed in dealing with labor. Not only so, but they have had to prepare every financial statement according to rules and regulations prescribed by the I. C. C. and have even had to obtain permission before they could issue one dollar additional capital.

Incidentally, under the iron rule of the I. C. C., the railroads have not exactly flourished. When they could have accumulated adequate surpluses, without injury to prosperity, in order to tide them over lean years, they were prevented from doing so. Their overlords persisted in whittling down rates. And any road which earned more than six per cent even in boom times was sentenced to hand over half to the government.

Many fear that the NRA is also attaching too little importance to permitting the earning of profits. Without profits, high pay cannot be continued nor can the raising of the capital necessary for progress and expansion.

After all, our whole, vast, costly system of government must be suported by taxes, and taxes can come only from earnings. Therefore, reasonable earnings, reasonable profits are just as essential to the maintenance of prosperity as are generous wages.

THE FEDERAL treasury's credit is still ace-high. The latest security offering was over-subscribed four times.

AMERICAN exporters are not yet ready to accept large orders from Communist Russia on inordinately long-term payments. Nor, despite reports to the contrary, is the United States government likely to finance such shipments just yet.

HOW HAS Oldsmobile already achieved this year greater sales than were made during the whole of 1932? How, too, was it able to sell more cars in 10 days this month than in any corresponding period since 1929? Sales Manager R. M. W. Shaw, when questioned, told me:

"Oldsmobile's success is definite proof of the wisdom of General Motors in making a large investment in tools and equipment necessary to effect style leadership. Also, we have had confidence in the potential automobile market, and during all of 1933 have been aggressive in our merchandising and advertising programs."

ANOTHER LINE of business which is exhibiting revived vigor is life insurance. Says William A. Law, aggressive president of Penn Mutual:

"We are convinced that advertising can tell the public about the stability of life insurance, can increase the confidence of the public in companies that have withstood the storms of business depressions, the waves of epidemics and periods of war, and that to a great extent national advertising can facilitate the work of life insurance salesmen."

As Arthur Brisbane pithily puts it:

"To sell 'em, you must tell 'em."

OIL REFINERIES' 'RUNS' GAIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Outstanding in the report of the American Petroleum Institute covering operations in the oil industry for the week ended August 19, is the sharp increase in refining activity to a point not only the highest this year but much in excess of what is considered a proper economic rate and an increase in the storage of motor fuel. This development apparently, reflects the stocking up in anticipation of higher gasoline prices under the national oil code.

Refineries representing 92.2 per cent of the country's potential capacity, ran to stills last week an average of 2,488,000 barrels of crude oil daily, indicating an operating rate of 75.2 per cent, compared with runs of 2,339,000 barrels daily in the preceding week when operations were 70.7 per cent.

The storage of motor fuel recorded an increase of 271,000 barrels during the week to a total of 51,438,000 barrels. At refineries the increase was 590,000 barrels to a total of 28,545,000 barrels, which was partially offset by a reduction of 319,000 barrels in storage at bulk terminals in transit and in pipe lines.

A drop of 23,100 barrels occurred last week in the daily average domestic output of crude oil to 2,765,500 barrels.

Membership Sells At $15,000 Advance

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Arrangements have been made for the purchase of a New York Stock Exchange membership at $200,000, an increase of $15,000 over the last previous transaction.

COAL MEN FORM TAR BUREAU

Formation of a Road Tar Bureau whose purpose is to urge greater use of tar in road construction and maintenance was announced today.

Pennsylvania, which produces a third of all the crude tar manufactured in the United States, will be one of the first states in which the bureau will be active. A movement similar to the one now being inaugurated by the bureau has been conducted for the past two years in West Virginia by coal producers of the state, aided by various chambers of commerce, with the result that West Virginia has greatly increased the proportion of tar in both road building and maintenance.

Road tar is one of the principal derivatives of bituminous coal, the mining of which is one of Pennsylvania's major industries. The bureau points out that a large increase in the use of road tar here and throughout the country will have a marked effect upon business conditions and employment in the state. Coal mines, by-product ovens, tar refineries, transportation systems and related industries will be stimulated by greater use of tar.

STOCKS CLIMB, RESUME SLOW TRADING

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Financial markets had a touch of inflationary fever today, but it didn't last long, and trading soon dropped back to its recent subnormal routine.

There was a relatively heavy turnover of stocks in the first hour, with gains of fractions to a point or more scattered over a wide front. The spasm was coincident with a rally of foreign exchanges against the dollar. Sterling was up about 4 cents at one time, and European gold currencies exhibited strength. The ticker tape got behind for awhile, then resumed its slow and rather uninteresting pace. Grains and cotton were firm, but not buoyant. Silver futures were firm. Bonds were quiet and moderately mixed.

Both stock and foreign exchange traders were inclined to interpret statements credited to Gen. Johnson as of a mildly inflationary nature. Intimations of the Recovery Administrator that government credit would be mobilized behind the work-spreading and wage-raising campaign were viewed in some quarters as advance notice that the Federal Reserve System might be expected to expand its open market buying within the near future.

During the past several weeks the reserve banks have been adding about $10,000,000 weekly to their portfolios of "governments." Financial circles consider this as relatively "small buying." The Reserve System has authority to purchase around $3,000,000,000 of government obligations.

The financial district was particularly interested in Gen. Johnson's purported remarks regarding the seeming tightness of commercial banking credit in respect to expansion of the NRA campaign. If the Federal Reserve steps up its purchasing program it was figured, it will be for the purpose of loosening credit and will amount to a form of inflation for which market followers have been waiting to give prices another push.

Some revival of interest in carrier shares was attributed to preliminary statements of several of the leading roads for the week ended August 19, which indicated a further rise in freight car loadings. Various traffic officials expect a slow but steady increase in business until at least the end of September. Most estimates for the remainder of the year, however, are said to be based largely on hope.

GRAIN MARKET MARKS TIME

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—The grain market adopted a watchful waiting attitude today. A brief flurry of trading at the start was followed by the usual stalemate in operations.

Market developments overnight were uninspiring. Rye, yesterday's leader, was only moderately active and generally steady. Wheat started to ¼ to ⅜ cent higher, and later moved up another cent a bushel. Corn was mixed, ½ cent lower to ⅛ to ¼ higher and later gained with wheat.

Commission house with Eastern connections came into the wheat pit with some buying orders after the opening and prices ran up about 1½ cents before the rally ended. December wheat pushed up to 93½ cents a bushel before the reaction set in.

The wheat rally carried all other grains higher, with September rye up 3⅝ cents to 74½c. However, 1½ cents of the rye gain was lost immediately on profit-taking. Corn rallied sluggishly with wheat, the maximum advance being only 1¼ cents.

CODE CLARIFIES MANY STEEL PROBLEMS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Iron Age says:

Mill bookings continue to lag any production has receded further, but final adoption of the steel code has cleared the atmosphere of many of the doubts and fears that had been accumulating in recent weeks. The fact that the code, although put into effect only for a 90-day trial period, departs only in minor particulars from the original draft submitted by the industry reflects a spirit of conciliation and understanding at Washington that augurs well for successful administration of the code's provisions. No less important is the strong impetus that steel codification has given to the whole NRA program, particularly the work of codifying other branches of the metal-working industry.

Lingering doubts among buyers concerning the trend of prices have now been set at rest. While it is by no means certain that quotations for fourth quarter will be advanced on all products, the stabilization of present market levels seems assured since concessions from published prices are now outlawed. Already there are evidences of anticipatory buying, as consumers hasten to take advantage of preferential quotations that are still outstanding.

PRODUCTION LOWER

Meanwhile, steel production has fallen three points from 53 to 50 per cent of capacity. The Pittsburgh rate has declined from 45 to 40 per cent; the Cleveland-Lorain rate from 65 to 63 per cent; the Valley average from 60 to 55 per cent; the Buffalo rate from 51 to 43 per cent; and the eastern Pennsylvania level from 45 to 44 per cent.

Steel bookings from the automobile industry reflect the changing moods of the general public. An unlooked-for rebound in retail sales of cars has brought steel mills unexpected fill-in orders during the past week, at the same time causing automobile makers to postpone change-overs to new models.

Automobile companies are strongly opposed to the single-price provision of the steel code, and for a time may offer resistance to the code quotations.

This complication, however, is less serious from the standpoint of steel producers than the necessity of filing prices before a coal code is adopted. While, for the time being, the fuel market is easier on the surface, underneath remains a degree of labor unsettlement which may not subside even with codification.

RAIL ORDERS LOOMING

Railroad buying, which has been long dormant, may be given a sharp stimulus this fall by R. F. C. loans. Bids on 59,000 tons of steel for the Grand Coulee Dam in the Columbia River basin will be taken about January 1.

Better steel demand from agricultural areas is expected despite smaller grain crops. Higher prices, it is estimated, will bring the farmer $750,000,000 more than he received in 1932. In addition, he will receive a substantial bonus for curtailing his plantings.

Scrap markets continue to have a weak tone, and heavy melting steel has declined at Pittsburgh, driving down The Iron Age scrap composite from $12.08 to $12 a ton. The finished steel and pig iron composites remain unchanged, pending the filing of code prices.

Stewart Warner Suit Dismissed

DETROIT, Aug. 23.—Federal Judge Tuttle, at Bay City, Michigan has dismissed the suit brought by Stewart Warner, Inc. against the A. C. Spark Plug Co., General Motors Corporation subsidiary, charging alleged infringement of patent rights on an automobile fuel pump. The patent was held void and no infringement because of its impracticability for use on automobiles.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Gerstenfield left her hanging in silence for a matter of seconds. Then—

"Get off that wire," he said with a flare of white heat. "Get off or I'll wring your neck!"

It seems impossible that he had spoken that way.

"But you don't understand—this is Leni Luneska. I want to talk to you about my contract, Mr. Gerstenfield. We really ought to settle it up, you know. We didn't decide anything about releasing me from it when you left and—"

But she was not half as white as Herman Gerstenfield. He had rid himself of coat, vest and necktie. He had been running his fingers through his hair, and it now literally stood on end.

CRIMINAL DISTURBED

For the last hour Herman Gerstenfield, the master director of the motion picture industry—had been tearing bits of paper into small particles and tossing them into the air over his head. As they fluttered down he had turned up his coat collar as if against a snow storm, a grin of terrible foolishness on his strained face.

* * *

A faint echo of noises from the street could be heard in the cheaply furnished two-room apartment occupied by Steve Poletzki. Poletzki, stretched out on a green chesterfield, stopped reading the sporting page and listened.

Half by instinct and half with his acute sense of hearing, he thought someone had paused outside his door. For a moment he listened, but the sound, if sound there was—did not repeat itself.

The newspaper rattled in his hand as Poletzki laborously continued his reading. He shifted himself to a more comfortable position, his pale eyebrows drawn up in the strain of reading. This was the only part of the paper that interested him.

The mind, however, refused to hold to the printed page and he sat upright and listened again. Someone, beyond question, was in the hall.

KNOCK ON DOOR

People were in the hall frequently — neighbors, children, milkmen. This time, though, Poletzki's senses stirred with a sensation of stealth.

There was no alarm in the man as he got up. He was as safe as he had ever been in his life. The police couldn't be looking for him because the police didn't know who he was.

His coat was off and under his gray shirt his heart was beating normally. He looked steadily at the knob on the painted door. Nothing happened to the knob but, immediately, someone rapped several times—a frank and calm knocking. Nothing to be alarmed about.

It might have been the man about the newspaper or one of the countless solicitors and canvassers who infest buildings with unguarded entrances.

No one answered. The silence irritated Poletzki and then made him angry, for he was a man of short temper. He had no fear whatsoever, no feeling of danger. Mentally he had no more acumen than a vicious dog.

FUGITIVE SUBDUED

With a rapid, impatient move, he unlocked the door and flung it open, his pallid face glowering. One hand was on the knob, the other dangling.

"Hello, Poletzki," said Lucky Cavanaugh coolly. "I want to talk with you."

Poletzki stepped back and reached with his right hand toward his hip pocket.

The hand came out with a gun right enough, but Cavanaugh with a swift, deft grip, caught the wrist and twisted it aside. His strength was twice that of Poletzki and it was no trouble at all, with a simple jiu-jitsu twist, to make the "junky" drop the automatic to the worn carpet.

"Take it easy, Poletzski," said Cavanaugh without raising his voice.

He kicked the door shut behind him, still holding the killer by the wrist. After that it was simple to force the man across the room and push him down onto the divan. Releasing his grip, Cavanaugh picked the weapon off the carpet and put it in his own pocket.

There were bruises on the pale skin of Poletzski's wrist. His dank, straw-colored hair had fallen down on his forehead; his eyes were flat and fish-like.

"Who the heck," he said bleakley, "do you think you are?"

"Shut up and listen to me," said Cavanaugh without moving. "You've come to the end of your rope, Poletzski. You know what's going to happen to you?"

"Says you!" Poletzki snarled.

"I'll tell you. They're going to hang you. They do that occasionally in this state. You killed a man named Karl Kruger and a woman named Annette Santos. We'll overlook blowing the safe."

Poletzki's eyes slid around. One of the windows was open but there was a screen in it. The chance of diving out successfully was too slender to consider.

"I don't know what you're talking about," he said balefully.

"You needn't try to stall me," said Lucky, dropping into a chair. "In fact, you ought to be very grateful that I got you before the police did. Unless somebody steps in and saves you, they're going to hand you a one-way ticket to the scaffold. I'm here to offer you some good advice and a proposition. If you do what I tell you, you'll probably get off with a life sentence instead of taking the big drop. . . . Did you ever see a man go through the death house trap door, Poletzki?"

The Beauty Box

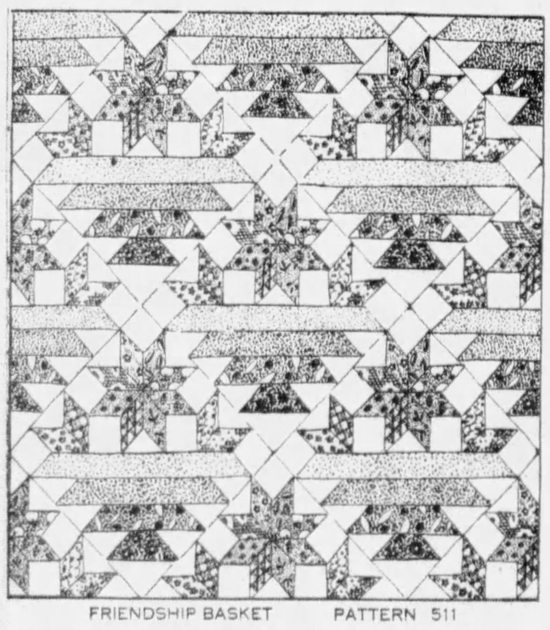
By HELEN FOLLETT

If the woman who is afflicted with a sallow complexion will take a glass of cold water, plus the juice of half a lemon and a pinch of salt before breakfast there's a good chance that the yallery-greenery tint will gradually do a fade away. There are other beautifying uses for lemons. They are good for whitening necks that have become discolored by the friction of collars and scarves. They clear in one minute a set of finger nails that has picked up grime; plunge finger tips into the pulp.

You're hearing a good deal these days about skin tonics. They are lotions containing alcohol that warms the flesh, promotes circulation. They also include astringent properties to correct enlarged pores. A good tonic that costs nothing at all is an ice cube. Wrap it in two layers of gauze so it won't drip, start under the chin, go skipping up over cheeks, nose and forehead. Follow with applications of witch hazel.

If the would-be slim would be rid of her excess weight, let her stop piling sugar in her coffee and tea. Sugar is concentrated foods, builds energy but also builds fat cells. Heavyweights should slow up on sweets and fats, too.

PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



FRIENDSHIP BASKET PATTERN 511

Friendship quilts are as popular today as they were in the early days of quiltmaking. And rightly so. Aside from the sentiment attached to each quilt, the variety of the scraps of material adds new interest to each block. This Friendship Basket is one of the choice friendship quilts, for besides being made of scraps, each block alone makes a handsome motif. So, if each friend is making a block, as was formerly the custom, the work would be especially interesting. The basket part of the block, like the Pineapple pattern, is made of strips of material, all of one width, and thus easy to cut. The flower, the peony of the quiltmaker, offers opportunity for color variety.

Pattern 511 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Date of Birth..... Address.....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

We have heard that a good many of our Junior Patrol members have been away on their vacations, but we haven't had many letters from them telling us where they were and what they did.

Other members are always interested in knowing about your good times, fellows, and so, if you will write letters, tell us what you did and what you saw, and what you thought about it all. It would be very interesting to read here in the Mail Box.

New patrols are starting all the time—lots of captains are making good use of their time before school starts and are getting organized. A password, a name for your club, an order of business, a set of by-laws, your patrol colors, your patrol insignia or badge are just some of the things that you can pick and design right away at the first meeting.

We have had several inquiries as to what the Lieutenant is supposed to do. All the Captains seem to find plenty to do, but the Lieutenants don't seem to have much as near as we can tell. That's easily answered, fellows. A Lieutenant is second in command to the Captain. When the Captain isn't around, he takes charge, and during the meeting, he writes down what happens in the minutes. He hunts up absent members, finds out if they are ill or why they aren't coming to the meeting, and co-operates with the Captain at all times. Just WHAT he does depends on the individual Patrol Club. Above all, a good Lieutenant isn't lazy.

But make your plans for your Patrol, fellows. School will be starting soon, and when all your friends are around again, you can tell them all about the idea, and have pledge slips ready.

Here's a letter today from Capt. Margie Davies, of 70 Greenbush street, Mt. Washington. She writes:

"We have started up a club with all the members girls. The boys said that if we had girls in our club, they would start a club for all boys. I do not know what the boys have done about this yet. We have 11 members so far. Each member would like to have a membership card so I am sending 10 pledges that they have signed."

Please tell the boys that we are still waiting to hear from them, Margie. Your armband, for being the Captain of a new club will soon be on the way. Tell us what you do to help others just as soon as you get started.

And now here's a letter from Gertrude Perr of Box 83, Weirton, W. Va. She writes:

"We have moved and I have my old address written on my membership card. I don't get your paper yet as we are getting the front of our house and store fixed up. To be fair, I don't think anyone would like to ask ma or pa for money, because they need it so badly, don't you kids agree? But when we have the store fixed up, we will buy the paper again. Next time I write I'll send a pledge coupon but please send me a new card with my new address. I read your paper when I have a chance."

That's the way to help your mother and father, Getrude. Too many kids don't understand that their mothers and fathers just can't afford to give them a lot of nice things they would like to have. We hope you see this Mail Box. We know that you will get the paper again just as soon as you can and we hope that you soon have your store front fixed up.

Violet Burke, of 7130 South Artesian avenue, Chicago, Ill., where the World's Fair is this year, is today's long distance member. She writes:

"Thank you for the lovely button. Richard Sexauer enrolled me in your club and I appreciate it immensely."

There is a stamp column in our Sunday paper, Viclet, and we will try to send you some back copies of the Mail Box.

THEY ALL LOOK ALIKE TO JIM!

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Nightwatch Jim Williams arrested one of his bosses Friday evening. Alderman Tom Streeper had parked his oil truck at a fire plug in front of the drugstore. The nightwatch asked Tom to move. Then Jim says Tom made a U turn in the pavement.

The nightwatch claimed the alderman violated the ordinance when he made this U turn. Tom said he made the turn in the intersection. This the nightwatch disputed, so he asked Tom to go before Police Judge Evilsizer.

The court after listening to two sides of the case found the alderman not guilty, though he told him that technically he was guilty.

The nightwatch said Tom was a friend of his, and he hated to hale him into court, but he figured he ought to know where he stood on this parking question, even though Tom was an alderman, and he was himself chosen by the Board of Aldermen.

Tom told Jim he had helped him get his job as nightwatch and he was certainly making him a nice return for it.

Saying It With Flowers

Bugs Baer

Code For Golfers

If there is going to be a code of ethics for business why not for golf?

Fairways would be in splendid shape all year round if niblickers spent as much time searching for divots as they do looking for lost balls.

The average divoteer is a man who is slowly wrecking America from the inside. Watch him as he swings his iron weapon. It zips through the air, clips the turf six inches in back of the ball and chops out enough ground to start a small dairy farm.

A chunk of sod flies through the trees. Attached to it are buttercups, clover and small worms who are amazed to find themselves in the aviation corps.

The golfer starts after the ball. On the way he has to climb over the detached divot. Otherwise, he would lose too much time walking around it.

He picks up an armful of it, waddles back to the hole and drops it in. Then he pats it down with his big foot, looks around to see if any club official is within complaint distance and starts off again.

The scar on the fairway can be seen for a hundred yards in any direction. So he scrapes up some dead leaves, a couple of empty bottles and a few cobblestones. He carries that mess back to the hole and stamps it down.

Has he done his duty? He has not. Common decency and regard for public welfare demand that he either bring the hole back to sea level or hang a red light on the excavation.

That's what we call ethics. And that's what we are going to get. Is the next foursome to plunge to injury in the Grand Canyon or do we golfers have to go around roped to each other like mountain climbers?

Boys, fill in your divots. The constant dripping of water will wear away stone. And that erosion is nothing compared to the steady, monotonous hammering of cold steel on lawns, terraces and flatfooted picnic grounds. All intrepid golfers willing to volunteer for this dangerous duty please take three paces to the front and fall on their chins.

A Gold Brick for London

Mr. Fairbanks Unlikely to Succeed in Shifting Film Capital Overseas.

Hollywood is amused—Hollywood has been amused before—when the proposal is made that the film center of the world be moved from Hollywood to Florida or to France or to Germany or to England.

Now the English papers are announcing solemnly that the film center is to be moved to London.

London — notwithstanding its rain and its fog and its gloomy winters and depressing summers, and notwithstanding the ineptitude of the British people for making films, and notwithstanding the enormous organization which has been created at Hollywood, and notwithstanding the enormous amounts of money which have been invested in studios and studio equipment, and notwithstanding the enormous market which the United States furnishes for domestic films—London, notwithstanding all these things, is to become the film center of the world and simply move Hollywood off the map.

How is this revolution to be accomplished so speedily and so radically?

How is this transfer of the film industry from Hollywood to London to be brought about?

The London papers solemnly assert that Mr. Douglas Fairbanks, flattered to the depths of his bourgeois soul by some titled attention, has decided to move the film industry from Hollywood to London.

But the London papers have gotten the situation slightly upside down.

The plain fact is that Mr. Fairbanks is not moving the film industry to England, but the film industry is moving Mr. Fairbanks to England.

Mr. Fairbanks used to be a notable figure in the films, but he has become somewhat passe, and has gradually descended from feature pictures to program pictures and from program pictures to travelogs and from travelogs to London.

It used to be asked of an out-of-date film player whether he was going to join the United Artists or have his face lifted?

Now the question will be whether he is going to have his face lifted or go to London?

Americans cannot complain at the rumor that Mr. Fairbanks is about to become a British citizen.

It is not lack of patriotism that causes this change. It is lack of patronage.

There is perhaps no reason why Mr. Fairbanks should not change his citizenship as he once changed his name from Douglas Ullman to Douglas Fairbanks.

But there are reasons why Mr. Fairbanks should not and cannot and will not change the center of the film industry from Hollywood to London.

These will endure as long as the climate of California endures, as long as the genius of American film producers endures, and as long as there are one hundred and twenty million film fans in the United States of America.

Mr. Fairbanks was very good in his day.

But his day is past, and the fact that the English people do not know that they cannot build an industry with the discard from the American studios shows how little likelihood there is of London ever becoming the film center of the world.

More Pistol Carriers

There Are Terrible Possibilities of Tragedy in the Large Number of Armed Men.

In the tragedy in Ross Township Monday, where a farmer, acting apparently on a hasty impulse, shot and killed a stranger whom he found picking pears in his orchard, a good example is afforded of the danger of having firearms handy.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth reports that 2,507 more licenses to carry firearms were issued by sheriffs and chiefs of police of cities during July. This makes a total of 30,727 such licenses issued during the last 11 months. No doubt there are many persons who carry firearms without permits.

Aid Hay Fever Victims

Citizens Can Contribute to the Relief of the Sufferers By Destroying Weeds

A hay fever sufferer complains to the Sun-Telegraph that the ordinance against weeds and high grass is not being enforced as vigorously as it should be. He reports that he has found on a ride through the city many vacant lots on which the weeds have not been mowed as the law requires.

Those who are subject to hay fever are now undergoing their annual ordeal. It is a distressing ailment, and everybody with a heart should contribute what he can to the relief of the victims. One thing that can be done is to destroy the weeds, whose pollen causes the disease.

Dr. J. Bruce McCreary, deputy secretary of health at Harrisburg, states that the Health Department is receiving numerous letters every day from persons who wish to know where they can go in Pennsylvania with reasonable assurance of being able to escape the weeds that produce hay fever.

The inquirers are told that such places are difficult to locate and that their best plan is to stay at home and consult a physician.

Sometimes it can be determined by testing a hay fever patient just what pollens cause his trouble, and it may then be possible by treating him with preparations made from these pollens to eliminate or reduce his susceptibility to the pollens.

No Code! 24 Hours a Day

(Copyright, 1933.)

The Scriptures speak of "a thief that comes in the night." Crime, of one degree or another, is older than Scripture. It is as old as civilization.

But not the kind of crime that overhangs the cities of America.

Crime in this country, which includes racketeering, is like an organized industry—a predatory, ruthless and brutalized industry which has no "code" of working hours. Crime in America operates night and day.

Every prosecutor, every grand jury, as well as every peace officer in every county of America should be as active right now as Federal men are in one great crusade against organized crime and against the sort of politics that permits racketeering and violent crime to subsist in so many communities.

Marry-Go-Round

Woman—"The White Man's Burden"

Many a popular man marries, not in order to escape loneliness, but in order to achieve it. There is nothing that will keep the women off a girl-tamer's telephone so effectively as a wife around the place.

* * *

A man simply can't be clothed in dignity and a topless bathing-suit at the same time; but a woman can manage to wear a mere wisp of silk with so much aplomb that you almost imagine she's all dressed up for a party.

It's not a wife's attempt to keep up with the Joneses, but her determination to make the Joneses look like small potatoes that flattens her husband's nose against the grindstone or puts him in a sanitarium.

* * *

There's always something to spoil a married man's evenings. It used to be running to the drugstore for paregoric for the baby—now, it's running to the corner for cigarettes for the wife.

* * *

Half the women in the world are struggling for the right to work for a living—and the other half are struggling to find some man who will help them to STOP working for a living.

* * *

Why do women always try to "standardize" beauty? Nature and Divine Wisdom never made any two things exactly alike—and the moment you try to standardize charm, you lose it.

Love is the only thing to marry for, in these days. But, alas, so many of us mistake a moonlight fancy, a momentary impulse or a half-baked infatuation for that divine and lifelong emotion—and then wake up in Reno!

* * *

The heaviest suffering a man has to bear is the hangover, the indigestion or the business worries for which he can't blame anybody—not even his wife!

The honeymoon is over when applesauce and coaxing won't work, and she has to stage a tantrum in order to get a new fur coat.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

Ownership

Is this fragrance drifting here
Through the summer twilight's grace
Something that can be less dear
For the hedge around your place?
Can the words of any law
That defines the land you hold
Make me glimpse a stain or flaw
Where your garden's buds unfold?

No such problems are for me!
Merrily I pass along
Joying in your poplar tree
And your robin redbreasts' song.
I, who worship all fair things,
Holding beauty half divine,
Share the gleam of lifted wings
And the red rose, yours or mine!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Even though attendance was light-pocketed and a before season fire laid waste many blocks, Coney Island held its place in the summer sun. It was the liveliest pleasure resort near Manhattan. A certain something about Coney inspires visitors to Mardi Gras temper.

Not even the mightiest nabob feels a superiority over walk-up flat people. Among its regulars indeed are Otto Kahn, Willem Van Loon, Theodore Dreiser, Edwin Arlington Robinson and Lee Shubert. Coney levels life and provides the temporary illusion of a Florentine mood.

At a "Hit Him Once, One Cigar" tent a huge Negro shuffled up to the counter and exposed his gums: "Evenin' Cap! Can you use a good ord'nary target?" Everybody laughed and they were soon hurling baseballs at his black head. Always adventure at Coney. I once saw a man known to our town as a celebrated Eastern doctor.

He was barking in front of an incubator place at Coney. Fat women in comic bathing suits waddle the streets. But not one smiles. Curb coupes are filled with unashamed neckers. Yet the charm of Coney is quite understandable. It's Time, in a prankish mood, riffling back the years.

Oliver Herford is a lion at every tea. The difficulty is to lure him from the Players, where he spends his leisure. Charlie Hughes tells of one successful hostess who landed him. Clinging to a shadowy corner, he was finally collared by a lady who wondered why he did not rewrite some of the libretti of Wagnerian operas so prudent parents might take their children to hear them. "But prudent parents don't have children," murmured Herford. And slipped away.

* * *

Tin Pan Alley no longer rushes to print with fuzzle-headed topical songs as in its opulence. I thought of this on Forty-second street today in passing the fellow who had "They Needed a Songbird in Heaven, so God Took Caruso Away" in all the Broadway song sheet shops an hour after the great tenor breathed his last. Today the life of a song is about three weeks, as the result of radio exploitation.

* * *

The Alley was a district of faded brownstone fronts, once in the Twenties and later in the Forties, sliced into niches with enough room for piano and two people. On a summer day the jangle of tintinabulations floating out open windows gave it its name. Yet from here came a nation's songs, and Irving Berlin.

* * *

The best advice to young marrieds invading New York was given by the late Bradford Merrill. To the wife of a foreign correspondent he said: "You can live on $75 a week in New York, but it is difficult on $125." A nugget of wisdom.

* * *

Young moderns have become afflicted with a sort of vocal anemia that has reduced their talk to almost whispers. I was cast among a group of them with another antiquity on a Long Island veranda the other evening. Conversation was a thin blurry mumble-jumble. But I affected to follow by laughing when they laughed. But my companion was not so tolerant. He suddenly scared the daylights out of everybody with a fierce ear splitting whistle. "I just wanted to see," he explained, "whether I had become deaf."

* * *

Of all hard of hearing, Rupert Hughes has been most accomplished surmounting his handicap. Immediately he mastered lip reading and never fails to catch every shred of conversation. Furthermore he salvaged out of deafness, an ability for after dinner and public speaking he never exhibited before. When he enters a filled room he does most of the talking and makes it so ordinarily interesting no one cares to talk. Thus Rupert does not have to try to catch what others are saying.

* * *

The Boston in pensive moments sits in a corner with face to the wall. Sometimes he will remain statue-like a half hour. Being deaf, he does not hear the comments. Today during one of his meditative moments I scrawled across a big card "The Thinker!", propped it on a chair near him and called in the neighbors. Once he sensed us, turned his head leisurely and went rather disdainfully right back to his contemplation. I probably have two of the goofiest dogs on this continent. But just the same I would not trade 100 acres of West Virginia bottom land for either.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

This NIRA plan—it sounded pretty swell at first, didn't it? But are you beginning to chill off on it a bit, now?

For instance—there's this idea of cutting down hours so an unemployed man can share the job. Of course, if you happen to be the unemployed man, that seems a grand scheme. But suppose you've been lucky enough to hold a six-day job all through the depression, how do you feel about giving part of it up? Maybe you don't feel so happy!

Naturally—you protest — you want to see Good Times come back. And you admit that Good Times can't come back until all the idle men have work. But isn't there some way to accomplish that without cutting in on YOUR job? Making you give up that extra time and money—somehow it doesn't seem fair. You have a hard enough time, as it is, making ends meet. A loyal American? Of course you are! You'd fight anyone who hinted that you weren't. But still—can't you manage, some way, to do your bit for America without cutting off your own bread and butter? Isn't there some scheme for getting around these tough new codes?

Is THAT what you're asking? Then you are easily answered. There are just such schemes—hundreds of them—and new ones forming every day. Al Jones, for example, has one which he thinks is a classy dodge. Al's a truck driver. Delivers gas and oil. He's been earning real money all through the hard times. But he has earned it by doing the work of two men—working double hours. However, Al hasn't minded that. He's young and strong.

But now along comes NIRA and says that Al can't hold a double job any more—that he's got to cut down on those hours—give some other man a chance. You can't blame Al for feeling burnt up.

"Whose business is it how many hours I work?" he demands. "Since when has it been a crime for a fellow to work a little harder if he wants to? I need every nickel I can earn—and, believe me, no chair warmer in Washington is going to make me lay off, just to give some other fellow a job. If he's out of a job that's just his bad luck—he can't have mine. I built up this job and I'm going to hang on to it. I'll show 'em—"

So Al shows 'em. In no time at all, he devises a trick to beat the code. Since he takes orders for gas and oil, and delivers, he can easily claim that he's a "salesman," not a truck driver. According to the code, truck drivers must observe the shorter hours—salesmen needn't. So Al manages to defy the NIRA yet keep within the law. And he thinks he's pretty smart. Is he?

Gen. Hugh Johnson, who is in charge of the "War to End Depression," doesn't think he is. He knows as well as Al, that there are scores of ways by which a worker can evade the code. But he doesn't think that the man or woman who does it is either clever or far-sighted. And he has a blunt name for such tactics. He calls them—

"CHEAP LITTLE INGENUITIES."

Not a nice name. Certainly not a name which any proud person would wish to have attached to his practices. And yet, thousands, and hundreds of thousands of greedy citizens are going to try and outsmart the code by just such "cheap little ingenuities." Will they get by with it? Probably—for a time. But then what? Suppose they do hold on to those extra hours, extra nickels—what will that buy them in the long run?

JUST MORE DEPRESSION.

FOR UNLESS TWELVE MILLION IDLE MEN ARE PUT TO WORK, THIS DEPRESSION IS GOING TO LAST . . . AND GET WORSE EVERY WEEK IT LASTS.

If men can't work, men can't spend.

Depression isn't a "fear epidemic." It didn't happen because the market crashed or we had a war. It happened because our population has been growing faster than our jobs—and we let the situation get beyond our control. NIRA isn't an emergency measure. It's human history speeding up. Fifteen years ago we should have commenced shortening hours, splitting up jobs—

NOW UNLESS WE DO IT WE'RE SUNK.

And if the greedy smarties keep us from doing it, by their cheap little "ingenuities"—then what?

WE'LL STAY SUNK.

So what should we do about such "slackers" and scabs?"

YOU say.

The Human Side of the News

Negroes Hardest Hit by the Depression, Yet The Most Cheerful People—Their Philosophy of Life

By EDWIN C. HILL

ONE OF the most remarkable facts of the long depression is the way the Negro race in America has stood up under it. They were the first and almost the hardest to be hit, because they do the work that has fallen through the long ages to the sons of Ham—the lowly tasks.

In a great city like New York they tend the furnaces and run the elevators and carry the burdens, and of course these were almost the first jobs of all to go into the discard when employers began to cut expenses. No population center in America has suffered the privation that has been felt for the past three years in New York's Dark Harlem, that vast spread of the Negro race over two miles north and south and three-quarters of a mile east and west in northern Manhattan, a community of 250,000.

But one finds more cheerfulness there today than anywhere else in the city, certainly far more than along Park avenue, or Fifth. I think it is because, as Archibald Rutledge recently wrote in the Readers' Digest, the Negroes are America's kindliest race, surpassing all other races in downright kindliness and mercy toward one another. The Negro has a kind of instinctive philosophy of life which makes the milk of human kindness a more natural product of his heart than it is of ours. Their very lowliness of station creates a sense of mutual dependence and of fellowship. They share their worldly possessions, which are pitifully few, and what is far more important for such times as these, they share their hearts and spirits.

* * *

Outstanding Parts Of Negro Character

WE, WHO are supposed to be thrifty and industrious, are wont, as Mr. Rutledge says, to lament the Negro's love of ease, his readiness to relax, his habit of taking nothing seriously. But these are natural evidences of his deep-seated philosophy.

To the Negro the end of existence is not the accumulation of wealth, but the enjoyment of life. The Epicurean said: "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die." The Negro says: "Eat, drink and be merry . . ." As for dying, his faith in an after life is so complete that it illumines for him even the Valley of the Shadow. His religion is effective, not because it keeps him from what we term sin, but because it reconciles him to the twin enigmas of life and death. He takes the shocks of existence as he takes the storm, the rain and the cold. Gentle acceptance of the myriad chances of life, a rich spiritual background, a cheerful facing of the future—all these are parts of the Negro's philosophy.

These are the traits which have enabled him to face the desperate and endless days of the past three years and stand up under them with a laugh as he plunks his banjo and pours out his rich voice in the spirituals which have in their very hearts the chants of the African forest. Possibly by accident, the Negro has followed closer than many of us the Master's injunction about caring little for the accumulation of money. It is not so much laziness as it is a doubt to the worth of it all. The Negro prefers to be, rather than to achieve. He knows that life is all on this earth we have, and that there are other ways of enjoying it than by incessant toil and the pursuit of the mirage of wealth. I quote freely from Mr. Rutledge, with much appreciation of his beautiful thought and language.

There are Negroes who go about in rags, but who are superb successes because they manifest the triumph of the spirit by gentleness and good manners and kind words and fortitude against all the shafts and arrows of outrageous fortune. The tourist who drives through the rural South is always amazed to see at crossroads, railroad stations or country stores groups of Negroes who are idling away in the sunshine. Doing nothing at all. But what the tourist doesn't see—what it is impossible for him ever to see—is that these Negroes are just living, talking, laughing, teasing one another, breaking out into song, getting enjoyment out of life.

* * *

Gets More From Life Than White Man

BUSINESS MEN retire after ceaseless years of labor and look about and wonder what life is all about and often wind up by being miserable and dying years younger than they should. But the Negro, never having been in business, and not looking at life that way at all, is always retired from its perplexities and its tyranny. He never lacks abundant company, and he keeps in the full current of life. Accepting it from childhood as fruit to be enjoyed, he does not hoard, he has no plans for the future. Each new day is a thing in itself, rather than a mere stage in the scheme of making a living.

And despite the material hardships of his life he gets more out of it than the white man. He drifts along amiably. He loafs and invites his soul in a way that Walt Whitman thoroughly understood. The untutored Negro, poor as he may be, has a just pride—the subdued pride of the humble—the pride of one who has come to a certain mastery of life—who masters it and does not let it master him. He is not in endless agitation of spirit, as so many white people constantly are.

Negroes have delicate perceptions—more delicate than many comprehend who have not observed them closely. They know the virtue of reticence. Their feet may trudge but their souls are winged. Their mental advancement may be important, but no gain there should be at the cost of their spiritual values—their spiritual values as manifested in their kindliness. The kindliness that breathes in their songs and shines in their eyes; the kindliness in the tips of an old mammy's fingers; the kindliness that touches with tender radiance the shadows of their lowly life.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Considering the favorable start you had in life, have you made good?

When you compare your accomplishments with others who have had more handicaps are you not pretty nearly a failure?

Yet you think you have done pretty well because you have reached a respected position in society or in business.

Your parents looked out for your education, a favorable environment and gave you a good family standing to reach a much higher plane than you have attained.

You need not feel that others who are struggling along to reach your standard are far your inferiors.

You are giving them no credit for the obstacles they have overcome which you have never had to contend with.

Your preparation for your chosen line of endeavor you have taken as a matter of course, not as your particular good fortune.

Is it not possible that you think that those who have not had the sort of instruction you have had, have no right to assume to hold the position you fill?

If this is your idea you are pretty small-minded and there are many just like you but it is narrow-minded, nevertheless.

ISN'T IT SO?

Nature has arranged things so that a poor man is able to display as many virtues as a millionaire.
